GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

REVENUE AND AGRICULTURAL DEPARTMENT.

Weather Review of India for the week ending at 8 a.m. on Saturday, March 21st, 1891.

During the week under review the weather, without exhibiting any strongly marked disturbed conditions, has throughout been in a feebly unsettled state. The principal centres of these unsettled conditions have been the Bay area and North-Western India, where feeble cyclonic conditions have been developed and rain has fallen. Throughout nearly the whole week pressure has been steadily highest in the extreme north-west and lowest over the Bay of Bengal, but gradients have been slight, and the winds generally of light or moderate force.

On the morning of the 16th a feeble cyclonic storm appeared over Lower Sind, and rain was falling at Karrachi, Quetta, Dera Ismail Khan, and Murree. This depression subsequently moved northward into the Punjab, where it grew rather deeper, the abnormal depression of the barometer within the storm being nearly 0·1″ on the 17th as compared with 0·025″ on the 16th. The wind increased in force at Murree, and showers of rain fell at all stations in the north-west of the Punjab. Later in the day rain extended as far east as Simla, and continuous and rather heavy rain occurred at Murree and Rawalpindi. By the morning of the 18th this depression had disappeared, and pressure was very uniform, though rather higher in the extreme north-west, and lower over the Peninsula and Burma, than elsewhere. On the 19th a small centre of depression was shown over Central Bengal and a large area of relatively low pressure over the Bay area. Scattered showers of rain were reported from different parts of the country, and both at Simla and Murree slight snow fell. On the 20th and 21st there was no important change to record. Pressure decreased by easy gradients from an area of relatively high readings in the north-west to an area of relatively low readings over North-East India, and the weather was showery in several places. Owing to the distribution of pressure described above, there has been little or no interruption in the steady flow of northerly winds across North-West India and down the west of the Peninsula. In the central parts of the country the direction was generally north-easterly, while in Bengal west and south weret the prevailing directions, induced by the low pressures prevailing over Norh-East India. On the 17th the northerly winds in parts of North-West India were interrupted by the cyclonic circulation prevailing around the low pressure area then existing, but on the whole a strong steady northerly current from the hills has prevailed.

Temperature.—Owing to the causes above described, viz., the northerly winds from the hills and the cloudy, showery weather, the temperature of the past week has been very low. This deficiency of temperature has been most marked in the day temperatures, though it has not been by any means confined to them. On the 18th the maximum temperatures at Rawalpindi, Peshawar, and Murree were between 18° and 23° below the normal average; on the 19th the deficiency at the same three stations was between 13° and 16°; on the 20th the maximum deficiency was between 13° and 16° but at Ludhiana and Lahore; on the 21st the maximum deficiency was 22° at Peshawar. Though the abnormal coolness of the weather was most marked in the Punjab, it was nevertheless very considerable all over Northern and Central India.

Province.	15th.	16th.	17th.	18th.	19th.	20th.	21st.	Mean for week.
Burma	+0·8	—0·2	—1·2	—2·1	—0·1	+0·8	+ 0·8	—0·2

North-Western Provinces	—9·2	—6·7	—6·2	—2·3	—1·5	—3·2	— 4·9	—4·9
Punjab	—7·2	—6·1	—4·5	—6·7	—6·9	—8·3	—11·1	—7·3
Bombay	—5·7	—3·5	—1·4	—0·1	+0·6	—0·5	— 2·8	—1·9
Central Provinces	—8·0	—5·6	—3·0	—1·0	—0·2	—0·4	— 2·7	—3·0
Guzerat and Central India	—9·0	—6·3	—3·6	—1·6	—2·2	—3·6	— 6·0	—4·6
Sind and Rajputana	—6·6	—4·2	—2·3	—3·1	—3·9	—6·8	— 8·1	—5·0
Madras	+0·9	+1·5	+0·9	—0·3	—0·9	—0·4	— 0·8	+0·1
Whole of India	—5·7	—4·2	—2·9	—2·3	—1·9	—2·6	— 4·2	....

This table shows that in Burma and Madras there were three days and in Bombay one day in which the mean temperature exceeded the normal average, but that in all other Provinces the weather was abnormally cool throughout the whole week. The coolest day for the whole of India was the 15th, after which the amount of the abnormal depression gradually decreased until the 19th, after which it increased again. The coolest region was the Punjab, after which came Sind and Rajputana, the North-Western Provinces, Guzerat, and Central India, and then Bengal. The only Province showing an excess of temperature for the week was Madras, where there was a trifling excess of one-tenth of a degree.

Rain.—As mentioned above, the weather was showery over a large part of the country. The table at the conclusion of this summary shows that rain fell in the majority of the rainfall divisions, the exact figures being thirty-four divisions reporting rainfall, and seventeen, or exactly half, reporting no rain. In ten, however, of the divisions reporting rain, the average amount was less than $\frac{1}{10}$ of an inch. The regions where there was either no rain or an average rainfall of less than $\frac{1}{10}$ of an inch comprise Burma (except Arakan), North Bengal, Behar, and the whole of the North-Western Provinces, the Central Punjab, the north of the Bombay Presidency, and the Central Provinces (except the East), the whole of Rajputana and Central India, and a large part of the East Coast. Of the divisions which received rainfall, twenty-three had more and ten had less than the average normal amount of the week. The greatest excess was in Madras (South), followed by the North-West Punjab and the Circars. The concluding column of the table shows that, except on the East Coast and in South Burma, there has been a very general and considerable excess of rain since the commencement of the month.

The record of maximum amounts shows fewer heavy falls than was the case last week. The following are the amounts exceeding 2 inches:

REVENUE AND AGRICULTURAL DEPARTMENT.

Weather Review of India for the week ending at 8 a.m. on Saturday, March 28th, 1891.

As was the case last week, the weather over India, though showing no strongly marked disturbance, has been feebly unsettled in different parts of the country. Throughout the whole week the highest pressure over India has been reported from the extreme north-west, while areas of relatively low pressures have been reported from the west and centre of the Peninsula, from Bengal, and from Burma, and on one occasion from the western desert and the Gangetic plain. The relative depression of the barometer over the Peninsula and Burma has probably been produced by the high temperatures which, compared with other parts of India, have prevailed there, while the depression over Sind and the Gangetic plain resulted from a feeble disturbance which advanced to those regions from the westward.

On the 22nd, 23rd, and 24th the distribution of pressure was of the ordinary anticyclonic type common to the cold weather. Readings were highest within a large area overlying the Punjab and Rajputana and low over Burma and the Peninsula. The winds agreed with this distribution, blowing from north-west and west down the Gangetic plain and from north-east over the central parts of the country and a large part of the Peninsula. Elsewhere the directions were more or less irregular. On the 25th both the distribution of pressure and the circulation of the winds underwent a considerable change. A small shallow depression appeared over the western desert, and the winds became cyclonic over a large part of Northern and Central India. South-easterly and easterly winds at the same time sprang up over the east and south of the Peninsula. The disturbance from the western desert apparently advanced north-eastward into the Gangetic plain, and coalesced with a low pressure area which had previously prevailed there, resulting in the production of a large area of low readings over the central parts of Northern India. A brisk barometric recovery occurred in the north-west as this movement was carried out. By the morning of the 27th the depression had practically disappeared, and the barometer was rising, except over North-East India. The general distribution of pressure and the winds were on the whole similar to those which prevailed at the commencement of the week, and these conditions lasted during the 28th.

Temperature.—The general depression of temperature has been even more strongly marked in the present than in the last week, but the amount of the depression has been more uniform, the mean amount for the whole of India not rising much above 5° on any day or falling below 3½°. The regions of greatest cold have progressed slowly from west to east across Northern India. Thus, on the 22nd, the greatest abnormal depression of temperature was reported from Lahore (—17°), on the 23rd from Lahore (—15°) and Agra (—12°), on the 24th from Lahore (—13°) and from Nowgong (—12°), on the 25th from Burdwan (—15°). On the 26th the region of greatest cold returned to Lahore, where there was a mean depression of 14°, but on the 27th the greatest cold was at Jacobabad, whence by the 28th it had advanced eastward to Ajmere and Agra.

The following table shows the amount of the temperature variations from the normal average for each day of the week for the different Provinces of India:

PROVINCE.	22nd.	23rd.	24th.	25th.	26th.	27th.	28th.	Mean for week.

Bombay	—2·3	—1·5	—2·3	—2·9	—2·2	—1·8	—1·6	—2·1
Central Provinces . . .	—4·6	—3·6	—4·5	—6·3	—4·6	—4·9	—3·2	—4·5
Guzerat and Central India .	—7·6	—6·8	—9·2	—5·2	—3·4	—3·2	—7·1	—6·1
Sind and Rajputana . .	—9·0	—8·2	—7·5	—6·0	—5·8	—5·5	—7·7	—7·1

Mean for whole India . .	—4·9	—4·7	—5·2	—5·0	—4·0	—3·3	—4·1	...

These figures show that in Burma each day of the week was warmer than usual, and the mean of the week was nearly 2° above the average. In all parts of India, on the contrary, the mean temperature on each day was lower than the normal, and the means of the week exhibit a deficiency which ranges from less than 1° in Madras to 7° in Sind, Rajputana, and the North-West Provinces, and to 10° in the Punjab. The mean temperature of the whole of India was about 5° below the normal from the 22nd to the 25th, after which the amount of the depression decreased, and was only 3·3° on the 27th. On the 28th it had risen again, and amounted to 4°. On the 22nd in the Punjab the maxima were between 13° and 23° below the normal, and on the 23rd they were nearly as low.

Rain has been very scattered during the week. Showers fell in North-West—mostly on or near the hills—and North-East India on the 22nd and 23rd; in Bengal, the Central Provinces, and Malabar on the 24th; in Bengal, Assam, and the Central Provinces on the 25th; in North-West India and the Central Provinces on the 26th, and in North-West India on the 27th and 28th. Snow was reported from Murree on the 22nd, and soft hail fell in Murree and Simla on the 23rd and 24th.

The table at the conclusion of the summary shows that during the week rain fell in twenty-four divisions, but that in eleven of these divisions the average total rainfall of the week was less than one-tenth of an inch. The regions over which there was either no rain, or only a fall of less than one-tenth of an inch, include the whole of Burma, East and North Bengal, Assam (Surma), Behar, the North-West Provinces, the South, Central, Submontane, and West Divisions of the Punjab, the whole of the Peninsula, except the extreme south, Rajputana, Guzerat, and Kattiawar. The regions where appreciable rain fell include th e ssam Valley, Lower Bengal, Orissa, Chota Nagpur, the hill and north-west districts of the Punjab, Malabar and Madras (South), Sind, and the Central Provinces. The heaviest rainfall was in the east of the Central Provinces, wherea mean fall of 1½ inch was recorded. Following this were nearly 1 inch in the hills of the Punjab, ¾ of an inch in Chota Nagpur, and about ½ inch in Orissa, Malabar, and Madras (South). The general rainfall of the week has been in defect, the only divisions reporting an excess being Orissa, Chota Nagpur, the North-West Provinces (East), the hill districts of the Punjab, Malabar, the Central Provinces, Kattiawar, Sind, and Madras (South). The largest actual excess was in the east of the Central Provinces.

The final column of the table shows very little alteration as compared with the same figures of last week.

The records of heavy falls are comparatively unimportant, the amounts being generally less than those reported during the past two weeks. The following are the amounts exceeding 2 inches:

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

HOME DEPARTMENT.

CENSUS.

The following letter from the Census Commissioner, and its enclosures, are published for general information.

No. 86, dated Simla, 2nd April 1891.

From—J. A. BAINES, Esq., Census Commissioner for India,

To—The Secretary to the Government of India, Home Department.

I have the honour to submit herewith to the Government of India three tables showing the results of the preliminary abstraction of the returns of the census taken on the 26th—27th of February last. The first table relates to British territory, and is complete, with the exception of the small Trans-Himalayan sub-division of the Punjab, and of British Baluchistán which is not brought under the general scheme of enumeration, but will be returned by households at a more favourable opportunity. The second table includes most of the Feudatory States in India, the exceptions being most of the petty States under Chota-Nagpur, a small State in Rajputána (Banswára), parts of Káshmir which are cut off from head-quarters by the recent heavy snowfall on the higher ranges, and, lastly, Manipur. The returns for the Shán States will be prepared like those for British Baluchistán during the present season's tour, and no attempt at synchronous enumeration has been made there. The last table shows a selection of the more important towns in the country, with the corresponding return at last census.

2. Before offering any comments on the results set forth in the above statements, I should perhaps explain the system on which they were prepared, which is laid down in my Circular L of the 18th of July last. As soon as the enumerators had completed the round of their respective blocks on the night of the 26th February, and collected the householders' schedules, when there were any, on the following morning, they repaired to the head-quarters of the supervisor of their circle, and in his presence added up the population of their blocks by sexes, making at the same time a total of the occupied houses they had enumerated. The results of this addition were communicated to the supervisor alone, and he passed the book and forms to a second enumerator, who, without having any clue to the previous results, re-added the whole, and gave in his total. If the two agreed, the supervisor noted them in detail in the fly-leaf form provided as part of the enumeration-book. If they differed, the book was given to a third enumerator, and so on, till the totals were ascertained to be correct and duly certified. The aggregate of block totals was then compiled by the supervisor, and sent, with the original books, to the Charge-superintendent, who, after further compilation for his charge, handed them on to the chief officer of the tahsil, thana, or township according to the Province. Finally, the collected totals reached the Collector or Deputy Commissioner, by whom a district total was compiled after due test and the incorporation of casual returns, such as those for camps of touring officials, of boats, &c. The results thus found were telegraphed to both the Provincial Superintendent of Census and myself, so that simultaneous compilation began three days after the final enumeration.

3. The above is the system of communication prescribed, but whether it was in all cases duly observed I am, of course, unable to say. On the whole, however, judging from the general promptitude with which the returns were sent in, and the various additions and corrections which reached me later, I believe that not only the subordinate officials connected with the enumeration, but the district officers in person must have interested themselves in this heavy addition to their already burdensome current duties. I may go further and say that had it not been for the participation of the Collectors and Deputy Commissioners—not to speak of Political Officers—in this task, it could have been impracticable to have published the results within five weeks of the census. As it is, the statement for British territory was delayed in issue nearly ten days owing to the exceptional failure of a single district officer in the Central Provinces to make a punctual return; otherwise the present tables would have been in the hands of Government within a month from the final enumeration. Neither the Provincial Superintendents nor I myself have as yet had an opportunity of testing these summaries, but I have no reason to think that their accuracy is impaired by the speed with which they were compiled. It may be remembered, in connection with this point, that taking British and Feudatory territory together, the number of persons engaged on the 26th as enumerators was between 940,000 and a million, and that in Bengal alone the staff exceeded 309,000, so that each man had an average of only 300 entries to add together. The following statement shows the respective dates on which the first and the last district summary of each Province was received from the district head-quarters:

Province.	Earliest.		Latest.
	District.	Date of receipt.	District.	Date of receipt.
Madras	Nilgiris	4th March.	Coimbatore	17th March.
Bombay	Broach	2nd "	Hyderabad (Sind)	9th "

North-West Provinces and Oudh.	Sultanpur	1st "	Garhwal (British)	10th "
Punjab	Peshawar	7th "	Dera Ghazi Khan	20th "
Ajmir	Ajmir	11th "
Central Provinces	Wardah	3rd "	Chanda (corrected)	31st "
Berar	Buldana	3rd "	Ellichpur	16th "
Coorg	Coorg	11th "

Upper Burma	Bhamo	4th "	Shwebo (corrected)	26th "
Lower Burma	Sandoway	4th "	North Arakan	20th "

4. As regards the results of the census, I do not propose to anticipate comments that hereafter will have to be made upon the returns when finally abstracted, so I will offer no more than general remarks and explanations. The population dealt with will amount, when the full returns for the Feudatory States are in, to just under 286 millions, of which 220½ live in British territory and 65½ under feudatory rule. During the decade that has passed since the last enumeration, the gross increase has been 29 millions, the population of Italy or Prussia at their last census. Deducting 3 millions of population not brought under the census of 1881, the balance of 26 millions exceeds the whole population of cis-Leithian Austria added in ten years to the soil of India. Taking only British territory and excluding Upper Burma as a new acquisition, it appears that the population has risen from 198,655,160 to 217,487,370, which is about 1·6 per cent. above what I estimated in 1889 would be the probable number for whom schedules and enumerators would have to be provided. This indicates an annual rate of increase very nearly 14 per ten thousand higher than I thought would be the case. The actual growth is just under 9½ per cent., and the slight relatively greater increase amongst females is no doubt attributable to greater confidence in the intentions of the Government in taking a census rather than to an irregular advance of the sexes. We may account, I think, for the comparatively more rapid increase in Feudatory territory in the same way; and in certain instances, as, for example, in the case of the Central Province Feudatories, there seems no doubt that the abnormal increase is mainly due to the fact that many of these small States happen to be just now more directly under British control or administration than they were ten years ago, as the difference between the rates of increase in the two sexes seems to indicate that immigration is not to be credited with the variation. On the other hand, there are instances where the female rate falls below that of males, and this is apparently more markedly a characteristic of the tracts most severely afflicted by the great famine of 1876-78 than of places which have enjoyed normal circumstances since 1881. The point is one that will receive due attention when dealing with the full returns, as without the age-tables it is futile to attempt explanation.

1. Bengal.

5. Looking at the several Provinces individually, the first calling for notice is Bengal, which now returns a population nine millions in excess of that of the United States of America at last year's census, spread over an area less than $\frac{1}{24}$ of that of the latter country. The general increase of $6\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. is spread over most of the Province, but special causes have been in operation in certain tracts, which have been cursorily noted by the Provincial Superintendent of the Census. For instance, in Rajshahye and Nuddea, there has been a gradually increasing tendency to malarial fever owing to local causes, which has driven the people to a more salubrious neighbourhood; and luckily there happens to be good cultivable land available within a reasonable distance from these tracts. Elsewhere the increase seems to have been proportionately higher in Eastern Bengal than in either Behar or Orissa. On the whole, however, the ten years have thrown twenty-nine more persons on every square mile of land, and now on that area there are on an average for the Province no less than 474 individuals.

2. North-West Provinces and Oudh.

Here we have the population of the German Empire on less than one-half its area. The increase is within 0·87 per cent. of my forecast, and is most apparent in Oudh, the eastern districts of the North-West Provinces, and in the Hill Tracts. Here, again, the people have begun to press on the land at the rate of 22 per square mile during the ten years, and now number 442 against 416 on that area. As in Bengal, three or four districts show a decrease, due, it is said, to the agricultural deterioration of a portion of the Doab, whilst under the hill ranges of the north, where the population is nearly stationary, the same complaint is made as in Bengal, namely, the greater prevalence of malarial fever of late years; and the returns seem to show that it is not without foundation.

3. Madras.

In Madras, the population of which now about equals that of Italy with Belgium, the pressure of population over the whole Presidency is considerably less than in the two Provinces above reviewed, still there is very considerable congestion in the highly cultivated tracts to the south-east. My forecast of increase has been proved wrong by some 3 per cent., owing, no doubt, in some degree to the return of emigrants or to actual immigration into the famine tracts which showed such a depletion in 1881. The areas of a good many of the districts, however, have been considerably changed since that year, but the general results seem to show a very large increase in the centre and east, and less along the west and in the northern part of the Coromandel Coast. The populous district of Tanjore contrasts strangely with its neighbours in an increase of only $4\frac{1}{2}$ per cent., as compared with 13 in Madura, 19 in South Arcot, and nearly 23 in Salem. The areality of the Presidency has risen from 221 to 248 per square mile in the decade.

4. Punjab.

The Punjab, which with its Feudatories has a population exceeding that of Spain and Portugal, has increased by nearly two million souls in British territory alone, and now supports 187 per square mile, or the same as Continental France, against 170 in 1881 (calculated on the revised area return). In some degree the increase is no doubt only apparent, being due to more correct returns of women and children; but the extension of irrigation and cultivation and of settlements on the waste lands of the Province is sufficient to account for a considerable growth of population.

5. Bombay.

Taking the Presidency proper as distinct from Sind, Bombay occupies, as regards population, a place between Hungary and Spain on considerably less than the area of the former. As in the case of Madras, the re-population of the districts affected by the famine of 1876-78 has shown my forecast to be considerably below the actuals. There has been also a very large rise in the two districts in which good cultivable land is available to the largest extent, namely, Khandesh and the Panch Mahals. In Sind the increase has been very large, 18⅘ per cent., compared with 14½ in the rest of the Presidency; and the return seems to indicate that this is a real, and not, in spite of the race and character of the population, only an apparent, variation. The areality of the whole Presidency is now 150 as compared with 131 at last census. Omitting from consideration Sind, with its large area of desert and barren mountain, the calculation results in an average of 207, against 192 in 1881, for the rest of the Province.

6. Central Provinces.

Next in population come the Central Provinces, with a population of 10,761,000, rather above that of Holland and Belgium combined, and with 3½ times the area of those countries. The population per square mile is now only 127, against 117, in 1881. With an average increase of just over 9⅓ per cent., the districts known as the Chattisgarh show a relatively more rapid growth; but in the hilly tracts also the increase has been notable, and may partly be attributable to better counting.

7. Assam.

This Province corresponds very accurately both in area and population with the returns for Roumania. It has increased in about the same ratio as the Punjab, and shows an areality of 117 as compared with 105 per square mile last census. There has been for some time past an endemic outbreak of a kind of fever known as the 'Black disease,' which has proved very destructive in the Kamrup district, and even appears to have spread to some extent across the Brahmaputra. The large increase shown against the hill tracts in this Province is probably attributable to extension of census operations as much as to the supposed prolificity of forest tribes.

8. Burma.

Passing by the smaller provinces, Berar, Ajmir, and Coorg,—the latter of which, by the way, shows a remarkable diminution in its male population, of which I have as yet had no explanation,—I come to Burma, where the census included very successfully a large tract never before enumerated. The people are far more widely educated than in India proper, and seemed to be able to appreciate and help in the work of the census, though in the matter of house-numbering I heard instances in which their interest was a little too zealously exhibited in supplement of the official registration. Lower Burma, now equal in population to Portugal, shows an extraordinary increase, partly due to the extension of trade along the coast and railways, partly to actual increase of cultivation, as on the reclaimed tracts of the Thongwa district, where an increase of 55 per cent. is shown; and in Pegu, Hanthawaddy, and Tharrawaddy, in all of which the increase is above the provincial average. In Upper Burma the official estimate, based on rough returns of taxation, has generally been largely exceeded. Though affecting but a small population, it is satisfactory to hear that the preliminary record of Wunthô, where there has recently been some disturbance, was secured by the Deputy Commissioner of Kathâ before the Chief broke into hostilities.

6. In conclusion, I should explain that I can at present do no more than submit without comment the returns for the selected cities and towns of India. The variations in population in such communities require, in order to be reviewed thoroughly, the details of age, sex, and birthplace, all of which will be available by the time I next place the figures before Government.

In the total population [illegible] of 321,540 for 1891 and 1,701,315 for 1881 is due to the inclusion of Rajputána Bhils not enumerated by sex, and also (in 1881) the inclusion of the gross figures for Kashmir (1,534,972). REVENUE DEPARTMENT.

A Dictionary of the Economic Products of India.

BY DR. GEO. WATT, C.I.E.,

Reporter on Economic Products.

Published under the authority of the Government of India in the Revenue and Agricultural Department.

The first four volumes of this work are now ready for issue, and intending subscribers are invited to register their names with the Superintendent of Government Printing, Calcutta.

The Dictionary is intended to deal with the products of India —animal, vegetable, and mineral; each product being treated after a uniform plan, the paragraphs of which give the scientific, vernacular, and European names; habitat or source history; properties and uses, both chemical and industrial; trade statistics; markets, &c. The work is arranged alphabetically according to scientific nomenclature, but commercial and important vernacular names are also given as cross references, so that little difficulty need be experienced in finding the account of a product even when its scientific name is unknown to the reader.

An important feature of the Dictionary consists in the fact that derived information is in every instance given under quotation marks, and with a reference to the original publication. Numerous contributions have, however, furnished the results of new discoveries, and confirmed the vernacular names; so that the Dictionary is not only a complete compilation of published information, but has been brought abreast of the most recent inventions and discoveries.

Volume I contains the letters A and B, and consists of 559 royal pages; Volume II embraces the letter C in 68*9* pages; Volume III contains the letters D, E, F, and G in 534 pages. Vol. IV, letters G to L in 643 pages The whole work will, it is expected, be completed in six volumes by 1891; but a seventh volume may also be issued consisting of an Index to all the vernacular and other names contained in the Dictionary; and this as a work of reference, it is hoped, may prove of considerable value.

The price to subscribers will be in India R30 and in England 2 guineas, payable in advance, for the complete set. An extra charge for packing and postage will be made for the set—in India, at 8 annas per volume, and for England at 2 rupees 6 annas per volume.

For copies bound in half calf or half morocco, R6 and 8 shillings, respectively, will be charged extra for the whole sets.

* No copies will be issued to non-subscribers till the work is complete, and no single volume will be sold separately. The price to non-subscribers will be R45 in India and 3 guineas in England, exclusive of packing and postage.*

VI.—When any vessel has been placed in quarantine as aforesaid, the Health Officer may direct the removal of so many of the passengers and crew as may not be suffering from illness, and whose services may not be required on board the vessel, to such particular spots as may from time to time be selected by the Resident as places of quarantine, there to remain for a period of seven days. If a case of cholera occurs among such passengers and crew during any such period, they shall remain in a place of quarantine for a period of 15 days from the date of the occurrence of the last case of such illness.

VII.—Any mails or cargo which may be brought by any vessel so arriving shall be landed under such precautions as the Health Officer may deem necessary to prevent the spread of the disease.

other articles as may be required by those on board. Such supplies will be placed on the boats of the vessels in quarantine to be subsequently removed by members of their crews.

IX.—All vessels arriving at Aden, Perim, and the Somáli Coast which may have communicated with vessels coming from Calcutta shall be subjected to the same quarantine as vessels arriving at Aden, Perim, and the Somáli Coast from Calcutta.

2. Other classes of piece goods shall not be detained if unstamped; and unstamped cotton and woollen piece goods imported for private and personal use and not intended for sale shall not be detained if the Customs Collector is satisfied that they are actually not intended for sale.

3. Examinations of packages to ascertain whether the goods mentioned in rule 1 are stamped shall be made at frequent intervals, at the discretion of the Customs Collector, and either under his personal instructions, or under general orders and instructions given by him to an Assistant Collector.

4. The piece goods contained in the packages so examined need not be examined when found to be stamped to test the accuracy of the stamping, except on information received, or when the Customs Collector has reason to suspect, that the stamping is false.

5. All measurements of piece goods shall be made on the table.

6. Yarns need not be examined or measured except on information received, or when the Collector has reason to suspect, that the trade-description is false.

7. An examination of yarns to test the accuracy of the description of count or length shall be made, in the first instance, up to the limit of one bundle in the consignment.

8. If on such examination the difference between the average count or length and the described count or length is in excess of the variations permitted in paragraphs III and IV of the Notification in the Home Department, No. 1738 (Judicial), dated the 4th December 1890, the importer may require a further examination to be made up to the limit stated in rule 9.

9. The test to determine count and length of yarns shall be applied as follows:

One bundle should be taken from any bale in the consignment, and each knot in the bundle weighed. From the knots so weighed should be selected the heaviest knot, the lightest knot, and the knot which approaches most closely to the standard weight of a knot of yarn of the particular count under examination.

[By standard weight is meant the weight which the knot of yarn of the described count should be if the length of the hank is correct, e.g., a knot of No. 20 of ten hanks to the knot should weigh eight ounces.]

The heaviest knot should then be selected from the knots so weighed, and each hank in it weighed, the heaviest and lightest hank, and also the hank which approximates most closely to the standard weight, being selected. This process should be repeated with the other two weighed knots.

There will then be nine hanks to be dealt with, three from each of the three knots weighed.

These nine hanks should then be tested on the wrap-reel. If on such test the difference between the average count or length and the described count or length is in excess of the variations permitted by the Notification quoted in the preceding rule, the process may be repeated, if the importer should require it, up to the limit of one per cent. of the whole number of bundles in the consignment; but no more extended examination shall be made unless the importer agrees to pay the cost thereof, in which case an examination may be made up to the limit of ten per cent. of the bundles in the consignment.

10. The Customs Collector may require from any informant a security not exceeding five hundred rupees. If the Collector should be satisfied that the information given is wilfully false, the security shall be forfeited.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

REVENUE AND AGRICULTURAL DEPARTMENT.

Weather Review of India for the week ending at 8 a.m. on Saturday, April 4th, 1891.

The principal feature in the weather of the past week has been the brisk rise of temperature which has occurred throughout a large part of Northern India. The pressure and wind changes of the present week call for little notice. The barometer, though steadily higher in the north-west and lower over the Peninsula and Burma than elsewhere, has been very uniform in its readings throughout the whole of the Indian region: but accompanying this uniformity there has been an irregularity in the distribution of pressure which has resulted in the production of slight local disturbances in different parts of the country, which have given dust or thunder storms to the places affected. The low pressure areas which have been shown over Burma and the Peninsula have probably been the result of the high temperatures which have prevailed in those regions compared with the temperatures reported from Northern India. The wind has been very steadily northerly over a large part of the Punjab, Rajputana, Sind, Guzerat, and the West Coast, but elsewhere the directions have been fairly normal. The strong westerly winds which are characteristic of the hot season have commenced down the Gangetic plain, while in Madras a fairly steady wind has blown from the comparatively cool surface of the Bay into the hot strip of land lying along the eastern side of the Peninsula In Burma the wind directions have exhibited a well-marked cyclonic circulation around the low pressure overlying that country.

Temperature has undergone a steady rise during the week. The rise has been greater in the north-west than elsewhere and comparatively slight in Southern India, while in Burma the change has been actually reversed, and the thermometer at the close of the week relatively to the average read lower than it did at the commencement. Although, as compared with last week, there has been a decided increase of heat, the mean temperature has not yet reached its average height of the season over the greater part of the country. In Burma there were five days on which the mean temperature was higher than the average, and in Sind, Rajputana, the Punjab, and Madras there was one day, but in all the other Provinces the week was colder than usual throughout.

The following table shows the amount of the temperature variations from the normal average for each day of the week for the principal Provinces of India:

Province.	March			April				Variation for week.
	29th.	30th.	31st.	1st.	2nd.	3rd.	4th.
Burma	+2·5	+2·1	+1·0	+0·6	+0·3	—0·5	—0·3	+0·8
North-West Provinces	—9·3	—8·9	—7·5	—6·9	—3·9	—2·2	—1·5	—5·7
Punjab	—9·3	—6·9	—4·5	—1·3	+1·0	—2·3	—1·3	—3·5
Bombay	—1·0	—0·7	—0·7	—0·8	—0·2	—1·1	—0·8	—0·8

Madras	—1·2	—0·1	—0·9	—0·8	—0·5	—0·3	+0·2	—0·5
Mean variation for whole India	—4·4	—3·9	—3·8	—2·8	—1·7	—1·3	—0·8	...

This table shows, first, that, with the exception of Burma, every Province had a mean temperature for the week lower than usual, the amount of the deficiency ranging from 5½° in the North-West Provinces to ½° in Madras; second, that the mean temperature of the whole Indian region was below the normal for each day of the week, but that the amount of the deficiency steadily decreased from 4½° on the 29th to only about ½° on the 4th.

As mentioned above, the greatest rise of temperature has occurred over North-West India. The figures given in the table show that, as compared with the normal average, there was a rise of 8° between the beginning and end of the week over the North-West Provinces, the Punjab, Sind, and Rajputana. This rise does not, however, fully represent the actual rise of temperature which has taken place, because at this season the average temperature increases decidedly in the space of a week. The following figures show the actual increase at a few representative stations :

	Mean temperature, 29th.	Mean temperature, 4th.	Difference.
Simla	44·8	57·7	+ 12·9
Rawalpindi	60·8	67·8	+ 7·0
Lahore	64·4	72·4	+ 8·0
Agra	73·1	82·3	+ 9·2
Lucknow	72·2	82·9	+ 10·7
Jeypore	71·4	82·3	+ 10·9
Jacobabad	71·8	80·7	+ 8·9

The greatest rise has been at the hill stations, and the maximum temperature at Simla on the 4th April was 16° higher than the maximum reported on the 29th.

Rain.—The rainfall of the week has been exceedingly slight, and has mainly fallen in showers connected with thunderstorms. These showers have been very scattered, and, except in the Central Provinces, the average fall for the week for the districts where rain has occurred has been less than $\frac{1}{10}$ of an inch. The concluding table of the Summary shows that rain has been experienced in 16 of the rainfall divisions, and no rain whatever in 35 of the divisions. In four of the divisions where rain fell the average amount of each division exceeded one-tenth of an inch, while in the other twelve it was less. The only divisions which received any excess of rain were the central and eastern divisions of the Central Provinces.

This comparatively dry week has exercised an appreciable effect on the figures given in the final column of the concluding table which shows the total rainfall since the 1st of March. Though there is still a very large excess for this period over the greater part of the country, the amount is appreciably less than it was last week. In Burma, Assam, Khandeish, Berar, Kattiawar, and the Carnatic the season has been less wet than usual.

As might be anticipated from the statement of the general rainfall, the returns of maximum falls show very few amounts of any importance. The following are the falls exceeding one inch :

The Governor-General in Council has received with the deepest regret confirmation which leaves no room for doubt of the news of the cruel and treacherous murder at Manipur, on the night of the 24th ultimo, of MR J W. QUINTON, C.S.I., Chief Commissioner of Assam, and the following officers who accompanied him under a flag of truce from the Residency to the Palace of the Regent of Manipur ·

- Lieutenant-Colonel C McDowal Skene, D S.O, Commanding the 42nd (Gurkha) Regiment of Bengal Light Infantry.
- Mr. F. St. Clair Grimwood, Indian Civil Service, Political Agent in Manipur.
- Lieutenant W. H. Simpson, Wing Officer, 43rd (Gurkha) Regiment of Bengal Light Infantry.
- Mr. W. H. Cossins, Indian Civil Service, Assistant Secretary to the Chief Commissioner of Assam.

Besides these it has been reported that Mr. W. B. Melville, Superintendent of Telegraphs, Assam Division, and a Signaller, Mr. O'Brien, who accompanied him, were also murdered by the Manipuri rebels at Mayongkhong on the road between Manipur and Kohima.

In MR. QUINTON the State has lost a public servant of long service and varied experience, who had filled with distinction many high and important posts to the complete satisfaction of the Government of India. Colonel Skene was an officer of long and highly distinguished service, who had passed the greater portion of his career on the Assam Frontier. Mr. Grimwood had been attached to the Assam Commission since 1878, and had held the Office of Political Agent in Manipur since April 1889.

The Governor General in Council has taken the necessary steps to exact full and signal retribution for this atrocious outrage, and troops are now converging on Manipur from Burma, Cachar, and Kohima with this object.

By order of the Governor General in Council,

C. J. LYALL,

Secretary to the Government of India.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

REVENUE AND AGRICULTURAL DEPARTMENT.

Weather Review of India for the week ending at 8 a.m. on Saturday, April 11th, 1891.

The weather has undergone a large and important change during the week under review. The high pressure area which has held so steadily during the past cold weather in the extreme north-west, and with which has been associated cold northerly winds and an abnormally low temperature, has to a large extent given way. Pressure has at the same time risen decidedly over the southern parts of the Indian region and fallen over Behar and Oudh, so that gradients for westerly winds have been established over a large part of the Indian region, and conditions have advanced steadily and considerably towards those which prevail during the hot season.

A depression which, though slight and unimportant, had all the main characteristics of the storms of the cold weather advanced over North-West India in the early part of the week. It was preceded on the 5th by a wave of high temperature, and by easterly winds at Jacobabad and Hyderabad. On the 6th the barometer began to fall briskly over the Punjab and Sind, and the depression showed itself over Lower Sind, where temperature remained very high. By the 7th the depression had advanced north-north-eastward to the western desert, and a fairly complete cyclonic circulation prevailed around the storm. The sky was cloudy in the Punjab, but no rain fell. By the morning of the 8th the storm was filling up, and pressure, though higher in Tenasserim than elsewhere, was generally very uniform throughout the Indian region. From this date the gradual change in the distribution noticed above was fairly inaugurated. Pressure remained low over Northern India, while it rose steadily in the south, so that the barometric difference between the south and north increased from day to day, and gradients for westerly winds were formed. On the 5th and 6th, and partly on the 7th, the general wind directions were such as might have prevailed any time during the cold weather, but on the 8th a considerable change occurred. Strong southerly and south-south-westerly winds blew over the Bay and into Bengal, south-westerly and westerly winds had appeared over the Central Provinces, and elsewhere the directions had become variable, and from this date onward the wind circulation became daily more strongly that characteristic of the beginning of the hot weather. As mentioned above, the storm of the 6th and 7th was not accompanied with rain in its immediate neighbourhood, but unsettled weather over a large part of the country succeeded its appearance, and in Southern, Central, and Northern India thundershowers were reported on the 8th, 9th, and 10th, and in Assam on the 11th. As a rule these thunderstorms were not severe, but in the south of the Peninsula on the 9th this rule was departed from, and the rainfall was very heavy.

Temperature.—Accompanying the general change of weather towards the conditions characteristic of the commencement of the hot weather, there has occurred a considerable and general rise of temperature. Of the principal Provinces of India no less than five had a mean average temperature for the week exceeding the normal, while four still exhibited a deficient temperature. This is a great change as compared with the returns of the past four weeks during which Burma alone has steadily had any excess of temperature, and most parts of India have had temperatures largely below the normal. It is probable that the present week marks the close of the period of depression, and that succeeding weeks for some time will show a generally high temperature. It will be remembered that last week the amount of the deficiency over India steadily decreased as the week progressed from about 4½° at the commencement to only about ½° at the close. During the present week the mean temperature of each day has hovered closely about the normal average, and it may probably be fairly expected that the following week will exhibit a general excess

PROVINCE	5th	6th	7th	8th	9th	10th	11th.	Variation for week.
	°	°	°	°	°	°	°	°

Mean variation for whole India	—0 5	0	+0 3	—0 1	—0·3	—0·2	+0 6	...

The figures in the final column of the above table compared with those in the final column of the same table of last week show that in Burma and Madras the mean temperature as compared with the normal average has been steady, but that in all the other Provinces there has been an increase of heat ranging from about 1° in Bombay to 4½° in the North-West Provinces, Sind, and Rajputana, and 5° in Guzerat and Central India.

A steady advance northward has occurred in the position of the highest day temperatures. Thus on the 5th the highest maximum was 107·3° at Cuddapah; on the 6th, 106·7° at Sholapur; on the 7th, 107·3° at Cuddapah; on the 8th, 105·7° at Sholapur; on the 9th, 102·7° at Sholapur; on the 10th, 104·4° at Deesa; and on the 11th, 107·4° at Deesa.

Rain.—As mentioned above, the rainfall of the week has been scattered, and, except in the south, where severe thunderstorms were experienced, the amounts recorded have been light. The table at the close of the summary shows that rain in greater or less amount has fallen in twenty-six of the rainfall divisions, and that no rain whatever has been received in twenty-five divisions. In twelve of the divisions reporting rain the average fall of the division was less than $\frac{1}{10}$ of an inch, so that these divisions may for practical purposes be included among those receiving no rain whatever. Accepting this, the table shows that rain was received during the week in Tenasserim, in East Bengal, and in Assam, but in no other part of North-Eastern or Northern India. Rain was also received over the south of the Peninsula, the Bombay Deccan, Berar, the west of the Central Provinces, and on part of the East Coast, but was not received over the east and centre of the Central Provinces or over a large part of the central parts of the Peninsula. The only divisions recording an excess of rain during the week were Oudh (South), the North-West Provinces (West), Malabar, Madras (South Central), Coorg, Mysore, the Bombay Deccan, Berar, the Central Provinces (West), and Madras (South) In the case of the northern divisions the excess was small and unimportant, but in Southern India it was considerable. The only divisions where the deficiency was large were those in Assam and in the north-west of the Punjab.

The concluding column of the table still shows a large excess of rain since the first of March over the greater part of the country. Burma, Assam, East Bengal, Khandeish, Kattiawar, and a large portion of Madras report a deficiency, and the hill districts of the Punjab have increased the deficiency which had commenced last week.

The following are the records of falls exceeding 2 inches during the week:

REVENUE DEPARTMENT.

A Dictionary of the Economic Products of India.

BY DR. GEO. WATT, C I E.,

Reporter on Economic Products.

Published under the authority of the Government of India in the Revenue and Agricultural Department.

The first four volumes of this work are now ready for issue, and intending subscribers are invited to register their names with the Superintendent of Government Printing, Calcutta.

The Dictionary is intended to deal with the products of India—animal, vegetable, and mineral; each product being treated after a uniform plan, the paragraphs of which give the scientific, vernacular, and European names; habitat or source history; properties and uses, both chemical and industrial; trade statistics; markets, &c. The work is arranged alphabetically according to scientific nomenclature, but commercial and important vernacular names are also given as cross references, so that little difficulty need be experienced in finding the account of a product even when its scientific name is unknown to the reader.

An important feature of the Dictionary consists in the fact that derived information is in every instance given under quotation marks, and with a reference to the original publication. Numerous contributions have, however, furnished the results of new discoveries, and confirmed the vernacular names; so that the Dictionary is not only a complete compilation of published information, but has been brought abreast of the most recent inventions and discoveries.

Volume I contains the letters A and B, and consists of 559 royal pages; Volume II embraces the letter C in 683 pages; Volume III contains the letters D, E, F, and G in 534 pages. Vol. IV, letters G to L in 643 pages. The whole work will, it is expected, be completed in six volumes by 1891; but a seventh volume may also be issued consisting of an Index to all the vernacular and other names contained in the Dictionary; and this as a work of reference, it is hoped, may prove of considerable value.

The price to subscribers will be in India R30 and in England 2 guineas, payable in advance, for the complete set. An extra charge for packing and postage will be made for the set—in India, at 8 annas per volume, and for England at 2 rupees 6 annas per volume.

For copies bound in half calf or half morocco, R6 and 8 shillings, respectively, will be charged extra for the whole sets.

 No copies will be issued to non-subscribers till the work is complete, and no single volume will be sold separately. The price to non-subscribers will be R35 in India and 3 guineas in England, exclusive of packing and postage.

II.—Such Commander shall not, except as hereinafter provided, allow any communication, either with the pilot boat, except orally, or with the shore, or with any other vessel or boat in the harbour.

III.—Immediately on any such arrival being signalled, the Health Officer of the Port shall go alongside the vessel and ascertain by enquiry from the Commander whether any person on board is suffering, or has during the voyage suffered, from plague; and if the Health Officer is satisfied by such enquiry that no person on board is suffering, or during the voyage has suffered, from plague, he shall direct the Commander to take the vessel to the quarantine anchorage duly appointed and notified in that behalf by the Resident, there to remain for a period of seven days from the date of arrival in the harbour. The Health Officer shall also direct the Commander to prohibit during the period for which the vessel remains at the quarantine anchorage as aforesaid all communication, except such as is hereinafter provided for between such vessel and the shore, or other vessels and boats in the harbour.

IV.—If the Health Officer shall have reason to believe at the time when the vessel arrives in the harbour that any person on board is suffering, or during the voyage has suffered, from plague, he shall direct the Commander to take the vessel to the quarantine anchorage as aforesaid, and there to remain for a period of fifteen days from the day of arrival in the harbour; and shall further direct that during such fifteen days intercourse between the said vessel and the shore or other vessels and boats in the harbour shall be prohibited as provided in Rule III.

VI.—When any vessel has been placed in quarantine as aforesaid, the Health Officer may direct the removal of so many of the passengers and crew as may not be suffering from illness, and whose services may not be required on board the vessel, to such particular spots as may from time to time be selected by the Resident as places of quarantine, there to remain for a period of seven days, or, if the vessel has been placed in quarantine for fifteen days, for a period of fifteen days. If a case of plague occurs among such passengers and crew during any such period, they shall remain in a place of quarantine for a period of fifteen days from the date of the occurrence of the last case of such illness.

VII.—Any mails or cargo which may be brought by any vessel so arriving shall be landed under such precautions as the Health Officer may deem necessary to prevent the spread of the disease.

VIII.—It will be the duty of the Port Officer to facilitate the conveyance to all vessels in quarantine of such supplies of provisions, stores, and other articles as may be required by those on board. REVENUE AND AGRICULTURAL DEPARTMENT.

Weather Review of India for the week ending at 8 a.m. on Saturday, April 18th, 1891.

During the greater part of the week under review the weather has been quiet and of the ordinary early hot weather type. The change in the distribution of pressure which was carried out last week, and which resulted in the establishment of the highest pressures over the southern part of the Indian region and of the lowest pressures over the Gangetic plain, has been maintained. Gradients for westerly winds have prevailed over the greater part of the country, but in Bengal the distribution favoured southerly winds, and in the Punjab northerly winds; and winds from these quarters have prevailed locally. In the south of the Peninsula pressure gave way about the middle of the week, and a large shallow low pressure area was formed there, and the winds at all the more southern stations shifted to the eastward. This distribution gave way on the 17th, and was succeeded by very uniform pressures and variable winds. During the greater part of the week the area of lowest pressure lay over the north of the Gangetic plain, the area of greatest depression moving slowly eastward from Oudh, through Behar and North Bengal, to the west of Assam; but on the 14th a shallow depression was shown over the western desert, whence it travelled north-eastward to the line of the hills, which it struck early in the morning of the 15th. During its passage from the neighbourhood of Multan to that of Ludhiana the depression intensified, and on the 15th the lowest pressures throughout India were reported from that part of the Punjab represented by the station of Ludhiana. There is some doubt about the barometric observations on the 14th, but apparently the disturbance on this day was slight, the abnormal depression of the barometer in its neighbourhood being between 0·05″ and 0·075″. On the following day the abnormal depression was about the same in amount, but the barometer had risen fast over the west of the Punjab, and the barometric differences had become much larger. In consequence strong squally winds prevailed throughout the Punjab both on the hills and the plains. Dust and thunder storms were reported from the plains stations, and thunderstorms from the hills. The disturbance apparently passed into the hills and disappeared, and a high pressure area, with northerly winds, spread over North-Western India. The depression over the south of the Peninsula on the 16th was marked by a considerable amount of cyclonic movement of the winds and by widespread thunderstorms over the Peninsula, but the disturbance did not concentrate, and by the 18th was entirely broken up. The rain during the week has mainly fallen during thunderstorms or duststorms; and as the areas of disturbance have at different times during the week affected different parts of India, the rainfall, though light and scattered, has been very widely distributed.

Temperature.—Over nearly the whole country the heat has been greater than usual during the week, the exception being the Province of the Punjab.

A large area of abnormally high temperature overlay the western desert on the 12th, and extended in a less degree over the central parts of the country. The station with the greatest excess of heat was Sambhar with an abnormal excess of 9·1°. On the 13th and 14th the temperature fell over a considerable part of the Indian region, but there was not much change in the position of the area of greatest excess. On the 15th this area had moved eastward to the central parts of the country, and the greatest excess was 5·8° at Ajmere and Indore; on the 16th, the greatest excess was 8·5° at Jubbulpore; on the 17th, 10° at Dhubri; and on the 18th, 8½° at Dhubri. When the area of abnormal heat commenced its easterly advance, it was succeeded by a wave of cold which commenced in the Indus Valley. Dera Ismail Khan on the 15th had the greatest abnormal depression, 9·1°; Rawalpindi on the 16th, 11·2°; Lahore on the 17th, 11°; and Allahabad on the 18th, 8·3°. The highest temperatures recorded on each day were as follows:

12th.—Amraoti	107°	15th.—Cuddapah . .	109°
13th.—Nagpur .	110°	16th.—Thayetmyo . .	107°
14th.—Nagpur . .	110°	17th.—Mandalay .	109°
15th.—Amraoti	109°	18th.—Mandalay . .	107°

The following table shows the variations of temperature from the normal average on each day of the week for the principal Provinces of India:

Mean for whole India .	+1·3	+1·6	+1·7	+1·5	+0·9	—1·1	—1·5	...

This table shows that in the Punjab throughout almost the whole week and in the North-West Provinces, Central Provinces, Central India, Sind, and Rajputana towards the close of the week the mean temperature was below the normal, but that on the whole the temperature of the week in all Provinces, except the Punjab, was higher than usual. For the whole of India the first five days were warmer and the last two days cooler than the normal.

Rain.—The concluding table shows the rainfall of the week. The fall has been scattered, and in general due to thunderstorms, so that the amounts have varied considerably, neighbouring divisions receiving very different falls of rain. The first column of the concluding table shows that twenty-six of the rainfall divisions received rain and twenty-five no rain. Of the twenty-six divisions reporting rainfall, no less than fifteen had less than one-tenth of an inch of rain for the average of the division. Including these fifteen divisions with the twenty-five which had absolutely no rain, it appears that Burma, Bengal, the North-West Provinces, the south, central, submontane, and west divisions of the Punjab, Coorg, the Konkan, Khandeish, Berar, the Central Provinces, Central India, Rajputana, Sind, and the east and south of Madras were rainless, while Assam, the hill and north-west districts of the Punjab, Malabar, Mysore, the Deccan, Hyderabad, and Central Madras all had effective rain. The heaviest rainfall was in Assam, the Surma division receiving an average of 3 and the Brahmaputra division of 1¾ inches of rain Under normal conditions this is the wettest part of the Indian region, and the excess of rain was not large. Column 3 of the table shows an excess of rain in Assam, the hill and north-west districts of the Punjab, Malabar, the Konkan, the Deccan, Berar, and Hyderabad, and a deficiency in all other divisions. The excess was nowhere great. The rainfall of the season, i.e., from March 1st to date, has been considerably short of the normal amount in Burma, Assam, East Bengal, and part of Madras, but has been largely in excess elsewhere.

Except in Assam, the record of heavy falls shows no important amounts. The following are the falls exceeding 2 inches :

6 Each examination is complete in itself. A candidate who has failed in an examination, and presents himself for examination on a subsequent occasion, must undergo the full examination, and furnish a fresh fee and certificates.

7. Passed candidates should apply, not to the Principal of the College, nor to the Accountant-General, Public Works Department, but direct to the Examiner of Public Works Accounts in the Province or Railway under whom they may desire to be employed.

8. It must be distinctly understood that the passing of this examination does not give any claim to an appointment, and that in making appointments, preference will be given to qualified persons who are already employed in the Department.

REVENUE DEPARTMENT.

A Dictionary of the Economic Products of India.

BY DR. GEO. WATT, C.I.E.,

Reporter on Economic Products.

Published under the authority of the Government of India in the Revenue and Agricultural Department.

The first four volumes of this work are now ready for issue, and intending subscribers are invited to register their names with the Superintendent of Government Printing, Calcutta.

The Dictionary is intended to deal with the products of India—animal, vegetable, and mineral; each product being treated after a uniform plan, the paragraphs of which give the scientific, vernacular, and European names; habitat or source history; properties and uses, both chemical and industrial; trade statistics; markets, &c. The work is arranged alphabetically according to scientific nomenclature, but commercial and important vernacular names are also given as cross references, so that little difficulty need be experienced in finding the account of a product even when its scientific name is unknown to the reader.

An important feature of the Dictionary consists in the fact that derived information is in every instance given under quotation marks, and with a reference to the original publication. Numerous contributions have, however, furnished the results of new discoveries, and confirmed the vernacular names; so that the Dictionary is not only a complete compilation of published information, but has been brought abreast of the most recent inventions and discoveries.

Volume I contains the letters A and B, and consists of 559 royal pages; Volume II embraces the letter C in 689 pages; Volume III contains the letters D, E, F, and G in 534 pages. Vol. IV, letters G to L in 643 pages The whole work will, it is expected, be completed in six volumes by 1891; but a seventh volume may also be issued consisting of an Index to all the vernacular and other names contained in the Dictionary; and this, as a work of reference, it is hoped, may prove of considerable value.

The price to subscribers will be in India R30 and in England 2 guineas, payable in advance, for the complete set. An extra charge for packing and postage will be made for the set—in India, at 8 annas per volume, and for England at 2 rupees 6 annas per volume.

For copies bound in half calf or half morocco, R6 and 8 shillings, respectively, will be charged extra for the whole sets

No copies will be issued to non-subscribers till the work is complete, and no single volume will be sold separately. The price to non-subscribers will be R45 in India and 3 guineas in England, exclusive of packing and postage.*

ARMY (ANNUAL) ACT, 1891.

[54 VICTORIA, CHAPTER 5.]

An Act to provide, during twelve months, for the Discipline and Regulation of the Army.

[26TH MARCH, 1891.]

WHEREAS the raising or keeping of a standing army within the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland in time of peace, unless it be with the consent of Parliament, is against law:

And whereas it is adjudged necessary by Her Majesty and this present Parliament that a body of forces should be continued for the safety of the United Kingdom and the defence of the possessions of Her Majesty's Crown, and that the whole number of such forces should consist of one hundred and fifty-three thousand six hundred and ninety-six men, including those to be employed at the depôts in the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland for the training of recruits for service at home and abroad, but exclusive of the numbers actually serving within Her Majesty's Indian possessions:

And whereas it is also judged necessary for the safety of the United Kingdom and the defence of the possessions of this realm that a body of Royal Marine forces should be employed in Her Majesty's fleet and naval service under the direction of the Lord High Admiral of the United Kingdom, or the Commissioners for executing the office of Lord High Admiral aforesaid:

And whereas the said marine forces may frequently be quartered or be on shore, or sent to do duty or be on board transport ships or vessels, merchant ships or vessels, or other ships or vessels, or they may be under other circumstances in which they will not be subject to the laws relating to the government of Her Majesty's forces by sea:

And whereas no man can be forejudged of life or limb, or subjected in time of peace to any kind of punishment within this realm by martial law, or in any other manner than by the judgment of his peers and according to the known and established laws of this realm; yet nevertheless it being requisite for the retaining all the before-mentioned forces and other persons subject to military law in their duty that an exact discipline be observed, and that persons belonging to the said forces who mutiny or stir up sedition, or desert Her Majesty's service, or are guilty of crimes and offences to the prejudice of good order and military discipline, be brought to a more exemplary and speedy punishment than the usual forms of the law will allow:

And whereas the Army Act will expire in the year one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one on the following days:

44 & 45 Vict c. 58.

(a) In the United Kingdom, the Channel Islands, and the Isle of Man on the thirtieth day of April; and

(b) Elsewhere in Europe, inclusive of Malta, also in the West Indies and America, on the thirty-first day of July; and

(c) Elsewhere, whether within or without Her Majesty's dominions, on the thirty-first day of December:

Be it therefore enacted by the Queen's most Excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and Commons, in this present Parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, as follows:

1. This Act may be cited as the Army (Annual) Act, 1891.

Short title.

2. (1) The Army Act shall be and remain in force during the periods hereinafter mentioned, and no longer, unless otherwise provided by Parliament; that is to say,

Army Act (44 & 45 Vict. c. 58) to be in force for specified times.

(a) Within the United Kingdom, the Channel Islands, and the Isle of Man, from the thirtieth day of April one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one to the thirtieth day of April one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two, both inclusive; and

(b) Elsewhere in Europe, inclusive of Malta, also in the West Indies and America, from the thirty-first day of July one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one to the thirty-first day of July one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two, both inclusive; and

(c) Elsewhere, whether within or without Her Majesty's dominions, from the thirty-first day of December one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one to the thirty-first day of December one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two, both inclusive; and the day from which the Army Act is continued in any place by this Act is in relation to that place referred to in this Act as the commencement of this Act.

(2) The Army Act, while in force, shall apply to persons subject to military law, whether within or without Her Majesty's dominions.

(3) A persons subject to military law shall not be exempted from the provisions of the Army Act by reason only that the number of the forces for the time being in the service of Her Majesty, exclusive of the marine forces, is either greater or less than the number hereinbefore mentioned.

Prices in respect of billeting.

3. There shall be paid to the keeper of a victualling house for the accommodation provided by him in pursuance of the Army Act the prices specified in the schedule to this Act

Amendments of Army Act

Amendment of 44 & 45 Vict. c. 58. s. 73 as to confession by soldier of desertion or fraudulent enlistment.

4. Whereas it is expedient that general or other officers commanding military districts should be competent military authorities for awarding forfeitures and deductions on confessions of desertion or fraudulent enlistment by soldiers; be it therefore enacted that—

In section seventy-three of the Army Act, after the words "commander-in-chief or adjutant-general," shall be inserted the words "or any general or other officer commanding a military district."

Explanation of 44 & 45 Vict. c. 58 s. 90 as to discharge or transfer to the reserve

5. Whereas by section ninety, sub-section five, of the Army Act it is enacted as follows:

"A soldier of the regular forces who is discharged on the completion of the term of his original enlistment or his re-engagement, as mentioned in the second sub-section of this section, or is transferred to the reserve, shall be entitled to be conveyed, free of cost, from the place in the United Kingdom where he is discharged or transferred to the place in which he appears from his attestation paper to have been attested, or to any place at which he may at the time of his discharge or transfer decide to take up his residence, and to which he can be conveyed without greater cost," and doubts have been entertained as to the application of this provision in the case of soldiers transferred to the reserve, and it is expedient to remove such doubts; be it therefore enacted that—

To the said sub-section the following proviso shall be added.

"Provided that in the case of transfer to the reserve he shall not be entitled to be so conveyed to any place out of the United Kingdom."

Amendment of 44 & 45 Vict. c. 58. s. 91 as to lunatic soldiers.

6. Whereas the enactment referred to in sub-section three of section ninety-one of the Army Act has been superseded by the Lunacy Act, 1890, and it is expedient to substitute a reference to that Act, be it therefore enacted that—

In section ninety-one of the Army Act for the words "an order by a justice within the meaning of section seventy-two of the Act of the session of the sixteenth and seventeenth years of the reign of Her present Majesty, chapter ninety-seven, intituled 'An Act to consolidate and amend the laws for the provision and regulation of lunatic asylums for counties and boroughs, and for the maintenance and care of pauper lunatics in England,'" shall be substituted the words "a summary reception order within the meaning of the Lunacy Act, 1890."

Amendment of 44 & 45 Vict. c. 58 s. 145 as to liability of soldier for maintenance of wife or child.

7. Whereas by section one hundred and forty-five of the Army Act provision is made for the enforcement of orders for payment by a soldier of the cost of maintenance of his wife or child or of any bastard child of whom he is the putative father, or of the cost of any relief to his wife or child given by way of loan, and doubts have been entertained as to the application of this provision in cases where a man becomes a soldier subsequently to the making of the order, and it is expedient to remove such doubts, be it therefore enacted that—

In sub-section two of section one hundred and forty-five of the Army Act for the words "for payment by a soldier of the regular forces" shall be substituted the words "for payment by a man who is or subsequently becomes a soldier of the regular forces."

Amendment of 44 & 45 Vict. c. 58. s. 146 as to qualification of officer for county council.

8. To section one hundred and forty-six of the Army Act (which disqualifies officers of the regular forces for holding certain offices) the following proviso shall be added:

"Provided that nothing in this section shall disqualify any officer for being elected to or being a member of a county council."

Amendment of 44 & 45 Vict c. 58. s 156 as to certificates of military pensioners and of members of army reserve.

9. Whereas it is expedient to provide penalties for the detention of certificates of military pensioners and of men belonging to the army reserve; therefore to section one hundred and fifty-six of the Army Act the following sub-section shall be added:

"(9) Every person who receives, detains, or has in his possession the identity certificate or life certificate of a person entitled to a military pension or to reserve pay as a pledge or security for a debt, or with a view to obtain payment from the pensioner or person entitled to the pay of a debt due either to himself or to any other person, shall be liable on summary conviction to the like penalty as for an offence under sub-section one of this section, and the certificate shall be deemed to be property within the meaning of this section."

10. Whereas by section one hundred and eighty-three of the Army Act it is provided that an army schoolmaster shall not be liable to be reduced to the ranks, but it is expedient that an army schoolmaster transferred from the ranks should be capable of being reduced to the rank which he held at the date of his transfer; be it therefore enacted that—

Amendment of 44 & 45 Vict. c 58. s. 183 as to army schoolmasters.

In section one hundred and eighty-three of the Army Act after the words "An army schoolmaster shall not be liable to be reduced to the ranks" shall be inserted the words "(unless he has been transferred from the ranks, in which case he may be reduced to the rank which he held at the date of transfer)."

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

REVENUE AND AGRICULTURAL DEPARTMENT.

Weather Review of India for the week ending at 8 a.m. on Saturday, April 25th, 1891.

Over the greater part of India and for the greater part of the week the weather has been very quiet. The barometer has been highest over Tenasserim and the south-east of the Bay and low over Northern India, the area of greatest depression having been at one time over the western desert and at another over the Gangetic plain. The differences of pressure were very small at the commencement of the week, but later on they increased somewhat, though gradients were at no time steep. The largest pressure differences were reported from North-East India. They were accompanied with strong winds from the Bay of Bengal into Bengal, Assam, &c. It was in this region that the weather was most disturbed. On the 19th and 20th the rainfall of North-East India was confined to Upper Burma and Assam; by the 21st it had extended into East Bengal also, and on the 22nd, 23rd, 24th, and 25th scattered rainfall, varying in amount from day to day, was reported from Upper Burma, Assam, and a large part of Bengal. The other regions where rainfall occurred during the week were the south of the Peninsula and part of North-West India In the former region the rain, though never heavy and never widely extended, fell more or less on each day of the week, while, on the contrary, the rain in the north-west was exceedingly slight, very scattered, and was not at all continuous. The whole of the rainfall of the week in all parts of the Indian region occurred during thunder or dust storm disturbances These storms were most severe in Bengal, where a strong moist current of wind from the Bay encountered an easterly current from Assam. The most severe example of a thunderstorm occurred on the evening of the 22nd at Jessore, when the wind was exceedingly high and the rain and hail very heavy.

Temperature.—On the whole the mean temperature of the week under review has been about normal. The exceptions are the North-West Provinces and the Punjab, where there has been a deficiency of about 1½°, and Sind, Rajputana, and Burma, where there has been an excess of about 1¾°. There have been no distinct instances of the passage of waves of heat or cold across the country, and the general distribution of temperature relatively to the normal has been irregular. The same irregularity has been displayed in the records of the position of the highest maximum reading on each day. On the—

20th	,, ,,	111°	,,	Amraoti.
21st	,, ,,	110°	,,	Jacobabad.
22nd	,, ,,	111°	,,	Jacobabad.
23rd	,, ,,	109·5°	,,	Jhansi.
24th	,, ,,	109·8°	,,	Nagpur.
25th	,, ,,	109°	,,	Raipur and Amraoti.

These figures show that during the week the highest maximum varied from 107° to 111°, and that at one time the region of greatest heat was as far east as Mandalay, and at another as far west as Jacobabad.

The following table shows the variations of temperature from the normal average on each day of the week for the principal Provinces of India:

Province	19th.	20th.	21st.	22nd.	23rd.	24th.	25th.	Mean Variation for week.

Mean for whole India	—0·8	—0·1	0	+0·8	0	+0·8	+0·2	+0·12

The above figures show considerable variations of temperature from day to day in North-Western India, but generally small variations elsewhere, and the mean temperature of each day of the week for the whole of India approximated very closely to the normal average.

Rain.—The concluding table of the summary shows that, though rain has been principally confined to North-East India, there has been a fair fall over the south of the Peninsula, and a slight fall in some central districts. The first column of the table shows that rain has fallen during the week in thirty of the rainfall divisions, but that in ten of these divisions the average rainfall was less than one-tenth of an inch, and could not consequently be regarded as effective rainfall. In twenty-one divisions absolutely no rain whatever fell during the week. The divisions within which the average rainfall was either less than $\frac{1}{10}$ of an inch or absolutely nil comprise Lower and Central Burma, South-West and West Bengal, all the North-West Provinces and Punjab divisions, the whole of the central divisions, except the east of the Central Provinces, all the Rajputana, Sind, and Guzerat divisions, the centre and south of the East Coast, and Madras (Central) division. In all the other divisions effective rain fell; but, except in Arakan and East Bengal, Mysore and the Konkan, the East Coast (North) and Hyderabad (South), the average rainfall was less than the normal amount. The heaviest average rainfall during the week was in East Bengal, and exceeded 2 inches. This was followed by the Assam divisions with between 1½ and 1¾ inches. The greatest excess during the week was in East Bengal; the greatest deficiency in Assam, where the rainfall has been much short of the normal.

The seasonal excess—that is, the excess since the 1st of March—though still very large over a great part of the Indian region, is nevertheless growing slowly less under the influence of the short rainfall of the past two or three weeks. In Burma (except Arakan), Assam, North Bengal, Khandeish, Kattiawar, and a large part of Madras the seasonal rainfall has been very decidedly short.

Heavy falls of rain are almost entirely confined to North-East India. The following are the amounts exceeding 2 inches:

REVENUE DEPARTMENT.

A Dictionary of the Economic Products of India.

BY DR. GEO. WATT, C.I.E.,

Reporter on Economic Products.

Published under the authority of the Government of India in the Revenue and Agricultural Department,

The first four volumes of this work are now ready for issue, and intending subscribers are invited to register their names with the Superintendent of Government Printing, Calcutta.

The Dictionary is intended to deal with the products of India —animal, vegetable, and mineral; each product being treated after a uniform plan, the paragraphs of which give the scientific, vernacular, and European names; habitat or source history; properties and uses, both chemical and industrial; trade statistics; markets, &c The work is arranged alphabetically according to scientific nomenclature, but commercial and important vernacular names are also given as cross references, so that little difficulty need be experienced in finding the account of a product even when its scientific name is unknown to the reader.

An important feature of the Dictionary consists in the fact that derived information is in every instance given under quotation marks, and with a reference to the original publication. Numerous contributions have, however, furnished the results of new discoveries, and confirmed the vernacular names; so that the Dictionary is not only a complete compilation of published information, but has been brought abreast of the most recent inventions and discoveries.

Volume I contains the letters A and B, and consists of 559 royal pages, Volume II embraces the letter C in 683 pages; Volume III contains the letters D, E, F, and G in 534 pages. Vol. IV, letters G to L in 643 pages The whole work will, it is expected, be completed in six volumes by 1891; but a seventh volume may also be issued consisting of an Index to all the vernacular and other names contained in the Dictionary; and this as a work of reference, it is hoped, may prove of considerable value.

The price to subscribers will be in India R30 and in England 2 guineas, payable in advance, for the complete set. An extra charge for packing and postage will be made for the set—in India, at 8 annas per volume, and for England at 2 rupees 6 annas per volume.

For copies bound in half calf or half morocco, R6 and 8 shillings, respectively, will be charged extra for the whole sets.

 No copies will be issued to non-subscribers till the work is complete, and no single volume will be sold separately. The price to non-subscribers will be R45 in India and 3 guineas in England, exclusive of packing and postage.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

REVENUE AND AGRICULTURAL DEPARTMENT.

Weather Review of India for the week ending at 8 a.m. on Saturday, May 2nd, 1891.

The weather has been unsettled in three districts of India during the week under review. One district comprised Upper Burma, Assam, and Bengal proper, another a large part of the Punjab and the North-West Provinces, and another the south-west of the Peninsula. Of these three districts, the only one in which unsettled conditions prevailed with any steadiness throughout the week was that in North-East India. On the 26th scattered showers, generally of small amount, were reported, but on the 27th the rainfall concentrated and became heavier, so that rain was reported from nearly every station in East, North, and Central Bengal, and the amounts at Dhubri and Jalpaiguri exceeded 1 inch. On the 27th the rainfall of this region became again scattered and lighter, and so continued till the 30th, when it became more general and heavier, over 1 inch being reported from Chittagong and over ½ inch from Silchar and Sibsagar. On the 1st and 2nd there was no change. The whole of the rainfall in this district fell during the occurrence of thunderstorms and nor'-westers.

The rainfall over the Peninsula was also connected with the occurrence of thunderstorms in that region. On the 26th rain fell in small amounts in Hyderabad, in the Cuddapah district, and at Mercara; on the 27th the rainfall was confined to the extreme south of the Peninsula, and had become heavier, Coimbatore having received over 1 inch. On the 28th the only rainfall reported in this region was at Calicut and Cochin; on the 29th from Calicut, Cochin, Trivandrum, and Wellington; on the 30th from Wellington and Mercara; on the 1st from Mercara and Trivandrum; while on the 2nd there was no rain whatever in this part of the Indian region.

The rainfall of North-West India was apparently due to a sudden burst of unsettled weather, which lasted practically from the 27th to the 30th, and then disappeared. On the 26th slight showers were reported from Northern Rajputana and from Murree. On the 27th rain was reported from Quetta, Jacobabad, Murree, Rawalpindi, and Ranikhet. The fall was thus very scattered, but the sky was becoming overcast and humidity rising over the Punjab, and on the following day the chart showed that a burst of rain had occurred over and along the foot of the hills from Bareilly to Peshawar. On the 29th rain continued, the fall being somewhat heavier and more extensive than on the previous day. On the 30th it had ceased, and the last two days of the week were fine.

The wind directions and the pressure distribution have been somewhat abnormal, the principal variation from the average conditions being over Western India, where pressure has been largely above the average, and where the winds have been more northerly than usual.

Temperature.—Owing to the rainfall described above, the tendency which temperature exhibited last week to go above the average has been suddenly arrested, and, except in Burma, where there has been an excess of 2°, and in Madras, where the mean temperature exactly equals the normal, the weather has been cooler than usual. The most marked coolness was in the Punjab, but in the North-West Provinces the mean deficiency for the week was nearly 4°. This fall of temperature over the greater part of India had the effect of causing the greatest heat of the Indian region to be transferred temporarily to Burma, so that the maximum readings for the whole country on April 30th and May 1st were reported from that country instead of from the central parts of India, as is ordinarily the case at this season of the year. In consequence the absolute maximum temperature for each day has been as follows:

On the 26th Cuddapah registered 109°
,, 27th Kurnool ,, 108·6°
,, 28th Amraoti ,, 106·3°
,, 29th Akola ,, 106°
,, 30th Thayetmyo ,, 108°
On May 1st Thayetmyo ,, 108°
,, 2nd Akola ,, 109°

The following table shows the variations of temperature from the normal average on each day of the week for the principal Provinces of India:

Province.	April					May		Mean Variation for week.

Mean for whole India	—0·5	—0·9	—2·0	—3·1	—2·9	—1·9	—0·6	—15·2

These figures show an excess of nearly 2° in the mean temperature of Burma; that in Madras, and practically in Bombay, Guzerat, and Central India, the mean temperature was about normal; and that in all the other Provinces there was a deficiency, which was greatest in the Punjab and North-West Provinces. For the whole of India the temperature of each day of the week was below the normal. The deficiency was only about ½° on the 26th, increased to 3° by the 29th, and then fell again to ½° by May 2nd.

Rain.—The daily distribution of rainfall in the different parts of India, viz., the north-east, the centre and south, and the north-west, has been described in the earlier parts of the summary. The concluding table shows that as a result of unsettled conditions experienced at different times during the week in different parts of the country, rain has been experienced over almost the whole of India. The only divisions in which there was absolutely no rain were Tenasserim, Lower Burma, Behar (South), Oudh (South), Khandeish, Guzerat, and Rajputana. In addition to these divisions, several had less than one-tenth of an inch of rain as the average fall of the division for the week, and hence for practical purposes may be regarded as having had no rain. Thus arranged, the rainless portions of India are:—Tenasserim, Lower and Central Burma, West Bengal, and the whole of the North-West Provinces, the Konkan, Deccan, Berar, Khandeish, the Central Provinces (Central Division), Guzerat, Kattiawar, Central India, and Rajputana, and the East Coast (South and Central). In all other divisions effective rain fell, but the only regions in which the fall could be called heavy were Bengal proper, Assam, part of the Punjab, and the south-west of the Peninsula. Assam (Surma) had an average fall of 3¼ inches, and East Bengal and Assam (Brahmaputra) of just 3 inches. These are the largest falls reported. The third column of the table shows that in twenty divisions the rainfall has exceeded and in twenty-five has been in defect of the average. The variations are generally small, and the only important defect is in Burma, and the only important excess in East Bengal, part of the Punjab, and Coorg.

The final column of the table still shows a considerable excess in the seasonal rainfall over the greater part of the country. In Burma, Assam, Khandeish, and parts of Madras the fall is short.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

REVENUE AND AGRICULTURAL DEPARTMENT.

Weekly Report on the State of the Season and Prospects of the Crops.

Madras.—For week ending 2nd May.—Rainfall fair in parts of Ganjam, Vizagapatam, Kurnool, Tinnevelly, Salem, Nilgiris, and Malabar; no rain in Godavari, Anantapur, Madras, Chingleput, and South Arcot; and slight elsewhere. In affected tracts, Nanguneri in the Tinnevelly district had 2·60 inches; Palni taluk, Madura, 1·20; Dadvel in Cuddapah, 1 inch; Almakur in Nellore, ½ an inch. Prospects continue unfavourable in Chingleput and North Arcot. Prices falling in Kistna, Bellary, Madras, and Nilgiris; rising in Godavari and Coimbatore; and nearly stationary in other districts. Over 6,000 coolies employed on works in all taluks of Chingleput, 3,526 in Wandiwash, 3,256 in the Kalahasti zemindari in North Arcot, and 1,454 in Tinnevelly. Number fed at kitchens—in the Wandiwash taluk 694, including 113 women and 537 children; in the Kalahasti zemindari, 261, including 210 children.

Bombay.—For week ending 6th May.—Rain in parts of eight districts. Standing crops good. Reaping of late crops completed, except in parts of Sind, Poona, and Sholapur. Preparation for the next season progressing generally.

Bengal.—For week ending 5th May.—Rainfall general in eastern and central districts, and scattered and light in South-West Bengal, South Behar, and Chota Nagpur. Rain has improved prospects of standing crops, and has facilitated cultivation and sowing of paddy and jute. More rain still wanted in some parts. Harvesting of boro or spring rice proceeding with good outturn in Behar. Threshing of rabi crops and weighment of opium about to be closed. Cotton, sugarcane, cheena, mung, and indigo doing well. Mahua has yielded ten to twelve annas outturn. Locusts reported to have damaged young paddy plants in a part of Noakhally. Prices are steady, but a slight tendency to rise is reported from the Behar districts. During the last nine months of 1890 the prices of food-grains have been abnormally high, though not so high as in the previous year. This was due to bad crops in 1888, followed by indifferent crops in 1889, and heavy damage from rain and floods to the autumn crops of 1890. The rabi crop of the latter year was also below the average. There were large exports of rice and wheat to the North-West Provinces and Oudh during the last two quarters of 1890.

North-Western Provinces and Oudh.—For week ending 6th May.—Weather occasionally cloudy, with light rain in Allahabad, Cawnpore, Farukhabad, Sitapur, Moradabad, Aligarh, and Saharanpur districts. Rabi harvest nearly over, except in hill-tracts. Sugarcane and summer crops being irrigated. Markets well supplied. Prices generally stationary, and have fallen in Gorakhpur, Moradabad, Bareilly, Kumaun, Saharanpur, and Jhansi. In Allahabad, however, a tendency to rise is reported. Lucknow and Meerut report large and continuous export.

Punjab.—For week ending 6th May.—Rain has fallen in all districts except Hissar. Prices unsettled in Delhi; falling in Hissar, Umballa, Ferozepore, and Lahore; stationary in Jullundur and Mooltan; rising elsewhere. Harvesting of rabi crops in progress. Threshing commenced. Kharif ploughings and sowings in progress. Prospects of crops are generally fair. Outturn is reported good from Sialkot. Crops reported to have been damaged by locusts in parts of Sialkot, Rawalpindi, and Dera Ismail Khan, and by hail in parts of Lahore. Fodder sufficient in all districts, except Hissar, Delhi, and Jullundur, where it is scarce. Poppy prospects average in Jullundur. The high prices during the last nine months are due to the poor harvest of last year; large purchases for exports to Bombay and Karachi by Ralli Brothers, &c.; damage done by locusts; demand for Black Mountain and Miranzai Expeditions; exhaustion of last year's stock; and corner in grain trade.

Central Provinces.—For week ending 6th May.—Weather hot, with occasional clouds. Moderate rain at Bilaspur. Land being prepared for summer sowings. Sugarcane in good condition. Fodder and water-supply fairly sufficient. Prices generally steady; falling at Raipur.

Burma—For week ending 2nd May.—Reaping of dry-weather crops progressing. Price of paddy has risen slightly in Rangoon, Pegu, Thongwa, Thayetmyo, Shwegyin, and Bhamo; considerably in Pakku and Magwe; and has fallen in Prome, Bassein, and Myingyan; elsewhere prices remain unchanged.

Assam.—For week ending 6th May.—No report received.

Mysore and Coorg.—For week ending 6th May.—Slight rain throughout the Mysore State. Standing crops withering in Kolar district for want of rain. Outturn of harvests favourable. No material change in prices.

Rainfall over 3 inches in Coorg during the week. Coffee blossom set satisfactorily, and prospects generally good. Prices stationary.

Berar and Hyderabad.—For week ending 6th May.—Weather warm in Berar. Land under preparation for kharif crops. Fodder insufficient in four taluks. Water deficient in the Murtazapur, Wun, Darwah, and Kelapur taluks. Prices steady.

No rain in Hyderabad during the week. Harvesting of rabi crops continues. Prices stationary.

Central India.—For week ending 6th May.—Partial rain in Bhopal and Baghelkhand. Prices rising in Bhopal. Fodder and water scarce in parts of Bhopawar.

Rajputana.—For week ending 6th May.—Slight rain in Kotah. Standing crops cut and threshed. Everywhere harvests below average. Cattle dying for want of fodder in the Todgarh district and in poor condition at Bikanir. Pasturage or fodder scarce in three States, and at Ajmere-Merwara and Deoli; sufficient elsewhere. Prices steady generally. About 32,000 acres affected by scarcity, and 8,000 people on relief works in Ajmere and Merwara.

Nepal.—For week ending 30th April.—Weather seasonable. Prospects of crops good. Rain urgently wanted. Prices of food-grains rising at Katmandu.

REVENUE DEPARTMENT.

A Dictionary of the Economic Products of India.

BY DR. GEO. WATT, C.I.E.,

Reporter on Economic Products.

Published under the authority of the Government of India in the Revenue and Agricultural Department,

The first four volumes of this work are now ready for issue, and intending subscribers are invited to register their names with the Superintendent of Government Printing, Calcutta.

The Dictionary is intended to deal with the products of India—animal, vegetable, and mineral; each product being treated after a uniform plan, the paragraphs of which give the scientific, vernacular, and European names; habitat or source history; properties and uses, both chemical and industrial; trade statistics; markets, &c. The work is arranged alphabetically according to scientific nomenclature, but commercial and important vernacular names are also given as cross references, so that little difficulty need be experienced in finding the account of a product even when its scientific name is unknown to the reader.

An important feature of the Dictionary consists in the fact that derived information is in every instance given under quotation marks, and with a reference to the original publication. Numerous contributions have, however, furnished the results of new discoveries, and confirmed the vernacular names; so that the Dictionary is not only a complete compilation of published information, but has been brought abreast of the most recent inventions and discoveries.

Volume I contains the letters A and B, and consists of 559 royal pages; Volume II embraces the letter C in 689 pages; Volume III contains the letters D, E, F, and G in 534 pages. Vol. IV, letters G to L in 643 pages The whole work will, it is expected, be completed in six volumes by 1891; but a seventh volume may also be issued consisting of an Index to all the vernacular and other names contained in the Dictionary; and this as a work of reference, it is hoped, may prove of considerable value.

The price to subscribers will be in India R30 and in England 2 guineas, payable in advance, for the complete set. An extra charge for packing and postage will be made for the set—in India, at 8 annas per volume, and for England at 2 rupees 6 annas per volume.

For copies bound in half calf or half morocco, R6 and 8 shillings, respectively, will be charged extra for the whole sets.

 No copies will be issued to non-subscribers till the work is complete, and no single volume will be sold separately. The price to non-subscribers will be R45 in India and 3 guineas in England, exclusive of packing and postage.

2. The total Revenue in India exceeded the Budget Estimate by Rx. 1,977,160, and the total Expenditure in India fell short of the Estimate by Rx. 833,691. Of this total improvement of Rx. 2,810,851, Rx. 1,189,796 occurred in the Provincial and Local section of the Accounts, the improvement in the Imperial section being Rx. 1,621,055. The Revenue in England also exceeded the Estimate by £121,668, and the Exchange on it by Rx. 51,075; while the Expenditure in England was less by £321,277, and the Exchange on it by Rx. 390,658. The total improvement in England and Exchange was thus Rx. 884,678, which, with the improvement of Rx. 1,621,055 which occurred in the Imperial section of the accounts in India, raised the surplus of Rx. 106,300 anticipated in the Budget Estimate to Rx. 2,612,033.

3. The improvement of Rx. 1,977,160 in the Revenue in India occurred chiefly under the Principal Heads of Revenue, the total of which exceeded the Estimate by Rx. 1,918,000. Of this amount, Rx. 589,699 occurred under Land Revenue and Rx. 323,056 under Opium, the prices obtained at the monthly sales of Bengal opium having been higher than expected; and the remainder was fairly equally distributed over the other heads, with the exception of Tributes from Native States, the realisations of which were slightly less than the Budget Estimate. Of the other groups of heads, Irrigation and Civil Departments showed improvements of Rx. 101,778 and Rx. 92,151, while Miscellaneous and Railways showed decreases of Rx. 85,686 and Rx. 81,023. The variations in the other groups are unimportant.

4. The saving of Rx. 833,691 in the Expenditure in India occurred chiefly under the group Direct Demands on the Revenues, under which the decrease was Rx. 818,297, being almost entirely due to the partial failure of the opium crop. The other decreases were—Salaries and Expenses of Civil Departments, Rx. 73,828; Railway Revenue Account, Rx. 171,836; Army, Rx. 162,905; and Special Defence Works, Rx. 144,564; while there was an increase of Rx 499,500 under Famine Relief and Insurance owing to the partial restoration of the Famine Insurance Grant.

5. The improvement of Rx. 1,189,796 in the Provincial and Local sections of the Accounts was the net result of an increase in the Revenue of Rx. 1,256,336, Rx. 490,000 arising from a postponement to 1890-91 of the special contribution from Provincial to Imperial revenues, and an excess in the total estimated expenditure of Rx. 66,540.

6. The increase of £121,668 in the Revenue in England occurred mainly under Interest, £105,633, and the decrease in expenditure, £321,277, chiefly under Army and Special Defence Works.

7. The saving of Rx. 390,658 in the Exchange on Expenditure in England arose partly from a smaller sterling expenditure and partly from the actual average rate of the year having been higher than that adopted in the Budget Estimate, namely, 1*s.* 4 566*d.* as against 1*s.* 4·38*d.*

8. In the following paragraphs the several heads of Revenue and Expenditure are noticed in detail.

PRINCIPAL HEADS OF REVENUE.

9. Land Revenue.—The collections of the year considerably exceeded both the Budget Estimate of the year and the collections of the previous year. The causes are.—(1) Extended cultivation in Burma following the establishment of order in the country; (2) changes in the dates for payment of instalments in some districts in Burma which had the effect of transferring collections from 1888-89 to 1889-90: this was provided for in the Budget Estimate; (3) the realisation in Bengal, the North-Western Provinces and Oudh, and the Punjab of the Revenue due in 1888-89, but not collected in that year on account of scarcity, and other reasons; (4) revision of settlements in some districts of the North-Western Provinces, the Punjab, the Central Provinces, and Bombay; (5) the collection in March 1890 in some districts of Madras and the Central Provinces of Revenue not due till the following month; (6) large sales of land in Bombay for cultivation, and extensive rabi cultivation in Sind in consequence of good floods and an abundant water-supply.

		Credited under Land Revenue Rx	Portion due to Irrigation Rx	Total Rx.
1888-89	Accounts	23,016,400	071,000	23 687 400
1889-90	Budget	23,391,700	629,400	24,021,100
	Revised	23,817,300	669,400	24,486,700
	Accounts	23 981,400	689,800	24,671,200

The actual collections of the past five official years (including Land Revenue due to Irrigation) and those of the last five revenue years ending with 30th September are as follows:

	Year ending 31st March.	Year ending 30th September.
1885-86	23,155,000	23,021,000
1886-87	23,653,200	23,402,400
1887-88	23,791,800	23,924,700
1888-89	23,687,400	23,961,700
1889-90	24,671,200	24,782,300

10. Opium.—The Bengal Opium Revenue of 1889-90 exceeded that of the previous year by Rx. 89,600, and the Budget Estimate of the year by Rx. 374,600. The number of chests sold was the same as in 1888-89, namely, 57,000, but the average price realised was Rs. 1,136 per chest against 1,120 realised in 1888-89 and Rs. 1,070 assumed in the Budget. The Bombay Opium Revenue was less than that of 1888-89 by Rx. 77,600, and than the Budget Estimate by Rx. 63,100. The number of chests weighed in the year for export to China was 29,042 chests against 29,154 chests in the previous year. The difference is not great, and the falling off in revenue is due to hundis for Rx. 71,143, being the duty on 1,094½ chests weighed in 1887-88, having been realised in 1888-89. The revenue from Excise Opium and other Miscellaneous receipts slightly exceeded that of the previous year and the Budget Estimate, being Rx. 222,500 against Rx. 213,800 in 1888-89, and Rx. 211,000 provided in the Budget Estimate.

		Rx.
1888-89	Accounts	8,562,300
1889-90	Budget	8,260,000
	Revised	8,546,400
	Accounts	8,583,000

After five successive years of bumper opium crops in Bengal the crops seriously failed in 1889-90, the production in the year being only 38,305 chests. The reserve stock, which amounted to 31,010 chests on the 31st December 1890, will be 18,770 chests only on the 31st December 1891.

	Number of chests produced.
1885-86	64 925
1886 87	64 500
1887 88	57 500
1888-89	69 500
1889-90	38,305

11. Salt.—The special causes which unfavourably affected the Salt Revenue in 1888-89 did not operate in 1889-90, and there was a considerable increase in the Salt Revenue in the year, larger than was anticipated in the Budget Estimate.

		Rx.
1888-89	Accounts	7,675 600
1889-90	Budget	8 029 900
	Revised	8 192,500
	Accounts	8,187,700

12. Stamps and Excise.—The revenue under these heads continues to increase. A small part of the increase under Stamps was due to the change made in the law affecting Succession Certificates by Act VII of 1889. In one Province only, Bengal, did the Excise Revenue decrease; the decrease there was due partly to the scarcity prevailing in some districts, and partly to the re-establishment in some districts of central distilleries in place of outstills. The Excise Revenue in all the other provinces increased in consequence partly of general prosperity, and partly of more efficient administration.

		Stamps Rx	Excise. Rx
1888 89	Accounts	3,927 100	4 705 400
1889 90	Budget	3,959,500	4 727,300
	Revised	4,060,500	4,837,400
	Accounts	4,087,900	4,891,900

13. Provincial Rates.—The variations in the revenue under this head generally follow those under Land Revenue. The most important matter affecting this head was the re-imposition of the patwari cess in the North-Western Provinces, with effect from the 1st April 1889. The receipts from it in 1889-90 amounted to Rx. 228,600 against the estimate of Rx. 200,000.

		Rx.
1888-89	Accounts	3,054 300
1889-90	Budget	3,258 000
	Revised	3,345 800
	Accounts	3,410,100

14. Customs—Import duties.—The receipts of 1889-90 exceeded the Budget Estimate and the receipts of 1888-89 by Rx. 50,100 and Rx. 53,600 respectively. The increase over the Budget Estimate is ascribed to larger importations of kerosine oil generally, of arms and ammunition in Bengal, and of spirits in Bombay.

Total Customs Revenue

		Rx.
1888-89	Accounts	1,332,800
1889-90	Budget	1,418,400
	Revised	1,487,300
	Accounts	1,506,700

Export duties.—The receipts from Export duties show an increase of Rx. 107,600 over those of 1888-89, and of Rx. 26,400 over the Budget Estimates. The increase is due to an exceptionally good rice crop and consequent large exports from Burma. In Bombay also the exports increased; while in Bengal a poor crop and consequent high prices diminished the exports.

15. Assessed Taxes.—The collections in almost all the provinces showed a satisfactory improvement, due almost entirely to revision of assessments. In Burma a part of the increase is ascribed to increase of Government establishments in the country, and the extended area over which the tax was levied in Lower Burma.

16. Forest Revenue.—The considerable improvement of the revenue over that of 1888-89 and the Budget Estimate occurred chiefly in Burma, and is due generally to rising prices and an exceptionally favourable season for floating down timber. There were increases over the actuals of the previous year and the Budget Estimates also (1) in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh owing to the closing of the Nepal forests, a larger demand for railway sleepers and scantlings and for other timber, and the prevalence of higher prices for timber; (2) in Bombay owing to indents for firewood by certain owners of cotton mills newly established in the Hyderabad District, and to larger supplies of firewood to the North-Western Railway; and (3) in Bengal owing to an unexpected demand for timber in Jalpaiguri and the Sundarbuns. The variations in the other provinces were unimportant.

18. Tributes.—The decrease compared with the Budget was due mainly to the non-realisation of tribute from the Shan States in Burma The decrease was partially counterbalanced by larger receipts in other Provinces, some being due to changes in the dates of payment or method of adjustment of the tribute, and others to the recovery of arrears.

21. Land Revenue.—The charges of 1889-90 exceeded those of the previous year by Rx. 110,200. The excess occurred mainly (1) in Burma owing to the employment of larger establishments, to more extended survey operations in the country, and to larger collections of Land Revenue necessitating larger payments of commission; and (2) in the Punjab and Madras owing to larger payments on account of allowances to district and village officers. The charges also exceeded the Budget Estimate in Burma and Madras owing to the causes mentioned above, but the excesses were more than counterbalanced by savings in other Provinces, chiefly under Charges of District Administration and Survey and Settlement.

22. Opium.—It has been explained in previous years that the expenditure under this head depends on the quantity of opium produced in Bengal. As stated in paragraph 10, the production of Bengal opium in 1889-90 was exceptionally low, and the expenditure was accordingly smaller than that of the previous year by Rx. 992,800, and than the Budget Estimate by Rx. 759,200.

23. Salt.—An unfavourable season for operations at the Sambhar lakes, smaller excavations in the Punjab mines on account of the existence of large stocks at the beginning of the year, smaller purchases of salt in Bombay, and the manufacture of only a small portion of the quantity of salt of which the Madras Government contemplated the manufacture account for the saving of Rx. 49,200 as compared with the Budget Estimate of expenditure. The expenditure in the year was practically the same as in 1888-89.

24. Stamps, Provincial Rates, Customs, Assessed Taxes, and Registration.—The fluctuations are unimportant, and do not call for special notice, except that the supplies of stamps from England were smaller in 1889-90 than in 1888-89, and that the discontinuance, with effect from the 1st October 1889, of the allowances formerly paid to lambardars and patwaris in the Punjab for collecting the local rate has slightly reduced the charges under Provincial Rates.

25. Excise.—Larger establishments necessitated by the re-establishment of central distilleries in Bengal and the extension of the tree-tax system in Madras, a portion of these only having been provided for in the Budget Estimate, account for the increase in the expenditure in 1889-90 compared with both the Budget Estimate and the actuals of the previous year.

INTEREST.

27. Revenue.—The excess over the Budget Estimate occurred in England, and was due to the investment of the cash balances which were much higher than anticipated when the Budget Estimate was framed, and to the receipt of a premium on the 3 per cent. stock issued. In India the receipts fell short of the estimate on account of smaller receipts from Guaranteed Railway Companies for interest on overdrawn capital. The sterling Revenue in England was practically the same as in 1888-89. The Revenue in India exceeded that of 1888-89 chiefly because of the additions to the loans to the Calcutta and Bombay Port Trusts.

28. Expenditure.—The expenditure in India was less by Rx. 42,700 than the Estimate mainly because a loan of Rx. 2,000,000 only was raised during the year, whereas provision was made in the Estimates for a loan of Rx. 2,500,000; and the Estimate also allowed for a discount of 2 per cent. on the loan, whereas it was raised at about par. The excess over the payments of 1888-89 is due to the additions to the public debt of the loans raised in 1888-89 and 1889-90. It would have been larger by Rx. 101,900 but for the payment for 1888-89 of arrears amounting to Rx. 54,900, and the reduction of the payments in 1889-90 by Rx. 47,000 owing to a change in the dates fixed for payment of interest on the Gwalior Loan. The expenditure in England was less than the Budget Estimate by £18,900. This was due to temporary loans not being required, for the interest on which £10,000 was provided, and to less 3 per cent. stock than was estimated having been issued. The expenditure in England was higher than that of 1888-89 by £22,500. This is the net result of the increase caused by the additional interest payable on the loan raised in 1888-89 for the purchase of the Oudh and Rohilkhand Railway, and on that raised in 1889-90 for advances to Railway Companies, and of the decrease caused by the non-recurrence of the exceptional payments of 1888-89 connected with the conversion of India 4 per cent. stock into 3½ per cent. stock, and with the raising of the loan for the purchase of the Oudh and Rohilkhand Railway, and by the reduction of the interest charges by the conversion operations mentioned. The excess on account of these special payments was to some extent counterbalanced by an increase in 1889-90 on account of interest.

29. Interest on other Obligations.—The interest on Savings Bank Deposits is the most important item coming under this head. The interest on them paid in 1889-90 was Rx. 11,600 more than in 1888-89; but this was more than counterbalanced by decreases in the payments for the King of Oudh's charities and for Railway Funds; and the total charges were slightly less than in the previous year. The charges were Rx. 19,600 less than the Budget Estimate. This was due to the balances in the Savings Banks having been reduced to a greater extent than was anticipated by the reduction of the maximum and yearly limits of these deposits made with effect from the 1st April 1889; the transactions of the year resulted in a net withdrawal of Rx. 362,900 against net deposits of Rx. 656,300, and Rx. 685,200 in 1887-88 and 1888-89.

REVENUE.

30. Post Office.—The Revenue under this head is steadily increasing. The falling off in the Accounts as compared with the Budget Estimate is apparent only, being due to a change in the date for crediting as revenue in the accounts (1) the value of postage stamps sold to the public through Postmasters; and (2) the amount of postage due on articles remaining undelivered at the end of the year.

32. Mint.—The imports and coinage of silver during the last part of the year were large. The increase in the receipts over those of the previous year and the Budget Estimate is due to the large coinage of silver, and to the higher gain on copper coinage resulting from the reduced price of copper consequent on the collapse of the syndicate which kept up the price of copper, and from an increase in the amount of copper coin passed into circulation.

EXPENDITURE.

33. Post Office.—The Expenditure in India, like the Revenue, increases yearly with the extension of the operations of the Post Office. The saving on the Budget Estimate occurred in England, and was caused partly by a reduction on the annual payment to the English Treasury in connection with the Mail Subsidies, but chiefly by the supplies of stores being smaller than anticipated.

39. Law and Justice—Jails.—The increase in the expenditure was due chiefly to higher expenditure on jail manufactures, to the opening of new jails in Burma, to an increase in the jail population in Bengal, the North-Western Provinces and Oudh, and Bombay, and to the high price of food-grains in Bengal and the North-Western Provinces during the year.

The excess over the previous year occurred chiefly in Upper Burma owing to the employment of a larger number of punitive Police, to the arrival during the year of larger levies recruited in India, and generally to the greater strength of the force actually on duty; and in Bengal to the transfer of the Presidency and Suburban Police to Government from the Municipality. The saving in the Budget Estimate occurred principally in Burma and Madras.

Excluding this, the expenditure in India exceeded the actuals of 1888-89 by Rx. 10,500, but fell short of the estimate by Rx. 16,300. This is accounted for by the fact that in 1888-89 large arrears of the Amir's subsidy were drawn, while in 1889-90 a portion of the subsidy due was not drawn during the year The saving in the Budget Estimate on this account was, however, to some extent counterbalanced by the expenditure on account of the Anglo-Siamese Mission, for which no provision was made in the estimates.

In India the Budget Estimate for survey charges was exceeded owing to the transfer of survey parties from the Central Provinces to Burma, where the scale of expenditure is higher, and to the organisation of new parties to accompany the Anglo-Siamese Boundary Commission and the Chin-Lushai Expedition.

Excluding this item, the receipts in India fell short of the Budget Estimate and the actuals of the previous year by Rx 9,400 and Rx. 13,700. The decrease occurred in the subscriptions to the Military, Military Orphan, and Medical Retiring Funds, which are declining with the retirement of old subscribers, the funds being closed to new members. The increase in the Budget Estimate of the receipts in England occurred mainly in the receipts on account of the Military funds.

56. Net Earnings —There was a considerable improvement in the net earnings of State Railways compared with both the Budget Estimate and the actuals of the previous year. It was due mainly to a large increase in the traffic on the North-Western Railway and to smaller increases on the Eastern Bengal and the Rajputana-Malwa Railways. A part of the improvement over the actuals of the previous year was also due to additions to the open mileage of the Railways. There was, however, a considerable decline in the net earnings of the Guaranteed Railways compared both with the actuals of the previous year and with the Budget Estimate. The decline occurred on the Great Indian Peninsula Railway, the decrease on that line being counterbalanced to a small extent by an increase on the other lines.

58. Other Expenditure.—The decrease occurred in the surplus profits of Guaranteed Railways owing to the falling-off in the traffic on the Great Indian Peninsula Railway. Under Miscellaneous Railway Expenditure there was an increase of Rx. 78,500 and Rx. 66,600 over the actuals of the previous year and the Budget Estimate owing to the commencement of the survey of several new projects, notably the East Coast Railway, and to the adjustment under this head of Rx. 42,400 representing the payment of Abt engines and permanent-way material obtained for the Bolan high level line.

BUILDINGS AND ROADS.

62. Revenue.—The increase in 1889-90 over the Budget Estimate and the actuals of the previous year is due to a special receipt from the sale of the Barrakur Iron Works to the Bengal Iron and Steel Company.

63. Expenditure.—The expenditure of 1889-90 was more than that of the previous year by Rx. 101,500, due mainly (1) to larger grants having been assigned from Provincial Funds in the Central Provinces, Lower Burma, and the Punjab for expenditure on roads and buildings; (2) to increased expenditure in the Military Works Department on fortifications, lines of military communications, and buildings for Native troops; and (3) to the expenditure from Incorporated Local Funds in Bengal having increased considerably in consequence of famine relief works having been undertaken in certain districts. The charges for Imperial Civil Works decreased by Rx. 116,500 owing to the completion of frontier roads in the Punjab, the Surveyor General's Office in Calcutta, and the Viceregal Residence at Simla.

	Accounts	5,412,200

As compared with the Budget Estimate, the actuals show a decrease of Rx. 70,200, which was principally due to the expenditure on English stores having been over-estimated, and to the progress on a number of works not having been so great as was anticipated. There was an excess of Rx. 33,700 over the Budget of Incorporated Local Funds owing mainly to famine relief works undertaken in some districts in Bengal after the estimate had been prepared.

ARMY.

REVENUE.

64. The decrease in the Revenue in 1889-90 as compared with that of the previous year occurred chiefly under Commissariat receipts, in the sale proceeds of provisions and stores, the issues of malt liquor and rum to British troops, and the value of stores supplied to other departments.

EXPENDITURE.

65. India.—The accounts of 1888-89 include Rx. 631,600 on account of the extra charges for Upper Burma and Rx. 374,300 on account of the Sikkim, Hazara, and other special expeditions, while the accounts of 1889-90 include Rx. 435,800 on account of Upper Burma and Rx. 429,200 on account of the Chin-Lushai and other expeditions. These account for a decrease of Rx. 140,900' in 1889-90 compared with the previous year. Excluding these, the expenditure in 1889-90 exceeded that of 1888-89 by Rx. 272,400 chiefly on account of an expenditure of Rx. 209,700 for mobilisation purposes. A portion of the excess was also due to the purchase of additional remounts and country-bred young stock and of the premises occupied by the Remount Depôt at Garden Reach, while there were some reductions under Commissariat Supplies and Services and Ordnance Stores supplied to other departments.

	Accounts	14 944,100

As compared with the Budget Estimate, the actuals showed a saving of Rx. 164,200 in the Upper Burma charges and of Rx. 317,900 in other charges chiefly owing to the rate of exchange for the payment of British troops having been ½*d*. higher than that assumed in the Budget, and to both the British and Native armies being below their expected strength; but there was an excess of Rx. 319,200 on account of the Chin-Lushai and other expeditions.

66. England.—The fluctuations are due to a special payment of £197,900 made to the War Office in connection with the awards made by Lord Northbrook's Committee on account of the Home Effective charges of British Forces serving in India, for which a provision of £50,000 only was made in the Budget Estimate, and to a lapse of £184,200 in the grant for stores caused mainly by the delay in the supply of magazine rifles and 12-pr. breech-loading guns.

SPECIAL DEFENCE WORKS.

67. The decrease of Rx. 100,100 in the total expenditure compared with that of the previous year was mainly due to several works having approached completion, in particular the Baleh-Regi-Ghazaband defensive works; to smaller payments in England on account of armaments for defensive purposes, and the consequent reduction in the charges for loss by exchange. The actuals fell short of the Budget Estimate by Rx 413,400 owing chiefly to smaller payments in England on account of armaments and stores than had been anticipated, and to the postponement of certain works pending consideration of estimates submitted.

CAPITAL EXPENDITURE.

68. Railways.—The expenditure in 1888-89 was exceptionally low owing to the transfer of the Katni-Umaria and Sindia State lines to Companies, in consequence of which the capital outlay on the Railways to the dates of transfer was passed on to the Companies by deduction from the total capital expenditure of the year. The considerable lapse in the Budget Estimate of 1889-90 occurred chiefly on the Villupuram-Guntakul and North-Western Railways.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

The main object of this Bill is to declare certain Courts in India having unlimited civil jurisdiction to be Colonial Courts of Admiralty in pursuance of the Colonial Courts of Admiralty Act, 1890 (53 & 54 Vict, c. 27), published in the Gazette of India, 6th September, 1890, page 654

2. The Bill, like the English Act, is not intended to take away any jurisdiction of any High Court of Judicature in India On the contrary, the Bill will, so far as the Admiralty and Vice-Admiralty jurisdictions of those Courts are affected, extend and improve them.

3. Besides the High Courts of Judicature at Calcutta, Madras and Bombay, it is proposed that there shall be three other Colonial Courts of Admiralty, namely

(a) the Court of the Recorder of Rangoon ;

(b) the Court of the Resident at Aden ; and

(c) the District Court of Karachi.

4. Under the English Act of 1890, a first appeal from the Court of the Recorder of Rangoon will lie to the Calcutta High Court ; from the Court of the Resident at Aden direct to Her Majesty the Queen in Council ; and from the District Court of Karachi to the Sadr Court in Sind. There is an ultimate appeal in all cases to Her Majesty the Queen in Council.

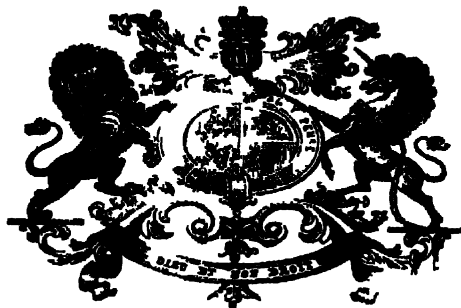

5. The Governor General in Council has accepted the opinion of the Governor of Bombay in Council, and the unanimous opinion of the Hon'ble the Chief Justice and Judges of the Calcutta High Court, that the jurisdiction of Colonial Courts of Admiralty in India should not be limited territorially or otherwise

ABSTRACT OF THE PROCEEDINGS OF THE COUNCIL OF THE GOVERNOR GENERAL OF INDIA, ASSEMBLED FOR THE PURPOSE OF MAKING LAWS AND REGULATIONS UNDER THE PROVISIONS OF THE ACT OF PARLIAMENT 24 & 25 VICT CAP 67

The Council met at Viceregal Lodge, Simla on Thursday, the 14th May, 1891.

BANKRUPTCY AND INSOLVENCY BILL

The Hon'ble SIR ALEXANDER MILLER moved that he be substituted for Sir Andrew Scoble as a member of the Select Committee on the Bill to amend and consolidate the Law of Bankruptcy and Insolvency in British India He explained that an immense mass of papers had been put into his hands with respect to the Bill, and, although every effort would be made to go on with it, he did not expect to be able to summon the Select Committee during the present season It was, however desirable that his name should now be substituted for that of Sir Andrew Scoble

The Motion was put and agreed to

INDIAN MERCHANT SHIPPING ACT, 1880, AMENDMENT BILL

The Hon'ble SIR DAVID BARBOUR moved that the Hon'ble Sir Alexander Miller be substituted for Sir Andrew Scoble as a member of the Select Committee on the Bill to amend the Indian Merchant Shipping Act, 1880.

The Motion was put and agreed to

BANKERS' BOOKS EVIDENCE BILL

The Hon'ble SIR ALEXANDER MILLER moved that he be substituted for Sir Andrew Scoble as a member of the Select Committee on the Bill to amend the Law of Evidence with respect to Bankers' Books, and that the Hon'ble Mr. Hutchins be added to the Committee. He said that the Bill was, he thought, nearly ready to be passed, and he hoped that with the help of the Hon'ble Mr. Hutchins he might be able to pass it at an early meeting of the Council.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

COLONIAL COURTS OF ADMIRALTY (INDIA) BILL, 1891.

The Hon'ble SIR ALEXANDER MILLER also moved for leave to introduce a Bill to declare certain Courts in British India to be Colonial Courts of Admiralty. He said:

"The Bill is, I think, in the hands of all hon'ble members, and I may say that it is required because an Act of Parliament has been passed which, without our aid, might give rise to a good deal of confusion. As I read the Act, if we pass this Bill, we will provide that certain Courts, which it is desirable should have admiralty jurisdiction, shall be Colonial Courts of Admiralty: if we do not pass such a measure, then the English Act, of its own force, will make every District Court in the country a Colonial Court of Admiralty on the 1st of July next, a result which might be very inconvenient.

"The only other observation which I have to make on the Bill—unless any hon'ble member has a question to ask—is that we state in the Statement of Objects and Reasons that under the English Act of 1890 certain appeals will lie. It seems to me that under the Act of 1890 those appeals will only lie if we say nothing; so long as we do not interfere with the ultimate appeal to the Queen in Council we may create such intermediate appeals as we think fit: but it is probably desirable that we should say nothing on the present occasion.

"If any difficulty arises regarding these appeals, or it is thought desirable hereafter that an appeal should lie to any other Court than those named, it seems to me that it will then be soon enough for us to take up that question."

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble SIR ALEXANDER MILLER also introduced the Bill and moved that it be taken into consideration.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble SIR ALEXANDER MILLER also moved that the Bill be passed.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Council adjourned sine die.

MEANING OF THE TERM DOMICILED AS USED IN RULE 3 OF THE RULES FOR THE REGULATION OF APPOINTMENTS IN THE SECRETARIAT CLERICAL SERVICE OF THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA AND ATTACHED OFFICES.

No. 14-Pub / 898-901.

Extract from the Proceedings of the Government of India in the Home Department (Public),—under date Simla, the 14th May 1891.

Home Department Notification No 1817, dated the 3rd July 1888, publishing rules for the regulation of appointments in the Secretariat clerical service of the Government of India and attached offices.

RESOLUTION.

By paragraph 3 of the Resolution cited in the preamble, it is provided that the examination of candidates for the Secretariat clerical service at Allahabad shall be confined to persons domiciled in the North-Western Provinces, Oudh, the Central Provinces, Rajputana, and Central India, and that at Lahore to persons domiciled in the Punjab and Baluchistan.

As some misapprehension appears to exist as to the meaning of the term domiciled in the paragraph just referred to, the Governor General in Council considers it desirable to explain that the word is used in its ordinary legal sense,* and consequently that no person can be considered to be domiciled in any of the provinces enumerated unless he has fixed the habitation of himself and his family in that province, not for a mere special or temporary purpose, but with the intention of making it his permanent home. Candidates who desire to compete for vacancies offered for competition at Allahabad and Lahore will in future be required to prove to the satisfaction of the Secretary to the Board of Examiners that they are domiciled in one of the provinces, permanent residence in which would entitle them to appear at either of those centres. Natives of Bengal who are temporary residents of, and not domiciled in, any of the provinces enumerated in paragraph 3 of the Resolution of 3rd July 1888, will be permitted to present themselves at the examinations at Allahabad and Lahore, but they will be treated as competing for the vacancies offered at Calcutta, and not for those offered at Allahabad and Lahore.

* Vide the Indian Succession Act, 1865, Part II

ORDER.—Ordered, that a copy of this Resolution be forwarded to the Governments of Bengal, North-Western Provinces and Oudh, and the Punjab for information; that a copy be forwarded to the Secretary to the Board of Examiners, Calcutta, for information and guidance; and that the Resolution be published in the Supplement to the Gazette of India for general information.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

REVENUE AND AGRICULTURAL DEPARTMENT.

Weather Review of India for the week ending at 8 a.m. on Saturday, May 9th, 1891.

The feebly unsettled conditions which prevailed during last week have continued during the week under review. The three regions, viz., North-East India, the west of the Peninsula, and the Punjab, which had thundershowers last week, have had thundershowers again this week. In the first region the showery weather has been almost continuous throughout the week; in the second region the showers were fairly continuous, while in the third region they occurred principally during the existence of a shallow depression over the western desert at the close of the week.

The barometer has been very unsteady over Northern India during the week, the changes being often considerable, and varying in direction from day to day. On most occasions a large area of uniformly low pressure has been reported from the western desert and the Gangetic plain, but towards the close of the week the depression over the western desert intensified, and a disturbance originated. As soon as the rain occasioned by this disturbance fell, there occurred a brisk increase of pressure in the north-west, and an area of high readings was formed off the north-west of the Punjab, while a small centre of depression appeared over Oudh.

The winds have been generally variable over North-West India and the Gangetic plain, northerly over the west of the Peninsula and at times over North-West India, southerly over the Bay and Lower Bengal, and easterly in Assam, Northern Bengal, and Behar. The force has been fresh to strong at the head of the Bay and on the West Coast. The northerly winds over the Punjab, Rajputana, and down the West Coast were unusual, but in other parts of the Indian region the general wind directions were fairly normal.

Temperature.—The general temperature for the whole of the Indian region for the week has been somewhat above the normal average. On the 6th, 7th, and 8th the excess was about 1°; on the 3rd, 4th, and 5th it was about ½°, and on the 9th there was a trifling deficiency. There have been no distinctly marked waves of temperature passing across the country, and the general distribution has been somewhat irregular. There has, however, been a fairly steady and continuous excess in Madras, Burma, Bengal, and the North-West Provinces, and a more or less continuous deficiency in North-Western and Central India.

Province	May 3rd.	4th.	5th.	6th.	7th.	8th.	9th.	Mean variation for week.
Burma	+2·5	+1·9	+2·0	+2·7	+2·0	+2·6	+3·0	+2·4
Bengal	+0·9	+3·2	+3·3	+3·9	+3·3	+2·1	+2·1	+2·7
North-West Provinces	0	+2·6	+0·8	+0·9	+1·9	+4·0	+2·9	+1·9
Punjab	—4·8	—2·6	—1·8	—0·2	+1·5	+1·1	—9·5	—2·3
Bombay	+1·1	—0·3	+0·3	—0·3	—0·5	—0·2	+0·4	+0·1
Berar and Central Provinces	+2·2	—1·9	—0·7	+0·2	0	—1·0	0	—0·2
Guzerat and Central India	+0·1	+0·4	—0·1	+0·3	+0·1	—0·2	+0·3	+0·1
Sind and Rajputana	+3·7	—2·3	+0·5	+0·4	+1·6	—0·8	—1·7	+0·2
Madras	+0·3	+0·5	+1·2	+1·1	+1·6	+1·4	+1·3	+1·1
Mean for whole India	+0·7	+0·2	+0·6	+1·0	+1·3	+1·0	—0·1	+0·7

The above figures show that over North-East India the mean temperature of the week has been between 2° and 3° above the normal and over Madras 1° above, while in the Punjab it has been 2½° below the normal, and in the other Provinces the variations have been small. Except in North-West India, the variations from day to day have generally been small.

The region of greatest heat has shifted about the country considerably. It was apparently during the earlier part of the week advancing towards North-West India, but the sudden fall of temperature accompanying the rainfall over the Punjab caused it to retreat quickly eastward, so that, while on the 7th the highest maximum was reported from Montgomery, on the 8th it was reported from Allahabad. The following are the highest readings reported on each day of the week;

On the 3rd 109·5° at Hoshangabad.
" 4th 109·4° " Allahabad
" 5th 108·4° " Allahabad.
" 6th 109·8° " Jacobabad.
" 7th 109·9° " Montgomery
" 8th 110·4° " Allahabad
" 9th 109·9° " Allahabad.

These figures show that the extreme of heat was steady throughout the week.

Rain.—The observations of the present week, like those of last week, show that rain has been experienced over by far the greater part of the country. In only twelve divisions has no rain whatever been experienced, while in no less than thirty-nine some rain has fallen, though in the case of fifteen of these divisions the average rainfall has been less than one-tenth of an inch. The regions where there has been no rainfall, or an average rainfall of less than one-tenth of an inch, comprise roughly Lower and Central Burma, Western Bengal, the greater part of the North-West Provinces and the Central Provinces, Guzerat, Kattiawar, Sind, Rajputana, and one or two divisions in the Punjab and on the East Coast. Though this description shows that the rainfall has been fairly general, the third column of the table indicates that it has not been by any means heavy. In only nine divisions has the average fall of the division exceeded the normal average, and then only by small amounts, except in the case of Coorg, where the excess is nearly 1 inch. On the other hand, the deficiency, besides being general, is in some cases large. Thus in Tenasserim, Lower Burma, Assam (Surma), and East and Deltaic Bengal the deficiency varies between 1 and 1½ inches.

The final column of the table shows that the deficient rainfall of the past week or two is beginning to exercise a considerable influence on the relation between the actual and average seasonal rainfall Hitherto there has been a very large excess over nearly the whole of the Indian region; but this excess is now steadily decreasing, while the districts over which the seasonal rainfall was deficient are steadily increasing. In Lower Burma there has been no rain since the 1st of March, and all over Burma, Assam, and the neighbouring parts of Bengal the seasonal rain is in considerable defect. In Khandeish, Kattiawar, and parts of Rajputana and Madras there is also a considerable deficiency.

Most of the rainfall of the past week occurred during thunderstorms. It was hence scattered, and the returns of maximum falls show great variability in the amounts received.

The following is the record of the principal large falls:

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

FOREIGN DEPARTMENT.

Simla, the 15th May, 1891.

The following selection of papers relating to the Manipur outbreak are published for general information.

H. M. DURAND,
Secretary to the Government of India.

Telegram, dated the 22nd September 1890.

From—The Chief Commissioner of Assam, Silchar,
To—The Foreign Secretary, Simla.

Following telegrams received this morning from Manipur Political Agent:—"22nd, No. 4. Maharaja's brothers attacked Palace during night. Maharaja fled to Residency. Shall defend him as long as possible if attacked. 22nd, No. 5. Senapati and two brothers in possession of Palace. Jubraj and three brothers with Maharaja at Residency; only 65 rifles besides escort. Please instruct how to act. Do not anticipate attack on Residency at present, but Maharaja and brothers are preparing to attack Senapati if they can collect men. No loss of life as Maharaja fled." Chief Commissioner has sent the following reply, having arranged with the General Officer Commanding now here to move a detachment from Kohima if necessary:—"Your telegrams of to-day. Protect the Residency. Endeavour to mediate between the parties, and, if necessary, wire for troops to Kohima. Commanding Officer has been authorized to send you 200 rifles. Defend yourself, but do not assume the offensive without informing me of the reasons on which you recommend it, and obtaining orders."

Telegram No. 1994-E, dated the 22nd September 1890.

From—The Foreign Secretary, Simla,
To—The Chief Commissioner of Assam, Silchar.

Your telegram 22nd regarding attack on Manipur Palace. Your instructions and actions are approved.

Telegram, dated the 24th September 1890.

From—The Chief Commissioner of Assam, Badarpur,
To—The Foreign Secretary, Simla.

Your 1994-E of 22nd. Political Agent wires:—Begins—"Maharaja has formally abdicated in favour of Jubraj, and goes to Brindaban as a fakir. This is his own wish. I told him I could guarantee his personal safety at Residency, but refused to allow him to collect armed men in Residency ground; also told him, if once abdicated, he could not return to Manipur or Cachar; but he persists in his resolve. The Senapati agrees to supply Maharaja with all necessaries for journey. This seems to me best solution. Jubraj has held aloof from both sides, and could therefore be acknowledged Maharaja, if you approve. Maharaja leaves to-night. Am sending escort 41 rifles, also insisting on Pucca Sena going too. He is the primary cause of all the trouble."—Ends. I have replied as follows:—Begins—"Yours of yesterday. Jubraj may be acknowledged as Regent till sanction of Government is received. Send full report of all the circumstances, and wire if Maharaja and Pucca Sena have gone."—Ends.

No. 4209-P., dated Shillong, the 9th October 1890.

From—F. C. DAUKES, Esq., Officiating Secretary to the Chief Commissioner of Assam,

To—The Secretary to the Government of India, Foreign Department.

To Foreign, dated 22nd September 1890.
From Foreign, No. 1994-E., dated 22nd September 1890.
To Foreign, dated 23rd September 1890.

With reference to the telegraphic correspondence marginally noted on the subject of the recent disturbances at Manipur, which resulted in the abdication of the Maharaja Sura Chandra Singh, I am directed to forward, for the information of the Government of India, copy of two letters from the Political Agent, No. 288 and No. 54, dated respectively the 25th and 29th September 1890, together with copy of a telegram, dated 6th October, received from the Maharaja, and of the reply thereto addressed to the Commissioner of Police, which will be communicated to the Maharaja on his arrival at Calcutta

2. It will be observed that the Chief Commissioner has expressed his readiness to give his best consideration to any representation which the Maharaja may submit, and, pending its receipt, Mr. Quinton would suggest that it might be well to defer passing any orders in regard to the succession of the Jubraj. On this subject a further communication will be made in due course.

No. 288, dated Manipur, the 25th September 1890

From—The Political Agent, Manipur,

To—The Secretary to the Chief Commissioner of Assam, Shillong.

I have the honour to submit, for the Chief Commissioner's information, the following report on the disturbances in the Palace on the 22nd instant, which resulted in the flight of the Maharaja to the Residency, and his subsequent resolve to abdicate and leave the country, as already reported by my telegrams of the 22nd and subsequent dates.

2 I will first state what actually happened, and then proceed to discuss the cause, and what will be the subsequent effects of the change of rulers in the State.

PART I.—THE OUTBREAK.

3. On Monday morning, at about 2 A.M., I was awakened by the sound of continued firing in the Palace. It was impossible at first to get any news what was happening; the whole of the escort was got under arms, and I sent a messenger to the Officer Commanding at Langthobal; a few bullets came over the Residency, so that the firing at the Palace must have been very wild. At about 2-30 A.M. the Maharaja came to the Residency with his brother the Pucca Sena and two or three attendants, they seemed in a dreadful fright The Maharaja said some one fired into the room he was in, and he at once fled, abandoning everything; he was clearly taken quite by surprise. I urged the Pucca Sena to collect a few men and try and hold the Palace magazine till daybreak, but he would do nothing. Two more brothers of the Maharaja soon afterwards arrived and other Manipuris followed; a few had rifles, but most were unarmed. I gave up the Darbar room in the Residency for the Maharaja's use.

The firing still continued in the Palace, but it must have been all on one side I imagined.

4. As soon as it was daylight, I learnt that the Senapati, the Dolaroi Hanjaba, and the Zillah Sing (the 5th and 7th brothers of the Maharaja) were in the Palace, and in possession of the four mountain guns and the magazine. The Jubraj had left his house and gone down the Cachar road. Of the Ministers who have seats in Darbar, only one was with Senapati, viz., the Ayapurel. The others, including the Tongal general and his sons, all came to the Residency.

5. Soon after daybreak Mr. Berkeley with 25 rifles arrived from Langthobal, leaving 40 rifles there to guard the stores, sick, &c. It was, of course, hopeless to think of trying to retake the Palace, and we confined ourselves to making the Residency as secure as possible, the basement of which was expressly built by Sir James Johnstone in view of a contingency of this sort, though the thatched roof would very likely be soon set fire to. An attack was not very probable, but the presence of the Maharaja and his party here might become a source of danger.

6. Some of the Maharaja's men left the Residency with the idea of taking up a position and collecting adherents, but I believe they did nothing, and with the few muskets they had they could hardly expect to do much.

7. Meanwhile I sent two chupprassis to the Palace with a letter asking the Senapati to come and see me. He replied he was afraid to come here while the Maharaja was here. I then wrote urging him to reinstate the Maharaja, and promising myself to enquire into his disputes with Pucca Sena. My chupprassis learnt that not a single person had been killed during the firing, and only one man had been wounded with a sword; this was due to the cowardly way, no doubt, in which the Maharaja abandoned everything. If he had made some resistance and held out till the morning, when our troops could have aided him, matters would probably have been very different.

8. By the afternoon there were so many Manipuris in the Residency ground that I insisted on many of them leaving, especially the ones with arms, as during the night it would be impossible for our sepoys to distinguish to which party a Manipuri belonged, and, if one of the Manipuris fired off his musket, it would probably create much confusion in the darkness. I did this by the advice of Mr. Berkeley, who made the arrangements for defending the place in case of a night attack; but it seemed to have hurt the Maharaja's feelings, as he said people would say I had made him a prisoner, and then he first began to talk of giving up his gadi and retiring to Brindaban as a devotee. I advised him not to decide hastily, but wait till to-morrow, and I assured him I could defend his person with our troops, though I could not at present assume the offensive.

9. In the evening I received a telegram from the Chief Commissioner directing me to try and mediate between the parties, and also saying that 200 rifles from Kohima were ready to march here if wanted. I then sent word to the Palace that I would come and see the Senapati next morning, and decided not to ask for the troops from Kohima till after the interview with the Senapati. The night passed off quietly; there must have been quite 200 Manipuris here, whom I accommodated as best I could, the Maharaja, his brothers, and Ministers being in the house, and the rest in some of the outhouses.

10 On the next morning (Tuesday) the Maharaja told me he had fully made up his mind to leave the country and go on a pilgrimage and settle at Brindaban. He begged that I would arrange this, and entreated he should not be sent to Hazaribagh (thinking no doubt of the Bara Chauba). I told him I would arrange it to be so if he had really made up his mind, but he must understand he could never return to Manipur, Cachar, or Sylhet, and I also said that the Pucca Sena must go with him, but that the others might stay or not as they liked.

11. The Maharaja then wrote a letter to the Senapati to tell him his determination to leave and resign the gadi to the Jubraj; and when I went to the Palace, the Senapati and his brothers were evidently very pleased at the Maharaja's resolution, and the former promised to make all the arrangements for the journey of the Maharaja and his brothers to Cachar in a proper manner, and that those who chose to stay in Manipur would not be molested. He also said he would send for the Jubraj, who, it appears, was about eight miles away on the Cachar road. The Jubraj arrived two or three hours after, and at once proclaimed himself Maharaja.

12. As soon as the Maharaja's intention of leaving the country was known, numbers of Manipuris flocked to the Residency to see him, most of them bringing various sums of money to present to him. To judge from the way the people wept, one would say the Maharaja was popular, and every one seemed sorry at his departure.

13. The Pucca Sena and the other of two brothers, the Samu Hanjaba and Gopal Sena, and several attendants, in all about 60 persons, decided to leave with the Maharaja. The Tongal general and other ministers who were to stay went over to the Palace to pay their respects there, and were well received.

14. The Maharaja and his brothers left in the evening at about 7-30 P.M. I sent an escort of 35 rifles of the 44th Gurkha Light Infantry to accompany them to Cachar. It was best for several reasons for the Maharaja to leave at once. It was very awkward his being at the Residency; he would eat nothing here, and he seemed afraid to go into any of the Manipuri houses near by. He was even alarmed at my leaving the house for a short time, and begged I would not do so. His staying here also entailed heavy duty on the men of my escort, and besides there was always the chance that something might happen, and the minds of the people would be disturbed till he left. I accordingly decided to take the responsibility without waiting for orders, and did not object to his leaving; and in this way was ended one more change of rulers in Manipur which have so frequently occurred in the previous history of the country. This time fortunately there has been no bloodshed.

15. The Maharaja before leaving ordered all the arms his followers had to be given up to me, and some 20 muskets and some swords were brought to me. He also gave me some keys and a gold ornament to be given over to the Jubraj.

16. I might mention here that the idea of the Maharaja retiring to Brindaban to lead a religious life is not a new idea, for some time back there have been rumours that he intended to do so, and he was, I believe, actually in treaty for the purchase of some land there, where he would live, and his determination to go now was perhaps the best solution of the situation; at any rate it probably saved bloodshed, as I hardly think any satisfactory settlement could have been arrived at by mediation alone

PART II.—THE CAUSE OF THE OUTBREAK

17. The primary cause of the outbreak was without any doubt the bad feeling between the Pucca Sena and his elder brother the Senapati, about which I have occasionally noted in my diary. The Pucca Sena seems to have tried in every way to annoy his brother and any body who he thought was on his side. The Maharaja unluckily, instead of exercising his authority over all his brothers, without favouring one more than another, sided entirely with the Pucca Sena. On the other hand, while the Pucca Sena seems to have been generally disliked by the people, the Senapati is the most popular of all his brothers, not only with the Manipuris, but with the natives of India who reside here. In saying this, I do not wish it to be thought I have any bias against the Pucca Sena personally I have been friendly with him. I have tried to teach him English, and on the whole I have been satisfied with the way in which he transacted business with me since the Maharaja made over to him all cases, &c., in which British subjects or interests were concerned

18. The discord between the two brothers has been going on for some time, but the Jubraj so far had acted as peacemaker and prevented an open rupture; the actual occurrence which led to the outbreak on the 22nd was in itself a trifling matter. The attack was commenced by the Dolaroi Hanjaba and Zillah Singh, the 5th and 7th brothers of the Maharaja. The Pucca Sena is said a few days ago to have abused the Dolaroi Hanjaba for going to the Senapati, and the Dolaroi Hanjaba abused his elder brother back. The Zillah Singh, on the other hand, was going out after a tiger, and got a bugler from the Senapati, to which, having no office (he is little more than a boy), he was not properly entitled. The Maharaja, hearing of it, sent and took away the bugle, which not unnaturally made the Zillah Singh very ashamed and angry. On the evening of the 21st the Jubraj went to the Maharaja and told him that both the Dolaroi Hanjaba and Zillah Singh would apologize to him next morning.

19. This seems to have satisfied the Maharaja, and he certainly had no suspicion of any outbreak being probable. But the Dolaroi Hanjaba and Zillah Singh say they were afraid that they would be punished by being banished or in some other way, so the Zillah Singh took the initiative by attacking the inner enclosure of the Palace in which the Maharaja lives. To this he gained access by climbing over the wall with ladders; and the shots fired, though they hit nobody, so frightened the Maharaja that he fled precipitately; the Senapati then arrived, and took possession of everything, and proceeded to strengthen the Palace defences against any attempt to retake it.

20. The Jubraj also left the Palace enclosure; at first it was said he was coming to the Residency, but actually he went some eight miles off and stayed there awaiting events, apparently not wishing to be mixed up with either party.

PART III.—THE EFFECTS OF THE OUTBREAK.

21. I have no doubt that the departure of the Maharaja and three of his brothers will be, at any rate for a time, beneficial to the country. A Maharaja and seven brothers, over whom he had little real authority, were too many for a small country like this, and their reduction by half will be a relief in more ways than one.

22. The Maharaja personally was popular, but he was a weak ruler, paid little attention to public business, and spent hours every day in worshipping in the temple. He was not at all the person to keep order amongst his brothers, and he is a man who will be much happier, I imagine, as an ascetic than as a ruler. The Jubraj, who, I hope, will be allowed to succeed to the gadi, has the reputation of being much more active and businesslike

23. The Senapati has more than once incurred the censure of the Government, but, as I have mentioned above, he is popular amongst all classes. He is the only prince who is said to be poor owing to his generosity. He is also on good terms with the Jubraj; and if the latter is allowed to succeed to the gadi, the Senapati, as Jubraj, would assist in making his rule strong and popular.

24. Both the Jubraj and the Senapati have promised to make proper provision for the Maharaja and his three brothers, and also for their families left behind here. They arranged for his journey to Cachar.

They have also made every profession of loyalty to the Government and many promises of being guided by the Political Agent's advice, but at such a juncture I am not inclined to place too much reliance on such promises.

25. At the time of writing everything is profoundly quiet and going on as usual. The postal services have not been interrupted at all.

26. As regards the movements of the Maharaja and his three brothers, I do not consider there is any necessity for keeping them under surveillance. I would only suggest that none of them are allowed to reside in Cachar or Sylhet. With this exception, I consider they may be allowed to go anywhere in British India. I gave a promise to the Maharaja he should not be detained at Hazaribagh. This I hope the Chief Commissioner will approve of.

I have written to the Deputy Commissioner of Cachar giving the probable date of the arrival there of the Maharaja and his party.

No 54, dated Manipur, the 29th September 1890.

From—F. ST. C. GRIMWOOD, Esq., C.S, Political Agent, Manipur,

To—The Secretary to the Chief Commissioner of Assam.

I have the honour to forward two letters which I have received from Kula Chandra Dhuja Singh, Jubraj of Manipur, announcing his accession to the gadi: one letter is addressed to His Excellency the Viceroy, and one to the Chief Commissioner. Both letters are identical in their terms. A translation was received with each letter, and I have also had a translation made in my office. The nomination of Kula Chandra Dhuja Singh as Jubraj was approved by the Government of India in the Foreign Department's letter No. 896-E., dated 26th April 1887, forwarded by your Memo. No. 811 (Judicial), dated 7th May 1887.

2. I have already reported fully on the circumstances which led to the Maharaja Sura Chandra Singh resigning the gadi.

3. With regard to the second paragraph of the letter, I think it will probably be advisable to arrange for the allowance to be deducted and paid from the Kubo Valley compensation money. This would secure the Maharaja Sura Chandra Singh getting the allowance, and would also give the Government information as to where he and his brothers are residing. The amount of the allowance can be subsequently discussed and arranged with the Darbar.

4. The country, as far as I can tell, appears to have acquiesced willingly in the change of rulers, and at present everything is quiet and orderly.

Telegram, dated the 6th October 1890

To—The Chief Commissioner of Assam, Shillong

From—The Secretary to the Chief Commissioner of Assam,
To—The Commissioner of Police, Calcutta.

See letter from Inspector-General of Police, No. T-70, dated 25th September. Chief Commissioner would feel obliged if you would kindly inform Maharaja Sura Chandra Singh of Manipur on arrival at Calcutta that Chief Commissioner will give his best consideration to any representation he may submit, but that he and his brothers who accompany him cannot return to Sylhet, Cachar, or Manipur till further orders. Mr. Quinton quite willing that Inspector of Police who accompanies Maharaja should be retained at Calcutta during Maharaja's stay, if Commissioner of Police thinks it desirable. Maharaja's party consists of about 60 persons.

To—HIS EXCELLENCY THE MOST HON'BLE SIR CHARLES KEITH, MARQUIS OF LANSDOWNE, G.C.M.G., G.C.S.I., &C., &C., Viceroy and Governor-General of India.

My most Hon'ble and Esteemed Friend,—I beg most respectfully to inform Your Excellency that owing to certain reason there was constant displeasure and quarrels between our brothers, for which my eldest brother, the Maharaja Sura Chandra Singh, making voluntary abdication of the throne to me (the heir of the throne), left for Brindaban. Accordingly I ascended the throne of my father and grandfathers on the 8th Ashin last

I paid Rs. 1,000 to my brother Maharaja for his passage money to Brindaban, and, as long as His Highness will live, I will remit his subsistence money without breaking our usual dustoor.

My country is quiet now and the subjects are satisfied. I hope Her Most Gracious Majesty's Government will favour me as usually shewn to my father and grandfathers.

My most Hon'ble and Esteemed Friend,—I beg most respectfully to inform Your Excellency that owing to certain disputes there was a great ill-feeling amongst my brothers, and that after a complication my brother, Maharaja Sura Chandra Singh, has abdicated the throne in my favour (I being the heir apparent), and left for Brindaban in pilgrimage, and that in accordance with his will I succeeded to my father's throne on 8th Aswin

Now the country is quiet and the people are happy. I hope the British Government will favour me in every respect as it did towards my father and grandfather.

Report on the circumstances connected with the recent departure of Sura Chandra Singh, Maharaja of Manipur, from that State

No. 5210-P dated Shillong the 31st December 1890

To—The Secretary to the Government of India, Foreign Department

With reference to the correspondence ending with your telegram No. 2234-E, dated the 17th October 1890, I am now directed to forward, for the consideration of the Governor-General in Council, a report on the circumstances connected with the recent departure of the Maharaja of Manipur from that State.

2. The account of the events which took place at Manipur on the 22nd September and following days, given in the report of the Political Agent, No. 288, dated the 25th September, which was forwarded with this office letter No. 4209-P., dated the 9th October, showed that at 2 A.M. on the morning of the 22nd September the Maharaja took refuge at the Residency, accompanied by his brother, the Pucca Sena, and two or three attendants, alleging that an attack had been made on the Palace, and that the Maharaja had fled in consequence The Political Agent, who on first hearing the firing had summoned assistance from the Officer Commanding the Langthobal Cantonment, did not feel justified with the force at his disposal in attempting by a night attack to recover possession of the Palace, but assured the Maharaja that he would provide for his personal safety, and telegraph to the Chief Commissioner for instructions. The Political Agent's telegram reached the Chief Commissioner at Silchar on the morning of the 22nd, and instructions were at once issued that the Political Agent should endeavour to mediate between the parties, and, if necessary, telegraph for troops to Kohima, where the Commanding Officer had been authorised to send 200 rifles on the Political Agent's requisition Mr. Grimwood was further told to defend himself, but not to assume the offensive without informing the Chief Commissioner of the reasons for which he recommended that course. Meantime 25 rifles, with the Officer Commanding, arrived at the Residency from Langthobal, and the Political Agent and Commanding Officer confined themselves to making the Residency as secure as practicable against any attack which the presence of the Maharaja and his party might possibly invite. The Maharaja sent out men with a view of taking up a position and collecting adherents, but no result followed. Communications passed between the Political Agent and the Senapati at the Palace, who declined to come to the Residency so long as the Maharaja was there. In the afternoon many of the Manipuris in the Residency were directed to leave with a view to prevent the possibility of disturbance and confusion during the night, and the Maharaja then first talked of giving up the gadi, and retiring to Brindaban as a devotee. The Political Agent advised His Highness not to decide hastily, but to wait until the following day, and assured him that he would defend his person with British troops, though he was unable at the time to assume the offensive. On the evening of the same day the Chief Commissioner's telegram reached the Political Agent, who sent word to the Palace that he would visit the Senapati the next morning, and decided not to ask for troops from Kohima until after the interview with the Senapati. Next morning the Maharaja informed the Political Agent that he had made up his mind to go on a pilgrimage and settle at Brindaban. He begged the Political Agent to arrange for this, and entreated that he should not be sent to Hazaribagh. The Political Agent promised to make the necessary arrangements if the Maharaja had really made up his mind, but he added that "His Highness must understand he could never return to Manipur, Cachar, or Sylhet, and that the Pucca Sena must go with him, but that the others might stay or not as they liked." The Maharaja then wrote a letter to the Senapati, informing the latter that he had no hope of fighting against him, and asking him to arrange for his journey to Brindaban, adding that for the sake of their late father, he (the Senapati) should forgive the Pucca Sena, who had sinned much against him. The Political Agent, as arranged, visited the Palace, when the Senapati promised to make all arrangements for the journey of the Maharaja and his brothers to Cachar in a proper manner, and guaranteed that those who chose to stay at Manipur should not be molested. He undertook to send for the Jubraj, then eight miles away on the Cachar road, who arrived two or three hours afterwards, and at once proclaimed himself Maharaja The Maharaja Sura Chandra Singh, accompanied by the Pucca Sena and two other brothers and attendants, in all about 60 persons, left Manipur on the evening of the 23rd September under an escort of 35 rifles of the 44th Gurkha Light Infantry, who saw the party safely to Cachar, whence they proceeded to Calcutta. The Jubraj, whose nomination by the Maharaja as his successor on his demise had been sanctioned by the Government of India in Foreign Department letter No. 896-E., dated 26th April 1887, has since carried on the government of the country, having been recognized as Regent by the Political Agent under the orders of the Chief Commissioner.

The above occurrences have been described in considerable detail from the earliest reports received from the Political Agent, an accurate statement of them being of the greatest importance with reference to issues which have subsequently been raised by the Maharaja.

3. On arrival at Lakhipur, on the road to Cachar the Maharaja telegraphed to His Excellency the Viceroy and to the Chief Commissioner soliciting help in the emergency, without further specification of the nature of the help desired; and from Silchar His Highness again telegraphed repudiating the abdication, declaring that he had been misunderstood by the Political Agent, and that he would submit a full representation later on. In reply he was informed that the Chief Commissioner would give his best consideration to any representation he might submit, but that neither he nor his brothers who accompanied him could remain in Sylhet or Cachar or return to Manipur until further orders.

4. The promised representation, dated 14th November, reached the Chief Commissioner on the 19th idem, and was forwarded under this office letter No. 4686-P., dated 22nd November (copy enclosed), to the Political Agent for a full report on the various allegations made. A further letter, dated 27th November, from the Maharaja (copy enclosed) was received; but as its contents were mainly argumentative, the Chief Commissioner did not consider it necessary to delay the case by a further reference to the Political Agent. The reply of the Political Agent, No. 351-C., dated the 4th December (copy enclosed), reached the Chief Commissioner at Dibrugarh on the 15th idem, and Mr. Quinton loses no time in acquainting the Government of India with the conclusions at which he has arrived respecting the facts, and his recommendations as to the course to be pursued. There is no doubt that an apparently unjustifiable attack was made upon the Palace, and that the Maharaja, in alarm for his own safety, at once abandoned it and took refuge at the Residency without making an effort to regain possession. Further, when at the Residency, he declined to take any active steps to recover the ground he had lost or to punish the assailants. The assertion made in the representation now submitted, that he was prevented from doing this in consequence of his troops being disarmed and disbanded by the Political Agent, appears to be entirely untrue. The Political Agent, it may be allowed, took no active steps to reinstate the Maharaja by force; but, as explained by Mr. Grimwood, it was not possible to do this with the scanty force at his disposal. He, however, acted on his instructions to mediate between the parties, but the Maharaja declined to accept his advice, announced his intention of becoming a fakir, and practically resigned the headship of the State. No pressure was brought to bear on His Highness for this purpose by the Political Agent, who, on the contrary, endeavoured to dissuade him from taking this step hastily, guaranteed his personal safety, and was authorized and prepared to summon troops to his assistance. Having thus abdicated and left the country, the Maharaja changed his mind, and wishes now to repudiate his previous action and resume his position as ruler of the State This course cannot, in the Chief Commissioner's opinion, be adopted, unless the Government of India is prepared to support the Maharaja on the gadi with British troops The eight sons of the late Maharaja Chandra Kirti Singh are divided into at least two parties, animated by most hostile feelings towards each other. There is no hope of any permanent reconciliation being effected, and the weakness shown by the Maharaja generally since his accession, and especially on this occasion, makes it clear that, if restored, he will only be a tool in the hands of others. That the disposition to retire into private life was not suddenly adopted appears to be shown by the following extract from the Political Agent's diary of 27th June last :

"The Maharaja is buying some land (4,000 bighas) at Muthra (North-Western Provinces), and is very anxious that the Government revenue should be remitted. It is said that the Maharaja is going to build a temple there, but there is rumour also that he means to retire into private life and live there himself."

It must, moreover, be remembered that the present occurrences are not the result of a revolution in which the people of the State have any interest of foreign aggression, or of any ascendancy gained by rival chiefs, but are merely the outcome of a family quarrel between the brothers of a nominal ruler. The Chief Commissioner does not understand that the recognition by the Government of India of Sura Chandra Singh as successor to his father conveyed in Foreign Department letter No. 844-I P., dated the 7th October 1880, has any bearing upon the present condition of affairs, or that it justifies a claim on the part of the Maharaja for support in attempting to regain a position which he voluntarily gave up. The succession of the Jubraj, who has been recognized as heir by the Government of India, merely anticipates the ordinary course of events, and is generally acquiesced in by the people of the State. Since he assumed office, the administration has been successfully and tranquilly conducted, and the Political Agent expects no opposition to it, whereas the restoration and maintenance in the chiefship of Maharaja Sura Chandra Singh, unless effected by a strong British force, would most probably involve repeated insurrections, such as those which have characterized the history of the Manipur State.

Should these views not commend themselves to the Government of India, the Chief Commissioner thinks it only right to point out that, unless fresh arrangements are made regarding the location of troops at Manipur, the probability is that the occurrences now reported will be repeated, and that the necessity for interference will constantly arise so long as the Maharaja Sura Chandra Singh retains the chiefship. If, on the other hand, the views of the Chief Commissioner are adopted by the Government of India, and the abdication of Maharaja Sura Chandra Singh is regarded as a demise of the chiefship, there is no apparent obstacle to the recognition of the Jubraj as Maharaja being any longer withheld by His Excellency the Viceroy and Governor-General.

Dated 14th November 1890.

From—HIS HIGHNESS SURA CHANDRA SINGH, Maharaja of Manipur,
To—The HON'BLE J. W. QUINTON, C.S.I., Chief Commissioner of Assam.

Availing myself of the opportunity afforded to me, I have now the honour to approach you with a brief narrative of the events which preceded my departure from Manipur and arrival in British territory at Cachar, and the distressing circumstances under which I was compelled to do so. To this narrative I most earnestly solicit your kind, indulgent, and attentive consideration which, as an impartial judge, I feel confident you will be pleased to vouchsafe to it in order to right the grievous wrongs which I have been allowed most undeservedly to suffer.

1. I ascended the gadi of Manipur on the death of my father, Maharaja Sir Chandra Kirti Singh, Bahadur, K.C.S.I., in the year 1885, and was recognised as Maharaja by the paramount power and by all my relations without any dispute.

2. When I ascended the throne I appointed my step-brother, Kula Chandra Singh, who has now usurped the throne, as Jubraj, and his brother, Jholo Kirti Singh, Commander-in-Chief, in accordance with the express wish of my late father. Jholo Kirti Singh died within a fortnight, and I appointed as his successor his brother, Tekendrajit Singh, alias Koirang, who organised and headed the present revolt. After their several appointments, my step-brothers as well as my own brothers in public Darbar took the oath of allegiance to me in accordance with the custom with the most solemn oaths and formalities, including the touching of our deceased father's shoes and the sword of State.

3. I appointed my other brothers, according to their qualifications, to the different important offices of State, and gave preference generally to my step-brothers, to whom I most certainly never preferred my own brothers.

4. Since my accession to the gadi, I have daily performed all the duties appertaining and attaching to my position. In the morning I generally received the reports of the fort sentries and guards and matters relating to the jail administration. Immediately after noon I sat to hear representations, complaints, and petitions of my subjects In the afternoon I generally sat with the Jubraj and the Ministers to hear and pass orders on important State matters which the Jubraj thought fit to bring up for orders.

5. I have never neglected the duties of the State. I have kept my dominions in profound peace, and have never at any time been the cause myself or through my subjects of anxiety to the Indian Government, which has always expressed approval of my policy and actions as Maharaja, and in no instance has fault been found with my administration or dissatisfaction expressed.

6. It is not out of place that I should here recall the fact that I commanded under Colonel Johnstone, the then Political Agent at my State, the detachment which in 1879 marched through most difficult country, and, after encountering much hardship, to the relief of Kohima—an achievement for which my father received high honours from the Government of India, and I myself a gold medal. With this preface, I come to events of the 21st September last, which took me wholly by surprise, except that I had shortly before heard rumours of mischievous design being on foot, as to which I determined to make an enquiry.

7. On the 21st September last, after disposing of State matters with the Jubraj, I asked him whether he had received any information of a large gathering of men in the house of the Commander-in-Chief, Dolaroi Hanjaba, and Zillah Singh, and if he knew why these officers were not present at the Darbar that day. The Jubraj told me he knew nothing of the matter, and that he would immediately enquire and report the result to me. He then left with the Ayapurel Major. At about 8 P.M. he returned, and reported that he had asked all my step-brothers whether there was any such assemblage, and what it meant, and that they had given him their word of honour that nothing unlawful or contrary to my authority was meditated; that they were willing to come and pay their respects to me at once, but that he, the Jubraj, had told them to appear next morning, as night was advanced; and he added that I had kept every one in comfort and happiness;

why, therefore, should they think of acting against me? I accepted this assurance of the Jubraj, which I had no reason to doubt. I also considered that I was ruling my State under the protection of the British Government, whose representative, the Political Agent, always resided at my capital, and the Government had made a public avowal of their determination to uphold my father's authority and punish those who would attempt to dispossess him; that I had the right to expect that a similar course would be followed in my case, and that this policy would never be departed from, or its benefits denied to me when occasion arose; that any attempt at disturbance, which would be a clear defiance of the authority of the Indian Government, would be therefore at once put down with a strong hand, as had been done even during my time twice—once when Bara Chauba rose against me, and again when Jogendra Singh did so.

8. I retired to rest as usual in the Palace. At about midnight I was suddenly roused from sleep by the report of firearms. The only explanation I could conceive was that my step-brothers had rebelled against me. I rose at once, and was tying on my turban when it was pierced by a bullet; and as heavy firing began, I concluded that the Palace had been treacherously seized, and I made my way as rapidly as possible by a back door to the British Political Agency, where I expected to receive that friendly advice and assistance to which I was entitled.

9. Outside the fort, and close to the Songenthong bridge, I met my brother, Lieutenant-General Pucca Singh, with his clerk, Money Lal Dey, and his personal guard of 80 sepoys, proceeding in haste to the Palace to my relief. The night was, however, dark, and it would have been difficult in a night attack to recover the fort, to distinguish friends from foes; and, as I was very anxious to prevent bloodshed, we both went to the Political Agent, Mr. Grimwood.

10. It seems that the heavy firing in the fort had awakened the Political Agent, and the first person who waited on him was Dumbro Singh, the Bandmaster, a Manipuri, who told the Political Agent that a great gulmal had taken place. Shortly after Ebayman Choubi, an attendant of my brother, Lieutenant-General Pucca Singh, went in and saw the Political Agent, who asked him who were firing. He replied that it was the Senapati (Commander-in-Chief). The Political Agent said that it could not be the Senapati, who had a better head; it must be somebody else. "The Senapati," he said, "is not a madman; tell me who are firing." Ebayman Choubi replied that, although he did not exactly know who were fighting, he had distinctly heard loud shouts, "Durgamaikijai!" ("Victory to Goddess Durga!"), "Senapati ki fate hua!" ("the Senapati has become victorious!"). Shortly after, Money Lal Dey informed the Political Agent that I and my brother, Lieutenant-General Pucca Singh, had come. We then went in, and informed the Political Agent of what had occurred. He desired me to make an enquiry, and I sent Money Lal Dey, who went to the vicinity of the fort, and returned and said that he could not enter it, as it was very dark, and bullets were flying in all directions. I then asked the Political Agent for assistance and advice. He told me he would telegraph to you for orders, and that he would do nothing unless and until he received such orders. When these reached him I cannot say, but certainly Mr. Grimwood did not communicate any to me, nor did he give me any advice. What he did do I shall now state.

11. I arrived at the Residency after midnight, and at dawn my brother, Samoo Hanjaba, and Gopal Sena, Colonel Samoo Singh, and Dhala Raja, Artillery Major, Major Jambhuban Singh, and Tongal General, and other officers and ministers came to me at the Residency with about 2,000 men, of whom about four to six hundred were properly armed. This force was all that could be collected in the short time available for giving the alarm to my friends. I was then under British protection and out of deference, therefore, to the representative of the Government, I again asked for his assistance and advice, and for sanction to fight with the rebels at once. On this he told me I should not be allowed to fight until your orders were received. At this juncture one Tassu Sardar, a Mahomedan photographer, came in with a letter, which was reported to the Political Agent, who went out to him, and, after secretly conversing with him, returned to me, and soon after ordered the arms of the troops, who had come to my support of their own accord, with my officers, to be seized by the British sepoys, which was done, he himself personally assisting, and the arms were put in the Political Agent's bungalow godown. He then ordered the troops to disband and to return to their homes, which, disheartened and humiliated, they did. I claim to know the contents of this letter which was brought to the Political Agent, and which apparently had such a decided effect; and the purport of that letter should also be known to you.

12. Observing the Agent's action in disarming my men, Choubi Lal Jamadar, the native officer of 44th Gurkha Regiment, in charge of the Political Agent's guard, remonstrated with the Political Agent, pointing out that he had on my repeated application rendered no assistance to me, but, on the contrary, had seized the arms of my troops, which should not have been done The Political Agent then offered to return the arms, but my men had then dispersed.

13. Between 9 and 10 A.M. the Political Agent told me that he had no definite orders from you Being thus, by the action of the Political Agent in favour of the rebels, put into a hopeless condition, and being still wholly ignorant of your instructions to the Political Agent, I sent a telegram to you at about 9 o'clock in the morning of the 22nd September, asking for assistance with troops. I received at about 2 P.M. your reply saying only that you were on communication with the Political Agent. I then asked the Political Agent's advice what to do, and he told me to go to Kohima; otherwise there would be serious personal danger to me, and he offered me, if I would go, an escort of 50 sepoys.

14. This advice I declined, as Kohima was a long journey from Manipur, and I had heard that the road thither was occupied by the insurgents, from whom I should incur very serious risk of losing my life, as, after the weakness displayed by Mr. Grimwood, it was by no means unlikely that emboldened by success they might attack me in spite of my British escort. Besides, I had heard that the Jubraj, Kula Chandra Dhuja, was at Buribazar with a large force to intercept my way towards Cachar. Seeing from your reply to my telegram that you were in Silchar in connection with the Lushai expedition work, and as the Political Agent himself had also spoken of your being there, and he had advised me to go to Kohima, and being still unaware of your orders, and so unable to depend upon anybody, I made up my mind to see you personally and make known my grievances. I was not allowed to recover my throne by force of arms, and I was denied all assistance. The road to the north towards Kohima was infested by the rebels, and that towards the west strongly occupied by the Jubraj himself, and I could hardly at the moment reach a place of safe refuge in my own dominion. I bethought me therefore of the best means to escape out of the reach of my enemies. I accordingly, on the 23rd September, in a very agitated and unsettled state of mind, caused a letter to be written to the rebels, which I signed, saying that I would not fight, and that I should like to have their assistance to proceed to Brindaban on pilgrimage, with one or two other unimportant matters. This was the only way by which I could get away peaceably from Manipur, as anyone going on a pilgrimage to Brindaban would be safe in person anywhere; and this letter was written with the sole object of getting away from my enemies, and was written when I was in a state of great agitation, caused by my treatment by Mr. Grimwood. It will be noticed that the date of the letter is incorrect, as it gives the wrong Bengali month. The Political Agent seemed very much to approve of my apparent intention, and gave me an escort of British soldiers, who escorted me to Silchar. He also gave me a letter or pass, the tenor of which I did not then know. I started at about 6 o'clock on the evening of the 23rd of September, and reached Silchar on the 3rd October. On arrival there I found to my disappointment that you had left Cachar. It was there I discovered for the first time that Political Agent's pass asserted that I had abdicated my throne. I at once sent you a telegram denying this, and I deny it now, and assert that I had no intention of abdicating, and am fully desirous of being allowed to return to my country and people, who will, I can assure you, rejoice to receive me back with open arms and restore me to my throne. My army was faithful to me, as is evidenced by the fact that such portion of it as could be got together in the time available came to me at the Political Agent's house, and only wanted my orders to go and fight the rebels.

15. The four chief rebels, viz., the Jubraj, the Commander-in-Chief, Dolaroi Hanjaba, and Zillah Singh, had respectively allotted to them a personal body-guard of 300, 200, 80, and 60 sepoys, fully armed, and when they made common cause against me, with all their preparations made in secret, their forces were sufficient for a treacherous midnight attack, which was wholly unexpected, and against which I had taken no precaution. They, however, being unable to calculate upon the services of the army, had opened the jail at midnight, and released the convicts to the number of about 400, and armed them to join in the attack, which they readily did.

16. My father in his time rendered good services to the British Government, and I claim that my own services deserve a better return than I have received. Among my services are—

(a) The relief of the British garrison at Kohima, and the consequent subjugation of the Nága country.

(b) The supply of troops during the Burmese war, in consultation with Sir James Johnstone and Major Trotter, the then Political Agent.

(c) The supply of 2,000 levies twice, during the Chin-Lushai Expedition and Burma war.

(d) The establishment of eight posts in the hills garrisoned by my troops to cut off the retreat of the Lushais.

(e) The deputation of my brother, Lieutenant-General Pucca Singh, with a body of 500 troops, with the Political Agent, Mr. Grimwood, to Sangam, in the Chin-Lushai country, in April last.

(f) My own services during the famine of last year, in which I remitted the rents of my subjects for a whole year, opened all my rice granaries, and freely distributed grain to the famine-stricken people, and made large purchases of grain, which was sold in the open market at half price to those who were able to purchase.

17. All these facts I have no doubt are on the records of the Agency, and I believe also in your own office. I have refrained from going into lengthened details of the occurrences attending the rebellion, considering it sufficient to state the main facts, and I lay special emphasis on the fact that not only did I receive no help from the Political Agent, whose help and counsel I sought, and had a right to receive in pursuance of the solemn assurances conveyed to my father, and in accordance with the policy adopted twice previously in my own reign, but he actually by disarming my troops rendered the insurgents valuable assistance at the most critical time by making me utterly powerless for offence. One word of authority from him at this crisis would have been quite sufficient to suppress the revolt, and would have enabled me quietly to regain my throne My people were not, and are not, parties to the revolt. Nor do I believe that the army as a body is out of sympathy with me. On the contrary, I have proof of its being favourable to me, and I venture to assert with confidence that my people would welcome my restoration to power with acclamation. The Political Agent having suggested my leaving Manipur, I could do nothing else under the heavy pressure of circumstances. I am said to have abdicated. I deny again that I have done so. Had I intended to do so, it would have been by a more formal act, and with some stipulation that provision should be made for me and my family by the State. As it is, I came away without a single pice in my pocket, or even a second suit of clothes or bedding being dependent for everything upon the assistance of the Government. I left Manipur because I was abandoned by the Political Agent, and my hands tied by him against my enemies, from whom my life was in danger. I declared my intention of going to Brindaban to secure my personal safety until I could lay my case before you, and ensure for it that fair consideration which, in the excitement of the sudden disturbance of the 21st September, the Political Agent had neither the courage nor the presence of mind to give it.

18. I have no desire to indulge in needless recriminations, but I think it right to point out that Tekendrajit Singh, the Commander-in-Chief, who has headed the rebellion, had been convicted of serious crimes and offences several times during the reign of my father and myself, and had been transported by order of my father for committing a murder; and not long ago he was publicly disgraced by being fined Rs. 50 at the suggestion, I believe, of your office for a murderous assault committed upon two Manipur subjects. The appointment of Commander-in-Chief would never have been given to him but for the express wish of my father.

19. What most surprises me is that such a character, who has been guilty of rebellion, not only against me, but against the authority of the Government, in open defiance of which he took up arms against me and made an attempt upon my life, and who began the revolt by committing such a grave offence as the release of a large number of criminals from the jail to swell the ranks of his followers, does not appear to have been called upon to account for his conduct, and has been quietly permitted to meddle with the affairs of the State.

20. In conclusion, I have only to add that the above is a perfectly accurate and faithful narrative of what actually took place, and, if I have been obliged to speak in terms of disparagement of the officer in charge of the Agency, you will observe that I have no option in the matter. I now seek a fair consideration of my unfortunate case and a full enquiry into the conduct of the chief actors in this transaction, and I need hardly say that my restoration of power would not only be an act of justice to me and to my subjects, but an emphatic assertion of policy on the part of the Government, indicating its disapproval of the rising of brothers against brothers, and subjects against their ruler, in defiance of all constituted authorities.

Considerable delay has occurred in the preparation of this representation in consequence of my not understanding the English language and the necessity of preparing the first draft in the language of my country and its translation subsequently into the Bengal language, upon which is based this representation.

I have also suffered very severely from fever since I reached Calcutta, which incapacitated me from going fully into the matter, and I ask indulgence for the delay which has been inevitable.

No. 4686-P., dated Shillong, the 22nd November 1890.

From—F. C DAUKES, Esq., C S., Secretary to the Chief Commissioner of Assam, To—The Political Agent, Manipur.

With reference to the correspondence ending with your telegram dated the 27th October 1890, I am directed to forward confidentially a representation dated the 14th November 1890, in original, from His Highness the Maharaja of Manipur, and to request that you will furnish the Chief Commissioner with a full and immediate report upon the various allegations made therein. The paragraphs which should be reported on with especial fulness are paragraphs 11-15 inclusive.

2. I am also to request you to report what the prevailing feeling amongst the people is in regard to recent events, and what results would in your opinion probably follow on the return of the Maharaja to Manipur.

3. Please submit with your report a copy of the communication made by the Maharaja to the Senapati, which is referred to in paragraph 11 of your letter No. 228, dated the 25th September 1890, and return the original representation herewith sent.

Dated Maharani Shurnamoy's Villa, Kankurgachi, Manicktolla Road, the 27th November 1890.

From—HIS HIGHNESS SURA CHANDRA SINGH, Maharaja of Manipur,
To—The HON'BLE J. W. QUINTON, C.S.I., Chief Commissioner of Assam.

My friend,—I am told that the letter which I caused to be written to the Senapati on the 23rd September last has been represented by my enemies as containing my formal abdication of the Manipur gadi. I beg, therefore, to transmit a copy* of it in the Manipuri language, with a translation in the

* Printed as enclosure to the Political Agent's letter No. 351-C., dated the 4th December 1890

Bengali language, as also an English translation by an authorised translator of the High Court of Calcutta.

2. I have already said in my previous representation to you that this letter was written in an extremely disturbed state of mind. You will observe that there is in this letter not one word of abdication, nor did I for one moment intend to abdicate. On the contrary, the moment I came to know that the Political Agent had said so, I at once repudiated it by a telegram sent to you from Cachâr.

3. I have certainly said in this letter that I intended to go to Brindaban, but I never said that I was going to settle there ; and you will see in this letter itself that I distinctly said that I intended to go to Brindaban once, which certainly does not indicate that I was going to abdicate my throne and settle in Brindaban. Then, the allusion in the letter to my brother Sagol Hanjaba was caused by my anxiety to protect him as far as I could during my enforced absence from Manipur.

4. I send also a copy of the reply which the Senapati had sent under his own signature in Nagri, of which also I annex a translation in Bengali and English. This reply has only lately come to my knowledge. It was with the baggage of one of my men, who says it was dropped before him by some one when he was packing his baggage. This man immediately after his arrival here with me went to Benares, and has only returned here four days ago, and found this letter in one of his bags, and handed it to one of my brothers, from whom I got it and read it for the first time.

5. I beg you to allow me to ask to consider whether the letter I had written can be construed into an abdication, and whether the reply from the Senapati is not wholly inconsistent with the position now taken up by him that I by my letter abdicated my throne, while in this very reply he fully continues to look upon and treat me still as the lord or ruler of Manipur, and has begged me for pardon.

To the most High in Dignity and the Chief Ocean of Dignity, Srilaw, Sri Ponchojukto (i.e., the lucky and auspicious possessor of five virtues or good qualities), Manipureyshvr (i.e., Lord or Ruler of Manipur).

Maharaja who is all powerful and mighty in power.—With millions of obeisances to the feet of (my) auspicious and lucky elder (or eldest) Maharaja brother, my humble prayer is that, on receipt of the kind letter of Navami (i.e., ninth day of the moon) sent by Srijut elder (or eldest) Maharaja brother, I make myself acquainted with all the directions and Raj Agya (i.e., Raj command or Royal mandate) contained therein. Agreeably to the Raj command or Royal mandate of Srijut elder (or eldest) brother, I will take the necessary steps (or make the necessary arrangements) to ensure safe arrival at Sridham Brijo (i e, the holy place Brindaban). Forgive us, who are dependents, the offences (or crimes) committed at the feet of the Srijut Maharaja. The present incident must be taken as the most improbable of all improbabilities. Year 1812, Sak, 23rd September.

No. 351-C., dated Camp Jhiri, the 4th December 1890

From—F. St. C. Grimwood, Esq , C S , Political Agent, Manipur,

To—The Secretary to the Chief Commissioner of Assam.

I have the honour to submit, for the information of the Chief Commissioner, the following report on the representation, dated 14th November 1890, from His Highness the Maharaja of Manipur, received with your confidential letter No. 4686-P., dated 22nd November 1890.

2. The first six paragraphs of the Maharaja's letter do not call for any remark, except that I might say that His Highness did not usually get credit for such businesslike habits as he attributes to himself in paragraph 4.

3. In paragraphs 7 and 8 the Maharaja gives an account of the origin and result of the attack. I have already in my letter No. 288, dated the 25th September 1890, reported on these points, and from what I have heard since, I believe I was right in stating that the Jubraj had no knowledge that any attack was meditated by the two younger brothers, Dolaroi Hanjaba and Zillah Singh; but it is said they told the Senapati (Commander-in-Chief) before starting.

4. The Palace was actually captured by a very small number of persons, who, with the two younger princes, gained access to the Maharaja's enclosure by climbing over the wall; they began letting off their guns, and the Maharaja at once fled. The shot through the Maharaja's turban is, I fancy, a fiction, or he would have told me about it at the time. Nobody was hit by any of the bullets that were fired, and I have little doubt myself if the Maharaja had stood his ground, and called on his sentries and guards, the attack might easily have been repulsed.

5. I have no recollection of the conversation which in paragraph 10 I am said to have held with Ebayman Choubi, and I deny entirely the statement that the Maharaja asked me for assistance and that I refused it. On the contrary, I repeatedly urged the Pucca Sena to get a few sepoys together, and try and hold the Palace magazine till daybreak, when I would assist him with the men of my escort. The Pucca Sena replied there were no sepoys to be got. The magazine is a good defensible post, on the south side of the Palace, and if that and the ammunition in it had been seized and held at once, then at daybreak my escort could probably have retaken the Palace without much difficulty, but it would have been madness to have sent 85 Gurkhas to attack the Palace when the Senapati and his brothers had possession of all the guns and ammunition.

Paragraph 10.

6. The Pucca Sena appeared to have no inclination to fight, and the Maharaja himself, when he came to the Residency, was in such a state of terror that he was unable to sit in a chair and talk to me, but asked to lie on the floor, supported by a pillow I gave him.

7. I now come to paragraph 11 of the letter. It is quite true that the Ministers and others came to the Residency at daybreak, but I am certain there were nothing like 2,000 men with them. Possibly, taking all, there may have been 400 at the outside, of whom 40 or 50, certainly not more, were armed The Maharaja never asked me for sanction to fight. If he was so anxious to fight, as he now makes out, why did he not make any resistance at the outbreak? I certainly told him that with the men at my disposal I could not assume the offensive, but I assured him repeatedly I could protect his person, and would do so as long as I had a sepoy left.

8. The Maharaja had no wish to fight, but the Tongal general openly expressed his opinion at the folly of the Maharaja in not taking up some position a few miles away, and collecting his adherents together, instead of coming to the Residency. Soon after daylight the Samoo Hanjaba did leave the Residency, saying he would fortify a place which three years ago the Wang Khairakpa held in his revolt; but a shot or two was fired, and the Samoo Hanjaba returned.

9. I do not know what letter the Maharaja refers to in paragraph 11, and I do not remember Tassu Sardar bringing me a letter at all; but he may have done so, and perhaps it was handed to me by a chuppraasi. The Maharaja probably refers to a letter from the Senapati, in answer to one I sent him at daybreak, in which he said he could not come and see me. There was nothing in the letter the Maharaja could not have seen if he wished (it is in the file).

10. The disarming of the Manipuris did not take place in the morning of the 22nd September, as the letter would seem to imply, but late in the afternoon. These troops had had the whole day to fight, if they wished to. When Mr. Berkeley, 44th Gurkha Light Infantry, and I were arranging for the protection of the house during the night, we both considered that no armed Manipuris should remain in the Residency grounds during the night, and we began collecting the guns from the Manipuris who were in the verandah and near the house. If I recollect right, there were about 30 guns altogether. While the guns were being collected, the Maharaja objected, and I at once gave them all back on the condition that the armed men went into one of the villages near by, which they did.

As for the troops being humiliated or disheartened, it is nonsense; they were not troops in the ordinary sense of the word, but single Manipuris with guns, without any organization.

11. Our object in getting rid of the armed Manipuris was to prevent a night alarm. Between 40 and 50 men of the 44th Gurkha Light Infantry were on duty during the night; and as at that time I did not know for how many nights the same precautions would be necessary, it was important to ensure the men from being unnecessarily turned out during the night by a false alarm.

Paragraph 12

12. The statement made in paragraph 12 about the Jemadar remonstrating is, I am sure, quite wrong; nor do I know of any foundation for such a statement. The Maharaja's men also had not dispersed, as they all took back their arms at once. The guns were not in my possession more than 15 minutes or so.

Paragraph 13

13. Paragraph 13 of the letter goes back again to the morning of the 22nd. I may say here that the Chief Commissioner's first telegram only reached me in the evening of the 22nd; the telegraph line was interrupted near Golaghat, and messages had to go viâ Mandalay and Rangoon.

14. I suggested that the Maharaja should retire to Kohima, as I knew our troops would come from there, and he could have met them; but I certainly never said there was personal danger to the Maharaja I did not think it likely the Senapati would attack the Residency, and I repeatedly told the Maharaja he was quite safe at the Residency. The Maharaja appears in his letter to assume that, because I refused to take the offensive with the troops (85 rifles) at my disposal, I also declined to protect him. But this is quite wrong.

Paragraph 14.

15. In paragraph 14 the Maharaja says he was not allowed to recover his throne by force of arms. But, as a matter of fact, he had no arms to speak of. When he and his party, about 70 persons, left for Cachar on the night of the 23rd, all arms were given up to me to be made over to the Darbar. There were altogether 21 guns and a few swords. I think this fact alone disposes of the statement that he had 400 to 600 men properly armed, and that I disarmed and dispersed them.

16. The Maharaja then goes on to say that the letter he wrote was a ruse to get out of the country, and that he never intended to abdicate. I am, however, quite sure myself that the Maharaja fully intended abdication at the time. He first mentioned it to me on the evening of the 22nd I was adverse to the idea, and so were the Ministers. I told the Maharaja that the troops at Kohima were ready to start, and if he was determined to go on a pilgrimage, he should re-occupy the gadi for a few days, and then leave.

17. My own feeling was that such a course would be more honourable, and I thought that I should be able to make the Senapati agree to such terms. I am sure the Maharaja did not misunderstand me, and the three Ministers got up and solemnly shook hands with me. They were entirely of my opinion, but the Maharaja said "No." He was determined to become a pilgrim. In the end I told him not to decide till next morning, the 23rd; but then he was of the same opinion, and not only sent the letter to the Senapati, a copy of which was given me by the Darbar, and which is annexed to this letter, but he also sent his State sword and a State coat he was wearing I told the Maharaja he could not return to Manipur, to which he said he did not want to, and he more than once said to me "From to-day I am a fakir." Of course it is easy to say now that this was part of the ruse, but personally I am sure it was no ruse at the time. In fact, there seems to have been no need of any ruse; he could easily have left the country; neither road as a matter of fact was blocked by the rebels; or if, as he says now, he was so keen on fighting, why did he not leave the Residency, and see what he could do?

18. He says now my treatment of him caused him great agitation. All I can say is that before leaving he expressed his gratitude to me, and regret for any trouble he had given.

Paragraph 15.

19. There is an inaccuracy in paragraph 15. I have to inspect the jail periodically, and the number of prisoners is always somewhere about 100; the building would not hold 400 men. The prisoners did not, I believe, join in the attack, but the Senapati, or some one, let them all out on the morning of the 22nd after the Palace was taken. They were put back again a day or two afterwards.

Paragraph 16.

20. There is also a slight inaccuracy in the list of services, viz.,—

(c) Five hundred coolies were supplied in 1888 and one thousand in 1889-90.

(d) These posts were established to protect the Manipur frontier and stop murders on the Manipur-Cachar road.

(e) Sangam is usually considered in Manipur territory. The 500 troops were quite unnecessary.

Paragraph 17

21. Paragraph 17 recapitulates the charges against me, but I hope that what I have written above will prove to the Chief Commissioner what little truth there is in the allegations. To put the matter briefly, my contention is (1) that the Maharaja could have left the Residency at any time if he wished to fight, but that he had no men or arms to speak of, and had not the slightest inclination to fight; (2) that I all through assured the Maharaja I could guarantee his safety while at the Residency as long as he liked to stay, but that until the troops came from Kohima I could take no offensive steps to replace him on the gadi; (3) that the Maharaja's abdication was real and bonâ fide. I was against it at first, but when I saw he had fully made up his mind, I considered it the best way of peacefully settling the dispute.

22. If the Maharaja would have tried to help himself in the slightest degree, I would have done what I could; but it is no use the Maharaja being so brave when he is safe in Calcutta: if he had shown some of his bravery here, he would probably have saved his throne.

Paragraph 18

23. In paragraph 18 reference is made to the previous misconduct of the Senapati. But it was the Maharaja himself who refused to punish the Senapati for "the murderous assault," and also justified his brother's action, although strongly advised by the Government to punish him.

24. This is all I have to say on the Maharaja's letter. I have refrained as far as possible from repeating what I have already said in my letter No. 288, dated the 25th September 1890.

25. With reference to paragraph 2 of your letter under reply, I should say that, as far as I can tell, the feeling of the bulk of the people is one of perfect contentment under their new ruler, and there is no reason why this should not be the case; the revolt was not one of the people against their ruler, but it was a personal quarrel between the brothers, and there have been no changes amongst the Ministers or minor officials that I know of which might produce discontent. The Jubraj and Senapati are both popular, and at present the people seem quite content.

26. If the Maharaja returns to Manipur, in my opinion he has no chance of regaining his throne unless brought back by British troops. The Maharaja was not unpopular, and naturally he has some adherents; but the people were not very enthusiastic about him, and they cordially disliked the Pucca Sena. I would certainly not advise the return of the Maharaja, but if he does come back, he should be accompanied by a force of our troops sufficient to overawe all opposition; but even then I believe the Jubraj and Senapati would fight in preference to being sent into exile in India, which would be necessary, as after late events the eight brothers could never live peaceably here again all together.

27. I annex a copy of the letter asked for in paragraph 3 of your letter, and I also return the original representation sent with your letter.

[Translation.]

The Maharaja of Manipur, Greeting, to His Excellency the Senapati.

I have much to inform my younger brother, the Sénapati. I have no hope of fighting against you, and I have already told you before that I intended to go once to Brindaban, but I am unable to cross the hills on foot and go to Brindaban. Therefore, my brother, be kind and arrange for your elder brother's (i.e., my) journey to Brindaban, and you must for our father the late Maharaja's sake forgive the Sagol Hanjaba (i.e., Pucca Sena), who has sinned much against you, and I wish to hear from you that you will do this.

(Signed) SURA CHANDRA SINGH.

1812 Bhadra Sukla, 9th, Tuesday.

No. 203-E., dated Fort William, the 24th January 1891 (Confidential).

To—The Chief Commissioner of Assam.

I am directed to acknowledge the receipt of your Secretary's letter No. 5210-P., dated the 31st December 1890, reporting on the circumstances connected with the departure of the Maharaja of Manipur from that State.

2. It appears that the recent attack upon the Maharaja's Palace arose out of the quarrels between two of the Maharaja's brothers, the Senapati and the Pucca Sena; and although the circumstances which immediately gave rise to the disturbance had more intimate connection with an apparently unimportant difference between the Maharaja and two younger brothers, the Senapati took the leading part in the affair as soon as violence was offered by these. The Maharaja and the Pucca Sena took refuge in the Residency, and the Jubraj alone of the brothers held aloof until he saw which way the dispute would end.

3. These occurrences took place on the night of the 21st September 1890. The Political Agent, Mr. Grimwood, having telegraphed the state of affairs to you was instructed to defend the Residency, to endeavour to mediate between the brothers, and not to assume the offensive without informing you of the reasons for which he recommended that course, and obtaining orders. He was also told that he could obtain 200 rifles from Kohima if he called for them. The Maharaja spent the next day, the 22nd, in the Residency at Manipur. His brother, the Pucca Sena, appears to have made some show of collecting men for the purpose of attacking the Palace; but neither he nor the Maharaja himself appears to have made any actual attempt to regain their position, nor did they directly apply to the Political Agent to assist them in doing so. When, moreover, the Political Agent, to prevent the chance of a night alarm, insisted on the afternoon of the 22nd September upon many of the Manipuris who thronged the Residency compound withdrawing from its precincts, the Maharaja began to talk of leaving Manipur and going to Brindaban as a devotee. The Political Agent attempted to dissuade His Highness from this step, and succeeded in inducing him to postpone a decision until the following morning. The Maharaja, however, was determined, and before Mr. Grimwood could, on the morning of the 23rd September, carry out your instructions to endeavour to mediate between the parties, repeated his intention of leaving, and wrote to the Senapati saying that he had no hope of fighting against him; that he wished to go to Brindaban, but was unable to cross the hills on foot, and therefore asked the Senapati to arrange for his journey. Mr. Grimwood took this letter to the Palace, and no longer tried to dissuade the Maharaja. The Senapati was perfectly satisfied with the proposed arrangement, and with his concurrence the Maharaja left the same evening for Cachar.

4. There is no reason to believe that these events were the result of popular feeling against the Maharaja or of any deep or widespread discontent with his rule. Mr. Grimwood certainly says that the Senapati is the most popular of all the brothers, but he also says that, as soon as the Maharaja's intention of leaving the country was known, numbers of Manipuris flocked to the Residency to see him, most of them bringing various sums of money to present to him, and, "to judge from the way the people wept, one would say the Maharaja was popular, and every one seemed sorry at his departure."

5. The Maharaja had no sooner arrived at a place of safety in Cachar than he repented of his precipitate action in leaving the State, and he has since endeavoured to show that he had no intention of abdicating, but that he wrote his letter to the Senapati as a ruse, and in order to get safely to a place where he could obtain your advice and assistance. It is clear, however, that the Maharaja's action was as deliberate as any action could in his state of terror be; and if his resignation can be said to have not been intended as a final and permanent abdication of the gadi, it is only in the sense that his mind was at the time so engrossed in the difficulties of the moment that he was incapable of taking account of the effect of his actions upon the future.

6. At the same time, when Mr. Grimwood received your telegram directing him to mediate and assuring him of military assistance from Kohima, the proper course for him to pursue was to have gone to the Senapati at the Palace, to have ascertained the reason of the disturbances, and to have communicated with you. It would then in all probability have become apparent before the Political Agent had committed himself to assenting to the Maharaja's flight, and thereby admitted the success of the Senapati's revolt, that the Maharaja was entirely in our hands, and that the Senapati, a declared traitor in open mutiny, could have been dealt with by us according as circumstances demanded.

7. The Senapati has more than once incurred the displeasure of the Government of India on account of the violence of his conduct; and if the Maharaja in 1888 had not been afraid of his turbulent brother, he would have been banished from the State. The Maharaja, whom we have recognized as the ruler of Manipur, has now been ousted by a cabal in his own family led by this man; and if the British Government acquiesce in the present state of affairs and recognise the Jubraj as ruler of Manipur, the Senapati will wield the real power in the State The Government of India cannot regard occurrences of this kind with indifference. We have now a stronger interest in Manipur than we had in past years, and the toleration of such disorders may be expected to have a mischievous effect upon the lawless tribes adjoining the State—tribes which we are now engaged in reducing to order.

8. The opinion which the Governor-General in Council has formed from a perusal of the papers in this case is that we should intervene with a sufficient show of strength to make it understood that we intend to be masters of the situation; that the differences between the Maharaja's brothers must be settled on principles of justice and for the benefit of good government in Manipur; and that whatever arrangement is come to must have our full sanction.

9. The Governor-General in Council thinks that you should visit Manipur for the avowed purpose of making and, if necessary, enforcing a decision upon the merits of the case. You should in that case probably have with you a sufficient force to overawe the conspirators. It is probable that a very small body of troops would be enough, and that sufficient numbers could be taken from Cachar or Kohima.

10. In the opinion of the Governor-General in Council, if you find that the Maharaja would receive a reasonable amount of support from the people of Manipur, he might be re-instated, and promised assistance in consideration of his implicitly following our instructions. The Senapati should in this case be removed from Manipur, and placed in surveillance elsewhere. Indeed, it will probably be desirable that the Senapati should in any case be removed, for, even if the Maharaja proves hopelessly incompetent and the Jubraj is recognised, it would be necessary to remove his disreputable adherents from the State, and to punish the Senapati for his violent and lawless conduct. I am to request the favour of an early expression of your opinion upon the course which is here suggested.

Dated Calcutta, the 9th February 1891.

From—HIS HIGHNESS THE MAHARAJA SURA CHANDRA SINGH of Manipur,
To—The Secretary to the Government of India, Foreign Department.

Availing myself of the reservation in my letter to you of the 21st November last, with which I forwarded a copy of my memorial, dated the 14th idem, addressed to the Chief Commissioner of Assam, I now desire to place before His Excellency the Viceroy certain additional points bearing on my case which I think should be before His Excellency when, in fulfilment of the kind assurance contained in your letter to me, dated 11th December last, he takes up my case for decision.

I have received no intimation from you of the receipt by the Government of India of the reports of the Political Agent and the Chief Commissioner of Assam on my memorial, but I feel assured that I shall be given an opportunity of dealing with anything in their reports (if anything there be) likely to prejudice my case with Government. I desire first to deal with the reflections on my character as a ruler which have been made publicly by my enemies in Manipur or at their instigation, and which may, owing to absence of testimony on my side, have received credence with those whose opinion may have weight with you. I allude chiefly to the statements publicly made that, while ruling my territory, I was a priest-ridden imbecile, neglected my duties, and devoted myself to the performance of religious ceremonies and observances, so as to justify my subjects in welcoming the change following on the Palace intrigue and coup de main which, assisted by the Political Agent's action, expelled me from my kingdom. These accusations I again deny absolutely.

I was educated in the Sanscrit and the Vernacular languages of my country with a very slight knowledge of English. When I attained the age of discretion, I was during the lifetime of my father initiated in the practical work of administration, and subsequently entrusted with responsible State duties, which, as Jubraj or heir-apparent, I continued to discharge for some 15 years to the entire satisfaction of the people, of my father up to the time of his death in 1884 (when at the age of 34 I succeeded him), and of the Political Agents who, as far as I am aware, always spoke well of me.

I had the honour very recently of an interview with His Excellency the Viceroy, to whose judgment and in whose hands I leave the charge of imbecility. Sir Charles Elliott, the present Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, formerly Chief Commissioner of Assam, knew me at Manipur, and I would ask that his opinion of Manipur affairs and my rule there be obtained.

Colonel Sir James Johnstone was for several years Political Agent at Manipur, both while I was Jubraj and Maharaja He is more familiar with my career and Manipur affairs than any other Political Agent. He, like many others, knows well the antecedents of the Senapati Koirong. I would beg that his testimony be obtained, if it is not already plain on his official reports and diaries, as to the character of my opponents If his judgment is against me, I have nothing more to say.

My great blunder, as is now evident, was my lenient and friendly treatment of the Senapati and his brother Kula Dhuja, the usurpers. I treated them as my own brothers in spite of much provocation, and entrusted them with important posts, which they have used to oust me from my kingdom.

The Senapati, the author of the rebellion, is a man whom Colonel Sir James Johnstone, so long as he was at Manipur, never allowed into his bungalow; and Colonel Johnstone openly declared that, if ever misfortunes befell Manipur, the Senapati would be their author, as has now been the case.

I do not desire to enter into the reasons for the Senapati's influence with Mr. Grimwood, whose action at the time of the rebellion I have already dealt with, but to that influence in great measure I attribute my exile.

I now hear that my opponents had grave cause for complaint against me. Were any complaints made to the Agent while I was at Manipur? If so, why was I not asked to explain them? If not, with what show of reason are they now brought forward except as an attempt to justify the rebellion? As regards my being priest-ridden, if such an accusation has actually been made against me, can any instance be shown of my having allowed myself to be ruled by a priest in State matters? The fact is that we are a superior class and caste of Hindus next to the Brahmins, and our religion requires us to respect good and learned Brahmin Pandits, of whom, on account of our isolated situation, there are very few in Manipur

The only Pandit Brahmin who can claim to exercise any influence over us, and to whom we render the highest respect, is our family Guru or spiritual guide, who resides in the district of Murshidabad in Bengal, and visits Manipur once in three or four years, seldom remaining in our capital more than two months.

I have stated (paragraph 14th of memorial) that my people would rejoice at my return, and that my army is faithful to me. I am prepared to put this to the test in any way His Excellency may direct. Were I not assured by conviction and by a great mass of evidence now in my possession (and which I am prepared to lay confidentially before you) dating from soon after the time of my departure till now of the good-will and respect of my people and of the most influential men among them, I should not trouble His Excellency to consider my claim to return to my dominions.

No one can deny that there was universal regret and lamentation among all classes from the time when I left Manipur until I crossed the frontier. I cannot for obvious reasons allude save in general terms to the assurance of support I have received since my departure from many quarters. Until I return I must be careful to do nothing to endanger the safety of my friends, but I desire an interview in order that I may discuss this point with you and, if possible, with the Chief Commissioner on his arrival in Calcutta

If I cannot then satisfy you, I would ask permission to proceed, under any conditions you may impose, to Jhenighat, which is the boundary between British territory and the Manipur State, with a personal guard to protect me while on the way there, and with a qualified British officer to judge whether my reception would be such as to justify my being reinstated, and by his opinion I would agree to be bound.

If that suggestion cannot be entertained, will Government send to Manipur a special officer, not prejudiced, like Mr. Grimwood, by recent events and by his own action, to make enquiries through private and confidential channels as to the feelings of the people and of the leading men of the army and the State? They obviously could not express their real opinions in public while the present régime is in power, as in the event of my not returning they, their families, and property would be at the mercy of the usurper.

I trouble you with this further statement because I hear the Chief Commissioner is expected in Calcutta, and I earnestly beg that I may have an opportunity of establishing my case and of satisfying His Excellency the Viceroy and the Commissioner and yourself that my statements are true. It is a matter of life and death to me; my case is being watched with interest by Native Chiefs as well as by my people to see whether the paramount power will allow a successful conspiracy to deprive a people of its Prince, and, without any expression of disapproval, permit its responsible agent to aid that conspiracy by disarming the followers of the ruling Prince, instead of calling upon the rebels to lay down their arms and not to dare to disturb by force the possession of a Prince who ruled recognised and protected by the British Government.

Dated Yacht Sonamukhi, the 9th February 1891.

From—The HON'BLE J. W. QUINTON, C.S.I.,

To—W. J. CUNINGHAM, Esq., C.S.

Your official letter No. 203-E., dated 24th January, reached me on the 2nd instant at Udalguri in the Darrang district, where I had no materials with me to enable me to consider it fully. I have since then thought over the subject very carefully, and, before sending up officially the expression of opinion which I am directed to submit, I write demi-officially on certain points of the case, as to which I am somewhat uncertain whether they have been left open questions still undecided or not.

The restoration of the Maharaja.—I am still doubtful whether the principles of justice call for this step, and I am certain that it would not be for the benefit of good government in Manipur. In your 5th paragraph the Government of India express the opinion that the Maharaja's action in resigning was as deliberate as any action could in his state of terror be. As to the state of terror, he was no doubt very much disturbed, and had reason to be so; but the Political Agent assured him all long of his personal safety, and he had no reason to doubt that this assurance would be scrupulously fulfilled, while, on the other hand, he took part of a day and a whole night to think over his determination, and adhered to it, although he knew the Political Agent was about to endeavour to compose the quarrel. He wrote the letter to the Senapati announcing his resolution, and only on his arrival at Lakhimpur 12 days afterwards intimated that he had changed his opinion. It should be remembered that he was accompanied by three of his brothers, the eldest of whom, Pucca Sena, had the strongest interest in persuading him to withdraw from the position he had taken up The principles of justice scarcely seem to call for our allowing the Maharaja to change his mind in this way in a matter of such serious importance.

Again, there is nothing in the character or previous conduct of the Maharaja which warrants the conclusion that his restoration would be for the benefit of good government in Manipur. In Fitzpatrick's demi-official letter to Durand of 23rd May 1888, he is described as a miserably weak man, and up to the present time (see Grimwood's description of him in paragraph 2 of the letter forwarded with my No. 4209-P., dated the 9th October last) he has not altered for the better. In 1888 his conduct in regard to the punishment of the Senapati exhibited the greatest vacillation, and ended in his disregarding the strongly expressed advice of my predecessor, and brought on him the grave rebuke addressed to him in the kharita referred to in your official letter No. 2155-E., dated the 21st October 1888. Had the Maharaja then shown ordinary firmness and acted on instead of rejecting our advices, the present state of things would probably not have come about. Again, so lately as August last, I was obliged to recommend that the Government of India should negative what seemed to me a singularly ill-judged request of the Maharaja's, viz., to allow the return to Manipur of the Bara Chauba, a pretender to his throne, who had only a few years ago been in insurrection against him; and, lastly, his conduct in the present crisis exhibited lamentable weakness, and affords no assurance that, if restored, he would be other than what he has hitherto been—a tool in the hands of others. His restoration would simply mean that the authority of the State would be wielded by Pucca Sena, for whom no one has a good word to say (see Political Agent's diary, 23rd September), and the two other brothers now with the Maharaja, instead of by the Jubraj and the Senapati. This is not a state of things likely to lead to strong government, or to anything but a renewal of the quarrels and confusion from which we have just emerged. The Jubraj is the recognized heir to the throne; the Senapati is his next brother, and they will not lightly forego their claims in favour of younger brothers. The present Government has now been in existence for nearly six months, and is conducted with tranquillity. It has shown itself in various matters amenable to the advice of the Political Agent, and has, as already reported, met the views of the Government of India in regard to the Manipur Levy. The only manifestation of. feeling against it is that described in the annexed extract from the Political Agent's diary of the 20th December, which was of the most trifling nature, and I was assured by Mr. Grimwood, who met me at Kohima last month, that there was no feeling whatever shown in favour of the return of the Maharaja, and that the present Government was universally accepted. I have enquired further by telegram on this point, and will let you know should things now be otherwise. The punishment of the Senapati is not in my mind in any way dependent on the Maharaja's restoration. An enquiry into his conduct and his punishment to the satisfaction of the Government of India can be made a condition precedent to the recognition of the Jubraj, and, unless it is intended to exclude him permanently from the succession, his recognition as Jubraj in the event of the present Jubraj becoming Maharaja should be made to depend on his obedience and good conduct. I am making arrangements for a visit to Manipur next month in view of the Government of India determining that the question of the return of the Maharaja should be re-opened, but, if I am right in supposing that the point is one on which I am asked for an opinion, I would strongly advi e against it. The question is one, as I said before, in which the people of the State have little interest, and is after all a mere family dispute; and a visit from the Chief Commissioner and enquiries such as those suggested must have the effect of unsettling men's minds and disturbing the tranquillity which now prevails without affording any better grounds than we now have for coming to a conclusion on the matter to be enquired into.

P. S.—I hope to be in Calcutta on the 11th or 12th.

Extract from the Diary of the Political Agent, Manipur, for the week ending the 27th September 1890

During the afternoon the Residency was crowded with Manipuris who came to see the Maharaja, most of them bringing money to give him. To judge from the way they cried, and from the crowd on the road outside, the Maharaja seems to be popular enough, but no one has a good word to say for the Pucca Sena * * * * * *

Extract from the Diary of the Political Agent, Manipur, for week ending the 20th December 1890.

16th December—The Senapati and Tongal general came in the morning. They informed me that a conspiracy against the Regent had been detected a few days ago. It seems to have been a very trifling affair. One Kaitiba Subadar and three Rajkumars (descendants of former Raja) appear to have collected about 30 or 40 persons, but they only had one gun and a sword amongst them. The conspiracy in fact had hardly commenced when the Darbar heard of it and arrested the people. It does not seem to have been in any way connected with the ex-Maharaja Some of the people were punished by a flogging of 10 stripes each, and the four ringleaders are under arrest. I told the Senapati the whole thing was a trifling matter, and that the ringleaders ought not to be punished severely.

Dated Calcutta, the 19th February 1891.

From—The HON'BLE J. W. QUINTON, C.S.I.,

To—W. J. CUNINGHAM, Esq., C.S.

Your letter of this morning asks my opinion on a settlement of the Manipur case based on the restoration of the Maharaja and deportation of the Jubraj and Senapati, the exclusion of the latter from the succession, and the detention of Pucca Sena if I think it necessary with reference to the question of good administration in Manipur without constant interference, and of our maintaining an effectively dominant position whenever British interests require anything of the State.

As regards the first of these two points, I stated in my letter of the 9th of February the reasons against the restoration, based on the weakness of the Maharaja's character as shown by his conduct since his accession, and would refer you to what I then wrote. Since the death of Maharaja Chandra Kirti Singh in 1886, the powers of the State have been divided between his surviving sons, or some of them, the Maharaja being merely primus interpares (see Chief Commissioner's letter to Foreign Department, No. 1433, dated 23rd May 1888, paragraphs 11 and 12). There are now seven sons besides the Maharaja. He was accompanied on his retirement to India by the Pucca Sena, his third surviving brother, and two younger brothers, Samoo Hanjaba and Gopal Sena. The eldest brother, the Jubraj, now Regent at Manipur, is supported there by the Senapati, who comes next to him, and two younger brothers who made the attack on the palace, Dolaroi Hanjaba and Zillah Singh. The Maharaja proved himself unable to keep the peace between these two parties, and latterly openly espoused the cause of Pucca Sena against that of the Senapati. Several attempts previous to that which gave rise to this correspondence have been made to upset the Maharaja's rule since his accession—two of Bara Chauba in 1886, which were finally suppressed only by the employment of the Cachar Frontier Police under a British officer (see paragraph 3, General Summary of Administration Report for 1886-87). These were followed by two attempts in 1887—one, three months after the Maharaja's accession, headed by the Wang Khairakpa, who was shot through the head while making a rush at the Maharaja's private residence; the other of Jogendra Singh, heading a party of exiles from Manipur, which also called for the employment of Military Police from Cachar and British troops from Manipur.

The Maharaja left the State under circumstances which have been fully reported on; the administration of the State has been carried on by what I may call the opposition, headed by the heir-apparent, for the past six months; and the restoration of the Maharaja and his adherent means the expulsion of the present de facto rulers who have hitherto given no cause of complaint to us, or, so far as I can ascertain, to their subjects. Looking to the antecedents of the parties, there is every reason to expect that attempts to upset the Maharaja's Government, such as those I have described in 1886 and 1887, will ensue. The Jubraj is the heir-apparent, and will have on his side numerous partisans who look to his future accession; and the Senapati, the most popular of the brothers, the present head of the army, a man of bold and turbulent character, may be expected, when driven to desperation, if he does not openly resist, to use these utmost efforts to stir up disaffection and rebellion. As pointed out in my official letter No. 5210, dated 30th December last, this will involve a reconsideration of the arrangements made for garrisoning Manipur last year, and bring about occasion for constant interference. A force of 100 rifles, the Political Agent's present escort (a portion of which is employed in guarding stores in the abandoned cantonment of Langthobal), is obviously inadequate to put down all attempts at insurrection, and protect the Political Agent and British subjects and property from popular disturbances; and less help than formerly can be expected from Cachar, as the head quarters of the military police now quartered there will shortly be transferred to the Lushai Hills. Constant interference will be no less necessary in the internal affairs of the country; the weakness of the Maharaja, already dwelt upon, will leave him a ready tool in the hands of the people around him who have no direct responsibility for the consequence of their advice, and the Political Agent cannot allow abuses of authority, which at present might be held not to give grounds for interference, to be indulged in by a ruler set up and maintained by ourselves. Under the circumstances described, I do not think that good administration can be secured without constant interference.

As to maintaining an effectively dominant position whenever British interests require anything of the State, such a position should, I consider, be maintained whatever be the decision regarding the restoration, and it appears to me that it will be more effectively asserted by our refusing to accept the withdrawal of his abdication by the Maharaja and by recognizing the succession of the Jubraj on conditions to be made by ourselves, one of which should be an enquiry into the conduct of the Senapati and his punishment to the satisfaction of the Government of India than by again setting up a chief who has proved unable to maintain himself, and shown such weakness that nothing but embarassments are to be expected from his restoration. In either case we can insist on what conditions we please, but in the case of the Maharaja we have no ground for assurance that such conditions can be fulfilled, and we have the certainty that the increase of the British force at Manipur is necessary for his support; while, in the case of the Jubraj, we have no reason at present to suppose that such an increase is called for, and he will feel that his position must depend on his good conduct and compliance with our wishes.

No. 360-E., dated Fort William, the 21st February 1891 (Confidential).

To—The Chief Commissioner of Assam.

Since you received my letter No. 203, dated the 24th January, the Governor-General in Council has had an opportunity of conferring with you in person upon the affairs of Manipur, and you have expressed your opinion in two letters, dated the 9th and 19th February. These letters will for convenience be treated officially, and brought upon the records of the Government of India The Government of India have received also a further representation* from His Highness the Maharaja, a copy of which is forwarded for your information.

* Dated the 9th February 1891

2. The present state of affairs in Manipur may be shortly described as follows: Dissension among the Maharaja's brothers, and particularly between the Senapati and Pucca Sena, brought about a demonstration against His Highness which, though it was begun by two younger brothers, was led by the Senapati. This hostile movement resulted in the Maharaja resigning the gadi and leaving the State; and the representative of the British Government failed to induce the Maharaja to reconsider his determination. The Jubraj, who is the next brother to the Maharaja, and has been acknowledged as His Highness's heir, although he had held aloof from either side during the commotion at the Palace and the events of the following day, and had in your belief probably no previous knowledge of the intended revolt, threw in his lot with the Senapati as soon as the Maharaja withdrew from Manipur. He has been temporarily, and, pending a decision on the case by the Government of India, acknowledged by you as Regent.

3. It is evident that the Jubraj owes his present position rather to the successful issue of his brother's insurrection than to the authority of the British Government, and that, while the Senapati remains in Manipur unpunished for his treachery against his eldest brother, the Maharaja, the real power in the State, will be in the Senapati's hands This is not a state of affairs which the Government of India can view with indifference, nor would it be to the credit of the British power any more than to the interests of the people of Manipur itself that the Governor-General in Council should acquiesce in such a settlement of the case.

4. As I have already in my letter above cited informed you, the Governor-General in Council considers that it will be desirable that the Senapati should be removed from Manipur and punished for his lawless conduct. I am to enquire where you would recommend that he should be interned, and what steps you consider necessary for carrying out his removal without affording him the chance, which his position as head of the Manipur forces might possibly given him, of making any forcible opposition.

5. The Governor-General in Council entertained no doubt of the necessity for excluding both the Senapati and Pucca Sena from the Manipur State. It was not, however, so clear whether the Jubraj should be placed on the gadi or whether the Maharaja should be restored. You do not hesitate to recommend the former. The Maharaja is described as a miserably weak man, and you recall his vacillation in 1888, when he disregarded the advice which was given to him and failed to punish the Senapati, thereby, as His Highness acknowledges in his letter of the 9th February, bringing upon himself his present misfortunes. You anticipate that the Maharaja's restoration would involve the necessity of strengthening the garrison at Manipur, and give rise to frequent occasions for interference in support of the ruler as well as in the internal affairs of the State

6. It has already been intimated to you that, in the opinion of the Governor-General in Council, whatever arrangement is come to in the affairs of the Manipur State must be brought about with the full sanction of the British Government. His Excellency in Council accepts your opinion that it will be to the advantage of Manipur and to the furtherance of British interests to recognize the Jubraj rather than restore the Maharaja. His Highness's action in resigning and forsaking his State leaves the Government of India at liberty to select the form of government which appears to give the greatest promise for the future, provided that such Government is not based upon the successful issue of the Senapati's revolt.

7. In the opinion of the Government of India it is advisable that you should visit Manipur and make known on the spot the decision which the Governor-General in Council desires you to enforce. You should take with you a sufficient force even though opposition may not be expected, and you should report for the orders of the Government of India the conditions which you propose to attach to the recognition as Maharaja of Manipur of the present Jubraj.

8. There are several matters of detail to which, in conclusion, I am directed to invite your attention, and as to the disposal of which I am to request your opinion. The amount of restraint to be placed on the Senapati, and the allowance to be made for his maintenance; the allowances for the Maharaja and those brothers who will stay with him; and the place of His Highness's future residence. You should also report whether the younger brothers, Dolaroi Hanjaba and Zillah Singh, who began the disturbances on the 21st September last, ought to be sent away from Manipur or may be permitted to remain, and whether the three brothers who are now in Calcutta with the Maharaja will voluntarily stay with him, or whether it will be necessary to keep them in British India as political detenus.

No. 36 (Secret / External), dated Fort William, the 4th March 1891.

From—The Government of India,

To—The Secretary of State for India.

We have the honour to forward, for Your Lordship's information, the papers specified in the accompanying list regarding recent affairs in Manipur.

2. The first telegraphic information which we received on the 22nd September 1890 of disturbances having broken out at Manipur was totally unexpected; and the news of the Maharaja's abdication and departure followed almost immediately. It was subsequently reported to us by the Chief Commissioner that the Maharaja desired to be permitted to return to his State.

3. We have enquired fully into all the circumstances, and we have had the advantage of discussing the steps which it is desirable to take with the Chief Commissioner, who has lately visited Calcutta. We are satisfied that the disturbances which led to the downfall of the Maharaja arose entirely from personal quarrels within his own family circle, and that they were aggravated owing to His Highness's deplorable weakness of character. Neither popular feeling nor the ambition of rival parties in the State had any place in the matter, and in arriving at the decision which will be found expressed in the letter from our Foreign Department to the Chief Commissioner of Assam, which forms the last enclosure to this despatch, we have been guided by a consideration of what in our opinion is best for the State and people of Manipur. We should for obvious reasons have preferred to replace the Maharaja in authority, but to do so would only lead to the repeated interference of the British power in supporting a ruler who is incapable of standing alone, and who entirely lacks the decision of character required to enable him to make use of any aid which might be offered to him.

It is now my duty to tell Your Highness that, after a full and careful enquiry into the conditions and causes which contributed to recent developments in Manipur, the Governor-General in Council is of opinion that it will be to the advantage of the State and the people to allow the present administration to continue undisturbed and to recognise the Jubraj as your successor in the Chiefship The Chief Commissioner of Assam has accordingly to-day made known this decision in Manipur At the same time those who have been the direct cause of the disturbances will be suitably punished.

I am sorry to be the medium of conveying this disappointing intelligence, but I am sure Your Highness will understand that this step has been taken solely in the interest of the future welfare of the Manipur State and its people.

Telegram, No 650 E, dated the 6th April 1891

From—The Foreign Secretary, Simla,

To—GENERAL GRAHAM, Myingyan

The Adjutant-General has informed you that you will have political as well as military authority during expedition to Manipur. Viceroy wishes me to inform you that McCabe, who is now in Silchar, has been appointed Chief Political Officer. He will enter Manipur with force from Silchar, and will join as soon as he can safely do so. Please help him. When he has joined you, he will be under your orders. McCabe is an officer specially qualified to give advice, and you will no doubt attach due importance to his views. It is understood that you have received orders to advance as far as Thobal, or some point about same distance from Manipur, and that you will at this stage endeavour to obtain release of prisoners before precipitating a collision which might imperil their safety. I am to issue following general instructions for your guidance in political matters:—First, if Manipur Darbar try to stop your advance short of Thobal by threat of injury to prisoners, you should reply pointing out uselessness of resistance, warning Manipuris that if any harm is done to our officers none of those concerned must expect any mercy at our hands, and refusing to discontinue your advance If Darbar try to make conditions about release of prisoners, you are authorized to promise immunity from punishment with death or transportation beyond seas to any persons to whom you may consider it desirable to give such a pledge, provided they have not been guilty of actual murder. You should not, if possible, promise anything else of importance without reference to Government of India. Government should on no account be committed without sanction to any pledge regarding future political arrangements in Manipur. If you are in telegraphic communication with India, you will refer all such points to this office. If not, you must use your own discretion regarding best means of obtaining release of prisoners, but in any case let Darbar understand that Government of India are very unlikely to grant any terms whatever beyond guarantee already authorized. You are authorized to incur such expenditure on account of rewards for assistance, or for information, or for other secret service as you may consider desirable. Setting aside release of prisoners, your object is to re-assert political supremacy of British Government and enforce unconditional submission of Darbar. McCabe and Collett will be informed of these instructions.

Telegram, No. 708-E., dated the 13th April 1891

From—The Foreign Secretary, Simla,

To—GENERAL GRAHAM, Tamu.

My telegram 6th. Under altered circumstances, I am directed to send you following further instructions. Please acknowledge receipt :

First.—When, or if possible before, you cross the frontier, you should issue proclamation stating that as the representative of the British Government and its troops have been opposed by the armed forces of the Manipur State, that State has become guilty of open rebellion against Her Majesty the Queen, Empress of India. You should say that the authority of the Regent Kula Chandra Dhuja Singh is therefore declared to be at an end, and that until the further pleasure of the British Government is known, you will exercise supreme authority throughout the State.

Second—You should warn the people against resisting your advance ; and should inform them that you are going to Manipur to take possession of the capital, and to punish as they deserve all who have acted as leaders or instigators of the revolt, or who have been concerned in the treacherous murder of British subjects.

Third.—You will understand, however, that you are not to inflict the penalty of death upon persons other than those guilty of murder or abetment of murder, or of having acted as leaders or instigators of revolt. Indiscriminate punishment of the rank and file would be neither humane nor politic.

Fourth.—Your objects should be, after relieving Grant and Presgrave, to take Manipur, to re-establish order, and, if possible, to capture the Regent and others in authority. No terms should be offered to them, and, if they make overtures, you should refuse to treat on any basis but that of unconditional surrender. Do not hold out any promise or hope of their lives being spared.

Fifth.—When Manipur is in your possession, you should disarm troops and city people, and disperse all armed gatherings, and issue a proclamation notifying that all persons thereafter found bearing arms without license in Manipur, or within such limits as you may think proper to prescribe, will be punishable with death.

Sixth.—Also you are as soon as possible to institute an investigation into causes and circumstances of outbreak, including preparations made beforehand.

Seventh.—You will adopt the following procedure for the punishment of offenders. Any persons suspected of murder or abetment of murder, or of acting as instigators or leaders of revolt, should be placed on their trial before McCabe or Soppitt, to each of whom is hereby delegated the power of passing capital sentences subject to confirmation by you.

Eighth.—If the Regent or any other member of the ruling family falls into your hands and is suspected of murder or abetment of murder, or of having acted as a leader or instigator of revolt, he should be tried by a Court consisting of three officers, including at least one Political Officer. Their sentences to be subject to confirmation by the Government of India.

Ninth.—The punishment of convicted offenders should be public and striking, but it should be completed as soon as possible.

Tenth.—Besides punishment inflicted upon individuals, it is right that some penalty should be imposed upon the Manipur people generally, they being generally responsible for the late outrage. The Government of India has this subject under its consideration, and you will perhaps be able to suggest some suitable measure. In order at once to impress upon the people of Manipur the gravity of the offence which the State has committed, the Palace buildings, or a portion of them, might possibly be demolished. You might also obtain some portion of the supplies your force will require by the levy of a fine in kind. But remember that it is not desirable to drive the Manipur people into further resistance, or to make them more difficult to deal with hereafter. Let any penalty imposed be just and deliberate, and take care that when punishment is being inflicted, the strictest discipline is maintained. If the Palace buildings are demolished, take care that any sacred objects are as far as possible respected.

Eleventh.—You should bear in mind that throughout these instructions the expression "Manipur people" is not intended to refer merely to the inhabitants of the Manipur valley, but also to the inhabitants of the adjoining hill tracts acknowledging the supremacy of Manipur.

Twelfth.—You should endeavour to ascertain what has been done with the bodies of our murdered officers and other British subjects, and should see that they are treated with all possible respect. Also you should reserve such relics as you may think likely to be valued by friends of the dead.

Telegram No 954 E., dated the 11th May 1891.

From —The Viceroy, Simla,

To—The Secretary of State, London.

Foreign. Following is correct summary of events Manipur as far as we have been able to ascertain from most recent accounts :

Quinton left Calcutta 21st February, taking with him our letter No. 360-E. of same day which contained his instructions. He was directed to visit Manipur and make known the decision of the Government of India regarding recent disturbances. Decision was that Regent should be recognized as Maharaja, and that Senapati, who had revolted against the former Maharaja, should be removed from State. Quinton was to take sufficient troops to enforce our orders.

On 7th March Quinton left Golaghat for Manipur with 400 men. The number of the escort was fixed after careful consultation between Quinton and General Officer Commanding in Assam. Record of consultation shows that possibility of resistance on part of Senapati was fully understood by Quinton from beginning, and explained to Collett and Skene. Quinton also pointed out that Senapati had some guns. A force of 500 Gurkhas in Manipur, supported by 200 en route from Silchar, was, however, considered ample to overawe malcontents. Papers show that Quinton himself would have been content with even smaller force.

Gurdon, Assistant Commissioner, was sent on in advance to see Grimwood, Political Agent in Manipur, and obtain his opinion on the situation. Gurdon reached Manipur 15th. He informed Grimwood of intention to deport

Senapati; asked Grimwood best way to arrest him without affording opportunity for forcible resistance. Grimwood replied that Senapati personally would resist to the utmost. Grimwood could not suggest any means of obtaining possession of Senapati without giving him opportunity of forcibly resisting Gurdon asked Grimwood whether he could bring pressure to bear on Regent to arrest Senapati. Grimwood replied that he could not.

Gurdon rejoined Quinton on 18th at Kairong, four marches from Manipur.

On same day Quinton telegraphed to Foreign Secretary as already reported, and on 19th, not 21st, Foreign Secretary answered approving his proposals.

The word "Darbar" in Quinton's telegram of 18th means Court or entourage.

On 21st Grimwood came out to meet Quinton at Sengmai, one march from Manipur. Presumably Quinton then explained his views fully to Grimwood.

Four miles from Manipur, on the 22nd, Quinton was met by Senapati, who had with him two regiments. Streets of Manipur were lined by Manipuri troops to number of about 500.

Outside the fort Quinton was received by Regent. Quinton then said Darbar would be held in Residency at 12 o'clock.

When time came Regent appeared at Residency gate, but guard-of-honour had been late in falling in, and Grimwood asked Regent to wait a little. After few minutes Regent came on to Residency steps. Then it became known that Senapati had not come, and he was sent for He refused to come on score of illness, and Quinton declined to hold Darbar unless he appeared. After two hours Regent went away. During afternoon Grimwood went to Palace to confer with Ministers, and after conference another Darbar was fixed for 9 A.M. on 23rd. When time came no one appeared. Grimwood then paid second visit to Palace, but without result. Senapati would not attend Then Quinton wrote letter to Regent stating that, unless Senapati were surrendered, he would be arrested. Grimwood delivered this letter about 2 P.M. on 23rd, and informed Regent that he would not be recognized as Maharaja unless he gave up Senapati; but Regent was afraid to do so, and mission failed. Then Quinton consulted with Skene and Grimwood, and resolved to arrest Senapati next morning. You know what followed.

You may repudiate in strongest language idea that Government of India intended to sanction treachery towards Senapati, and we believe that Quinton was incapable of carrying out instructions in a treacherous manner.

Imputation of treachery arises from misconception of Senapati's position and that of Manipur State.

State is subordinate to Government of India, and Senapati must have known that his conduct in conspiring against Maharaja, who had been recognised by us, rendered him liable to punishment. There was no question of alluring him to Darbar under false sense of security. It is very doubtful whether he ever meant to attend Darbar. According to Gurdon, Grimwood did not believe that he ever left Palace to do so on morning of 22nd. If he did not, he apparently expected arrest.

Until Gurdon's telegram of 7th May reached us, we had not received specific information that, if Senapati refused to submit quietly, Quinton intended to have him arrested at Darbar after announcement of our orders; but we have no doubt Quinton considered open arrest in Darbar in case of such refusal would be most straightforward and safest procedure. Knowing Senapati's character, Quinton probably felt that only chance of depriving him of opportunity of fomenting disturbance was to effect his deportation as promptly as possible.

As a matter of fact, when Senapati failed to comply with Quinton's orders and letter of warning was sent to Regent, Senapati evaded arrest and prepared resistance which led to massacre. This result shows correctness of Quinton's prevision. Had arrest taken place at Darbar as intended, Quinton would not have lost his life.

Antecedents of Senapati should not be overlooked. Grimwood described him as a desperate man who would not be taken alive. In 1881 he was banished and made an outcast for brutally ill-treating some Manipuris, and in 1888 we advised Maharaja to remove him from State for similar offence. His cruelties were notorious.

CALCUTTA MINT,
The 14th May, 1891.

ORDERS BY THE VICE-CHANCELLOR AND SYNDICATE OF THE CALCUTTA UNIVERSITY.

1. The following additions and alterations in the University Regulations, having been sanctioned by the Senate and approved by His Excellency the Governor-General in Council, are published for general information :—

Entrance Examination.

(i) The following foot-note has been added to the marginal note to the Entrance application form :—

"A High School is a school recognised by the University as qualified to send up candidates to the Entrance examination.

"A High School under public management is a High School which is under the direct management of Government, or of Officers or Committees acting on behalf of Government, or of Boards exercising statutory powers, and in which the staff of teachers is appointed and dismissed by Government, or by such Officers, Committees, or Boards."

The word "High" has been inserted before "school" in the marginal note itself.

(ii) The following words have been added to the second foot-note in page 73 (appendix A) of the Calendar for 1891, "or which appears to the Syndicate to be from any cause injurious to the interests of sound education and discipline."

B. A. Examination.

(iii) In the B. A. Regulation, para. 7, A iii, instead of the words "A second Language (defined as in the F. A. course)," the following has been substituted :—

"One of the following languages—Greek, Latin, Sanskrit, Pali, Hebrew, Arabic, and Persian."

Entrance, F. A., & B. A. Examinations.

(iv) The words "as soon as possible after the examination" have been substituted for the words "at such time as the Syndicate shall determine (the date to be approximately notified in the Calender for the year)," in paras. 7, 6, and 7 of the Entrance, F. A., and B. A. Regulations, respectively.

(v) The following addition has been sanctioned to the foot-note to para. 2 of the Regulations for the F. A. and B. A. examinations :—

"This percentage shall be calculated on the total number of lectures in each subject delivered in the Institution from the commencement of the academical year after the summer vacation. If a student is transferred from one Institution to another in the course of a year, the percentage of attendances in the second Institution shall be calculated on the total number of lectures in each subject delivered in that Institution after the date of the transfer certificate. If a student fails to enter an affiliated Institution before the 1st August in any year, his attendance for that year shall not, except with the special sanction of the Syndicate, be counted."

The foot-note so amended has been incorporated in the text of the Regulations, and will affect candidates for the examinations of 1893.

(vi) In para. 4 of the F. A. Regulations, and in para. 5 of the B. A. Regulations, the words "he has prosecuted a regular course of study for six months since the date of the last examination to which he was admitted" have been omitted, and the following words added in their place :—

"His name has been on the rolls of that Institution for six calendar months since the date of the last examination to which he was admitted, and that he has attended 66 per cent. of the lectures delivered in the Institution during those six months in each of the subjects in which he is to be examined."

This change will affect candidates for the examinations of 1892.

(vii) In the M A. application form after the word "Religion" the words "whether he is a candidate for the Government Scholarship tenable in England" have been added.

(viii) In para. 2 of the B. L. Regulations the words "in a school of Law recognised by the Syndicate for not less than three academical years, two of which shall be after passing the B. A. examination" have been omitted, and the following have been added in their place :—

"In an institution affiliated in Law for not less than two academical years after passing the B. A. examination. No candidate shall be considered to have prosecuted a regular course of study unless he has attended at least 24 lectures in each of the groups of subjects prescribed in para. 6, the minimum number of lectures to be delivered in each group being 36."

This change will affect candidates for the examination of 1893.

(ix) In para. 5 of the B. L. Regulations the following words have been inserted between "and" and "oral," "may also be partly."

(x) The following foot-note has been added to para. 2 :—

No candidate shall be allowed to count attendance of more than one lecture in the same day.

This refers to all future lectures.

(xi) The following groups of subjects have been substituted for the groups prescribed in para. 6 of the B. L. Regulations :—

1. The Principles of Jurisprudence; the History and Constitution of the Courts of Law and Legislative authorities in India.

2 The Law relating to persons in their public and private capacities, including the Law of Testamentary Succession.

3. The Law of Property including, (1) the law relating to Land Tenures and the Revenue Laws.

4. The Law of Property including (2) the Laws of Transfer, Prescription, and Pre-emption.

5. The Law of Contracts and Torts.

7. The Law of Civil Procedure, including the Law of Evidence and the Law of Limitation.

8. The Hindu Law and the Mahomedan Law (with the exception of parts already included), and the Law of Intestate Succession.

This change in the list of subjects will apply to the examination of 1893.

(xii) The following has been substituted for para. 7 of the B. L. Regulations :—

"Eight papers shall be set at the examination, one on each of the groups of subjects prescribed in the preceding paragraph."

3. The following Rules and Regulations have been passed by the Senate respecting the new Gilchrist Scholarships tenable in Europe by Natives of India :—

GILCHRIST SCHOLARSHIPS TENABLE IN EUROPE BY NATIVES OF INDIA.

[These Scholarships are open to Women upon exactly the same conditions as to Men.]

1. Three Scholarships of the value of £200 per annum will be awarded, one every year, to candidates who are natives of India (within the meaning of Section 6* of the statute 33 Vic., Cap. 3), or of the "Native States" of India. They shall each be tenable for three years at any University or any Science or Technical College in Europe (approved by the Trustees in each case), on condition that the Scholar shall undertake to go through the course and pass the examinations necessary for obtaining a definite Science degree or diploma as may be prescribed by the Trustees. The nomination to these Scholarships will rest with the Universities of Calcutta, Madras, and Bombay in rotation, subject to the conditions hereinafter specified.

* The provision in the section is as follows :—"That for the purpose of this Act, the words 'native of India' shall include any person born and domiciled within the dominions of Her Majesty in India, of parents habitually resident in India, and not established there for temporary purposes only; and that it shall be lawful for the Governor General in Council to define and limit from time to time the qualification of natives of India thus expressed."

2. A scholarship will be given every third year on like conditions, the nomination of suitable candidates for which will rest with the Universities of the Punjab and Allahabad jointly. Each of these Universities may submit to the Government of India the name of one candidate, and the actual nomination to the Scholarship shall be made (from the names submitted) by the Government of India.

3. The scholarships will be given (during the next few years) in the following rotation:—

1891. Calcutta, Punjab, and Allahabad.
1892. Bombay.
1893. Madras.
1894. Calcutta, Punjab, and Allahabad.
1895. Bombay.
1896. Madras.

4. Each scholar will be provided by the Government of India with a free passage to England. The Gilchrist Trust will provide a return passage (at the end of the three years) at a cost not exceeding £50, provided that the scholar shall have fulfilled the conditions of his scholarship; but the scholar will not be entitled to claim any difference between the actual cost of passage and the amount above named.

5. Each scholar must enter into a written engagement to submit to such regulations as may from time to time be issued by the Gilchrist Trustees for the guidance of the scholars.

The tenure of the scholarships will be strictly dependent on good conduct in Europe, and on satisfactory progress being made in study. The Gilchrist Trustees reserve to themselves the right of finally deciding whether a scholar has or has not committed a breach of the Rules and Conditions on which his scholarship is held, as also all questions which may from time to time arise, whether expressly provided for in the Rules and Regulations or not. They further reserve to themselves the power of altering the conditions of the scholarships, or of altogether withdrawing them, if they shall think fit. Due notice of any alterations will be given, and changes will not be made in such a manner as to affect the interests of students already appointed to scholarships.

7. One of the Gilchrist Trustees* will personally see each Gilchrist scholar as soon as possible after he has reported his arrival at the office of the Trustees, and will confer with him upon the course he may propose to persue, and the University or College to be selected.

RULES FOR ELECTION TO THE GILCHRIST SCHOLARSHIPS.

1. Candidates for the Gilchrist scholarships must be natives of India within the meaning of section 6, the Statute 33 Vic., Cap. 3, and must be under 22 years of age on the 1st July in the year in which the selection is made. The scholarships are open to women upon exactly the same conditions as to men.

No person holding a Government of India scholarship tenable in England is eligible for a Gilchrist scholarship, or shall continue to hold a Gilchrist scholarship after he has accepted a Government of India scholarship.

2. The selection of a scholar shall take place not later than the month of June in the year in which a scholarship is placed at the disposal of the University.

3. The scholar shall be selected from those graduates of the University who have done especially well in Science or Mathematics at one of the following Examinations:—

(1) M. A.
(2) B. A. with Honours.
(3) B. E., including the optional subjects, Mathematics, and Natural Science.

4. Candidates for the examinations mentioned in the preceding rule, who are desirous of competing for the next Gilchrist scholarship that is placed at the disposal of the University, shall intimate the fact to the Registrar at the time they submit their applications for admission to those examinations, and shall state whether they have the consent of their families to proceed to Europe in order to prosecute a course of scientific study there.

5. It shall be the duty of the examiners at each of the examinations mentioned in rule 4 to state which of the candidates are in their opinion fit and proper persons to be selected for the Gilchrist scholarship.

6. The candidates recommended for the scholarships under rule 5 who are under the prescribed age shall be called upon by the Registrar to submit, not later than the 1st May in the year in which the selection is made, the following certificates:—

(1) Certificates of good conduct, signed by persons of respectability and position.
(2) Certificates of their knowledge of the English language, signed by one or more of the Professors of the Colleges in which they have been educated.
(3) Certificates of their physical capacity to undergo the course of life and study they will have to follow in Europe, signed or countersigned by a Presidency or Civil Surgeon.

7. Each candidate shall submit with these certificates a declaration that it is his intention, if successful, to proceed to England forthwith, to reside in Europe for a period of three years, unless compelled to return earlier either by ill-health or some other cause which may seem sufficient to the Gilchrist Trustees.

8. In the year in which the selection is to take place, the names, certificates, and declarations of all the candidates recommended by the examiners under rule 5, and who are under the prescribed age, shall be laid before a Committee of the Syndicate consisting of not more than three members, who shall have power to call for reports from the Principals and Professors of the College in which the candidates were educated, and to make such other enquiries as they think fit, and who shall recommend to the Vice-Chancellor one of the candidates for selection.

9. On the nomination of a scholar being completed, the Registrar shall communicate his name and address to the Secretary of the Gilchrist Trust, 17, Victoria Street, Westminster, London, S. W.

Every scholar shall at once take steps to enter himself at the University or College which the Trustees shall have approved. The course finally prescribed by the Trustees shall not be changed without their sanction.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

NOTIFICATION.

Simla, the 19th May, 1891.

No. 17.—Whereas by Resolutions passed by the Secretary of State for India in Council on the nineteenth day of September, 1872, and the fourth day of June, 1874, respectively, the provisions of the 33rd of Vict., Chap. 3, Section 1, were declared applicable to the territories under the administration of the Chief Commissioner of Assam;

And whereas the Chief Commissioner of Assam has proposed to the Governor General in Council a draft of the following Regulation, together with the reasons for proposing the same;

And whereas the Governor General in Council has taken the draft and reasons into consideration, and has approved of the draft, and the same has received the Governor General's assent on the sixteenth day of May, 1891;

In pursuance of the direction contained in the said section, the said Regulation is now published in the Gazette of India:

REGULATION No. III OF 1891.

A Regulation to provide for the commutation of the rights, if any, corresponding to the jhum, tippera, gurkati and pani-sikka assets of certain permanently-settled estates in the district of Sylhet.

WHEREAS the officers who effected the permanent settlements of certain estates in the district of Sylhet included for the purposes of assessment among the assets of those estates, under the designations of jhum, tippera, gurkati and pani-sikka, the income then derived by the proprietors of those estates from shifting cultivation carried on by them or their dependents beyond the limits of those estates, and from tolls levied by them on forest-produce cut, gathered or enjoyed in places beyond the limits of those estates, and, in the case of pani-sikka, from some source now unknown;

And whereas, inasmuch as the said cultivation and the operations of those who cut, gathered or enjoyed the said forest-produce shifted from year to year over immense and altogether undefined areas, the tracts of land over which they extended were not specified at the time of the settlement, and, in consequence of this, rights of various, and in some cases vague, descriptions are from time to time asserted by the said proprietors over immense and undefined areas;

And whereas it is thus impossible for any person to obtain a safe and clear title to land in those areas, and the extension of cultivation is in consequence impeded;

And whereas it is expedient that the rights, if any, corresponding to the said jhum, tippera, gurkati and pani-sikka assets should be commuted;

It is hereby enacted as follows:

Title, extent and commencement

1. (1) This Regulation may be called the Sylhet Jhum Regulation, 1891.

(2) It shall apply to such local areas in the district of Sylhet as the Chief Commissioner may, by notification in the local official Gazette, direct; and

(3) It shall come into force in each such area on such day, not being less remote than one month from the date of the notification, as the Chief Commissioner may by the notification fix in this behalf.

(4) Every notification under this section applying this Regulation to any local area and fixing the day on which it is to come into force in the local area shall, as soon as may be, in addition to the publication in the local official Gazette, be further published—

(a) by the posting, in the manner prescribed for the posting of copies of statements under section 72, sub-section (5), of the Assam Land and Revenue Regulation, 1886, of a copy of the notification, with a copy or summary of this Regulation appended thereto, on or in the vicinity of every estate of which the whole or any part is comprised in the local area, and

I of 1886

(b) in such other manner, if any, as the Chief Commissioner may prescribe.

Extinction of certain rights.

2. All rights (if any) in respect of which jhum, tippera, gurkati or pani-sikka assets were assessed in any permanent settlement of land, or which have been at any time acquired by virtue of or under cover of such assessment, shall be deemed to have been extinguished, and no person shall in any suit or proceeding instituted, whether before or after this Regulation comes into force, make or support any claim on the ground of such rights.

Provided that nothing in this section shall affect the decision of the suits Nos. 7 and 10 of 1886 at present pending in the Court of the Judge of Sylhet between the Maharaja of Hill Tipperah, the Secretary of State for India in Council, John Muir, the South Sylhet Tea Company, Limited, and others.

Compensation for extinguished rights.

3. (1) When any such assets have been assessed in the settlement of a permanently-settled estate, and, within the period of twelve years immediately preceding the day fixed in the notification under section 1 for the coming into force of this Regulation in the local area in which the estate is situated, the proprietor of the estate or his predecessor in interest has actually enjoyed them, the proprietor of the estate shall be entitled to compensation in respect of them if, within six months from the day so fixed for the coming into force of this Regulation in such local area, he applies to the Deputy Commissioner or such other officer as the Chief Commissioner may appoint by name or by office to discharge the functions of the Deputy Commissioner under this Regulation.

(2) The compensation to be allowed shall be determined by the Deputy Commissioner or other officer as aforesaid with reference to the extent to which the assets have been enjoyed by the applicant or his predecessor in interest during the said period of twelve years, and may, at the option of the applicant, take the form either of a grant of land in full proprietary right to be added to the applicant's estate or of a payment of money, the Deputy Commissioner selecting the land if compensation in that form is preferred

Provided that no compensation shall be awarded under this Regulation in any case in which it appears to the Deputy Commissioner or other officer as aforesaid that the claims of the applicant have been already commuted by the assignment of land to him or his predecessor in interest by the revenue or survey authorities or have been otherwise satisfied.

Confirmation of orders by Chief Commissioner.

4 Every order passed under this Regulation shall be subject to the confirmation of the Chief Commissioner, whose decision confirming, modifying or reversing it shall be final and conclusive.

Provision with respect to defects in publication of notification of commencement of Regulation

5 (1) No proceeding had, and no order or decision passed, under this Regulation shall be deemed invalid or deprived of any of its effect by reason of any omission in, or informality or irregularity as regards, the publication of any notification under section 1 applying this Regulation to any local area and fixing the day on which it is to come into force in the local area:

Provided that if on petition in writing received in the office of the Secretary to the Chief Commissioner within either of the following periods (whichever may happen to be the longer), namely,—

(a) the period of one year after the expiration of the time allowed by sub-section (1) of section 3 for the making by the proprietor of an estate in any local area in which this Regulation has come into force of an application under that sub-section to the Deputy Commissioner, or such other officer as is referred to in the sub-section,

(b) the period of six months after the passing by the Deputy Commissioner or other officer as aforesaid of an order on any application made under, and within the time allowed by, that sub-section by the proprietor of any estate in any such local area, the Chief Commissioner is of opinion that any proprietor of an estate in the local area has been prejudiced by any such omission, informality or irregularity, the Chief Commissioner may, by resolution in writing, authorise the Deputy Commissioner or other officer as aforesaid to receive, within a time to be specified in the resolution, an application from the proprietor of the estate, and to pass orders thereon as if the application had been made under, and within the time allowed by, sub-section (1) of section 3.

(2) Where the Deputy Commissioner or other officer as aforesaid has been authorised under the proviso to sub-section (1) of this section to receive and pass orders on an application by the proprietor of an estate, and has received the application and passed orders thereon, the provisions of section 4 with respect to the confirmation by the Chief Commissioner of orders passed by the Deputy Commissioner or other officer as aforesaid, and with respect to the finality and conclusiveness of decisions of the Chief Commissioner, shall apply as if the application had been made under, and within the time allowed by, sub-section (1) of section 3, and had been disposed of by the Deputy Commissioner or other officer as aforesaid under sub-section (2) of that section.

CHAPTER I.—Preliminary.

1. These rules shall come into force throughout British India on the date of this Notification.

2. All words and expressions used in these rules and defined in the Indian Stamp Act, 1879, shall be deemed to have the meanings attached to them respectively by the said Act.

3. There shall be two kinds of stamps for indicating the payment of duty on instruments under the Indian Stamp Act, 1879, namely—

(a) Impressed stamps, including—

Impressed sheets,—that is to say, sheets of paper bearing the impression of stamps of different values engraved thereon, and sold to the public for use by them in accordance with these rules; and Impressed labels, to be affixed and impressed by Government officers as directed in Chapter III of these rules.

(b) Adhesive stamps sold to the public for use by them in accordance with these rules.

CHAPTER II.—Of Impressed Sheets.

4. (a) Hundis, other than hundis which can be stamped with an adhesive stamp under section 10 of the said Act, shall be written as follows:

(1) Hundis payable otherwise than on demand, but not more than one year after date or sight, and for amounts not exceeding Rs 30,000 in individual value, on impressed sheets bearing the word " Hundi ";

(2) Hundis exceeding Rs. 30,000 in individual value, and hundis payable at more than one year after date or sight, on paper supplied for sale by the Government, and to which labels have been affixed by one of the officers mentioned in rule 10 (b), or by the Superintendent of Stamps, Calcutta, and impressed by him in manner provided by rule 10.

(b) Every sheet of such stamped paper shall be of a size not less than $8\frac{5}{8} \times 5\frac{1}{8}$ inches, and no plain paper shall be joined to it.

(c) When any instrument of transfer of shares in a company or association is written on an impressed sheet, and the value impressed thereon is subsequently (in consequence of a rise in the market value of such shares) found to fall short of the amount of duty chargeable under article 60 (a), schedule I of the Act, one or more adhesive "Share Transfer Stamps" hereinafter mentioned may be used to make up the required amount.

8. The duty payable on any instrument chargeable with a duty of one anna may be denoted by a coloured impression marked on a skeleton form of such instrument by the Superintendent of Stamps at Calcutta, Bombay, Madras, Rangoon, or Lahore, or by the Commissioner of Stamps at Allahabad.

Weather Review of India for the week ending at 8 a.m. on Saturday, May 16th, 1891.

The unsettled conditions which have characterised the weather over India during the past two weeks have continued uninterruptedly during the week under review. The distribution of pressure, though exhibiting considerable local irregularity, has throughout the week presented more or less the same general characteristics. Thus pressure has been high over Tenasserim and the south-east of the Bay on all days; relatively high on the Konkan Coast on all days; and relatively high in Assam on most days. The positions of the low pressure areas were somewhat more variable than those of the high pressure areas. On the 10th the area of lowest readings overlay parts of the North-West and Central Provinces and West Bengal; on the 11th the region represented by Gya and Allahabad; on the 12th the Punjab, on the 13th Cawnpore; on the 14th the Punjab and North-West Provinces; on the 15th the Gangetic plain; and on the 16th also the Gangetic plain. Except on the 12th, when the depression over the Punjab was well defined, the low pressure area has been in general a large diffused depression, having comparatively little effect on the winds and weather in its neighbourhood On the occasion of the one exception, there was a well marked cyclonic circulation of the winds shown over North-Western India, and rain fell over a large part of the north-west. A fairly steady and continuous north-westerly current has prevailed during the week down the West Coast and a westerly current across Lower Burma, while an abnormal northerly current has blown on some days across the Punjab and Rajputana; but otherwise the wind circulation over the Indian region has been fairly normal The wind direction has been southerly over the Bay and Lower Bengal; south-easterly to easterly in Assam, North Bengal, and along the foot of the hills; north-westerly over the Gangetic plain, and westerly over the Central parts of the country.

The hot winds down the Gangetic plain and over the central parts of the country have blown strongly, and both at the head of the Bay and on the West Coast the force of the wind has been strong to a gale.

Thunder and dust storms have prevailed in almost all parts of the country during the week. In North-East India rain has fallen daily, while in other parts of India the showers and local storms have been scattered, and have occurred at intervals. On the 10th rain was general over Bengal, and a few scattered showers were reported from Burma and the Indian Peninsula; on the 11th rain was general in Lower Bengal, and was light and scattered elsewhere. The chart of the 12th showed that rain had extended again to North Bengal, and had commenced at Quetta and Lahore. On the 13th rain was general along the hills in the north-west, but in other parts of India the fall was mainly in local and scattered showers. By the 14th rain had practically ceased in the north-west, while it had become general and rather heavy again in the north-east. On the 15th and 16th the rainfall was very scattered and generally slight.

Temperature.—The temperature of the past week has varied considerably in different parts of the Indian region. Thus in the Punjab the mean temperature has been from 2° to 7° below the normal, while in Burma the mean has been from 2½° to 4½° above the normal.

The following table shows the variations of temperature from the normal average on each day of the week for the principal Provinces of India:

Province.	May							Mean variation for week.
	10th.	11th.	12th.	13th.	14th.	15th.	16th.
	°	°	°	°	°	°	°	°
Burma	+3·7	+2·9	+4·0	+3·3	+2·7	+2·9	+4·6	+3·4

North-West Provinces	+0·9	—0·2	—0·1	+1·0	—1·2	+0·6	+3·1	+0·6
Punjab	—7·3	—3·9	—1·5	—6·6	—5·3	—1·9	—1·6	—4·0
Bombay	+0·8	+1·1	+1·7	+2·2	+2·2	+0·3	+0·6	+1·3
Berar and Central Provinces	+1·3	—0·3	—1·2	+0·6	+1·1	+2·7	—0·5	+0·5
Guzerat and Central India	—0·5	+0·6	—0·1	+0·5	+0·3	+0·4	—0·9	0
Sind and Rajputana	—2·8	—2·3	—3·7	—0·7	—0·6	—1·8	—4·4	—2·3
Madras	+1·1	+1·4	+1·0	+1·3	+1·4	+1·3	+1·6	+1·3
Mean for whole India	—0·2	—0·2	+0·1	+0·2	0	+0·4	+0·4	+0·1

The above figures show, 1st, that on the average of the whole of India the mean temperature of each day and of the whole week has varied very little from the normal average; 2nd, that on the mean of the week the weather of the Punjab has been 4° and Sind and Rajputana 2½° cooler than usual while in all the other Provinces it has been hotter, the excess ranging from ½° in the Central and North-West Provinces to 3½° in Burma. The weather in Burma has been very sultry and hot, and the mean of the day temperatures has exceeded the normal by—

4 ,, ,, 11th.
5 ,, ,, 12th.
6 ,, ,, 13th.
4 ,, ,, 14th.
4½ ,, ,, 15th.
5½ ,, ,, 16th.

This excess resulted in the maximum temperatures over Burma considerably exceeding 100° generally.

The maximum temperature throughout the Indian region on each day was as follows:

On the 10th 109·9° at Allahabad.
,, 11th 109·8° ,, Amraoti.
,, 12th 109·4° ,, Deesa.
,, 13th 109·4° ,, Deesa.
,, 14th 109·8° ,, Nagpur.
,, 15th 110·8° ,, Nagpur.
,, 16th 110·4° ,, Allahabad.

The above figures show that there occurred a very slight increase of heat, as determined by the highest recorded temperature, during the week, and that the region of greatest lay fairly steadily over the Central Provinces, the North-West Provinces, and Guzerat.

Rain.—The daily distribution of rain has been described above. The concluding table shows that rain has occurred in all the divisions of the Indian region, except Lower Burma, Behar (South), the North-West Provinces (East), Oudh, Guzerat, Kattiawar, Central India (East), Rajputana (West), and the East Coast (Central and South). Of the forty divisions in which rain has fallen, however, eight had less than one-tenth of an inch as the average rain of the division, so that the central and submontane divisions of the North-West Provinces, the hill districts of the Punjab, Berar, and the west of the Central Provinces, Sind, and Madras (Central) should for practical purposes be added to the number of divisions which have received no rain. The heaviest average rainfall (3¾ inches) was reported from Assam (Surma), followed by 2¾ inches in East Bengal, 2½ inches in North Bengal, and by 1½ inches in Assam (Brahmaputra), Deltaic Bengal, Central Bengal, and Coorg. In most parts of India the week's fall has been deficient. In East, Deltaic, Central, and North Bengal, in the west of the North-West Provinces, in the south and west of the Punjab, in Coorg, the Deccan, Berar, the Central Provinces (Central), Sind, Rajputana (East), and Hyderabad (South) the rainfall has been more than the average, but, except in Bengal, any excess has been only moderate or small. In Burma the deficiency has been large. In Arakan it amounts to 5 inches; in Tenasserim and Lower Burma to over 2½ inches, and in Central Burma to over 1½ inches. In the south of the Peninsula the deficiency is also considerable.

The concluding column of the table shows little change beyond a fairly general decrease in the percentage variations where the seasonal rain is excessive, and a fairly general increase where the seasonal rain is defective.

The principal deficiency is in Burma, Assam, Khandeish, Guzerat and Kattiawar, and the East Coast.

The record of maximum falls shows several large amounts, more particularly over North-Eastern India. The following are the amounts exceeding 4 inches in Bengal and Assam and exceeding 2 inches elsewhere:

Weekly Report on the State of the Season and Prospects of the Crops.

Madras.—For week ending 16th May.—Rainfall fair in parts of Tinnevelly, Nilgiris, South Canara, Malabar, and the agency tract in Ganjam and Vizagapatam; slight in Bellary, Kurnool, South Arcot, Tanjore, Madura, Coimbatore, and Salem; no rain elsewhere. Distress beginning to be felt in the southern taluks of Malabar. Numbers on relief works increasing in Chingleput and North Arcot. Prices slightly falling in Godavari, Bellary, Tinnevelly, and Coimbatore, but rising in Ganjam, Kistna, Nellore, Cuddapah, Kurnool, Madras, North Arcot, South Arcot, and Salem, and nearly stationary in others. 6,671 coolies employed on works in Chingleput, 3,986 in the Wandiwash taluk, 2,244 in the Kalahasti zemindari in North Arcot, 1,537 in Tinnevelly, 313 in Coimbatore, and 89 in the Rayachoti taluk of Cuddapah. Number fed in kitchens—184, including 75 children, in four taluks in Chingleput; 718, including 560 children, in the Wandiwash taluk; and 345, including 249 children, in the Kalahasti zemindari.

Bombay.—For week ending 20th May.—Rain has fallen over the greater part of Sind, Deccan, and Carnatic. Standing crops damaged by locusts in parts of Shikarpur; otherwise good. Harvesting of late crops continues in Shikarpur, Hyderabad, and Sholapur. Ploughing operations progressing generally.

Bengal.—For week ending 19th May.—Rain has fallen generally, accompanied by local storms. Ploughing well advanced and early sowings in full progress. In North and East Bengal sowings of autumn rice and jute nearly completed and young plants coming up well. Sowing of winter rice progressing in some districts in Behar. Cultivation for autumn crops begun, but more rain wanted, especially in the south. Sugarcane, indigo, cotton, and millets doing well. Spring rice almost harvested, and a full average outturn generally obtained. The mango crop has been further injured by storms, and will be deficient. Prices stationary.

North-Western Provinces and Oudh.—For week ending 20th May.—Weather hot and occasionally cloudy. Light rain has fallen in a few districts. Irrigation of summer crops and sugarcane continues. Locusts are reported from the Lucknow, Banda, Bareilly, and Meerut districts, but apparently did no damage. Supplies are sufficient Prices have risen in Allahabad, but are stationary or falling elsewhere. Brisk export is reported from Meerut and also from Jhansi and Moradabad.

The cold weather harvest of 1889-90 was poor; stocks became exhausted and prices rose. The kharif of 1890 partially failed in many districts, causing a further rise in prices. In the absence of cheap grain of any sort, food was imported from the Punjab The late rabi crop promised well, but owing to rain, frost, and hail was on the whole below the average.

Punjab.—For week ending 20th May.—Rain has fallen in all but three districts Prices falling in six districts; stationary elsewhere. Harvesting of rabi crops nearly over; threshing in progress; ploughings for and sowings of kharif crops going on. Rain is wanted in Hissar. The outturn of rabi crops is reported in some districts as good and in others below the average. The prospects of standing crops are said to be fair. Locusts have appeared in Ferozepore, Lahore, Rawalpindi, Shahpur, Dera Ismail Khan, and the Peshawar districts.

The crops are being damaged by the young ones in all the districts named above, except Ferozepore They have also deposited eggs in parts of Lahore, where steps have been taken for their destruction. Fodder sufficient in all districts, except Hissar and Delhi, where it is scarce.

Central Provinces.—For week ending 20th May.—Weather hot and occasionally cloudy, with light showers of rain, which are favourable to the preparation of the land for monsoon sowings. Water scarce in parts of Nimar district. Fodder fairly sufficient. Prices steady.

Burma—For week ending 16th May.—Reaping of dry-weather crops continues. Outturn poor in Katha and Lower Chindwin. Water still scarce in parts of Meiktila. Price of paddy remains unchanged, except at Rangoon, where it has slightly fallen, and at Toungoo, Mandalay, and Bhamo, where it has slightly risen.

Assam.—For week ending 20th May.—Weather seasonable. Ploughing for winter paddy and planting of sugarcane in progress. State and prospects of other crops good.

Mysore and Coorg.—For week ending 20th May.—Slight rain reported throughout the Mysore State Crops in good condition, except in parts of Kolar. Want of rain is much felt in the Bangalore, Mysore, and Kolar districts. Outturn of crops harvested favourable. No change in prices.

Rainfall over two inches in Coorg during the week. Ploughing for the rice crop commenced. Prospects generally good. Prices stationary.

Berar and Hyderabad.—For week ending 20th May.—Some rain in Basim and Wun during the week. Land under preparation for kharif crops. Fodder insufficient in five taluks; water deficient in the Murtazapur, Wun, Darwah, and Kilapur taluks Prices stationary.

Rainfall in Hyderabad during the week injured rabi crops to some extent. Reaping of rabi crops continues. Prices stationary.

Central India.—For week ending 20th May—Slight rain in Bundelkhand and Western Malwa. Agricultural stock fair Prices high in Western Malwa. No other changes of importance.

Rajputana—For week ending 20th May.—Slight rain in six States and at Ajmere. Harvests below average generally Cattle dying for want of fodder in Todgurh, and in poor condition at Kishengurh and Bikanir, elsewhere satisfactory. Pasturage or fodder scarce in four States, and failing in Deoli and in both the districts of Ajmere Prices fluctuating 44,518 acres affected by scarcity in Ajmere-Merwara, about 6,768 persons on relief works.

Nepal.—For week ending 14th May.—Slight and partial rain at Katmandu. Prospects of standing crops continue good. Wheat is being harvested.

REVENUE DEPARTMENT.

A Dictionary of the Economic Products of India.

BY DR. GEO. WATT, C.I.E.,

Reporter on Economic Products.

Published under the authority of the Government of India in the Revenue and Agricultural Department.

The first four volumes of this work are now ready for issue, and intending subscribers are invited to register their names with the Superintendent of Government Printing, Calcutta.

The Dictionary is intended to deal with the products of India—animal, vegetable, and mineral; each product being treated after a uniform plan, the paragraphs of which give the scientific, vernacular, and European names; habitat or source history; properties and uses, both chemical and industrial; trade statistics; markets, &c. The work is arranged alphabetically according to scientific nomenclature, but commercial and important vernacular names are also given as cross references, so that little difficulty need be experienced in finding the account of a product even when its scientific name is unknown to the reader.

An important feature of the Dictionary consists in the fact that derived information is in every instance given under quotation marks, and with a reference to the original publication Numerous contributions have, however, furnished the results of new discoveries, and confirmed the vernacular names; so that the Dictionary is not only a complete compilation of published information, but has been brought abreast of the most recent inventions and discoveries.

Volume I contains the letters A and B, and consists of 559 royal pages; Volume II embraces the letter C in 08 pages; Volume III contains the letters D, E, F, and G in 534 pages. Vol. IV, letters G to L, in 643 pages The whole work will, it is expected, be completed in six volumes by 1891; but a seventh volume may also be issued consisting of an Index to all the vernacular and other names contained in the Dictionary; and this as a work of reference, it is hoped, may prove of considerable value.

The price to subscribers will be in India R30 and in England 2 guineas, payable in advance, for the complete set. An extra charge for packing and postage will be made for the set—in India, at 8 annas per volume, and for England at 2 rupees 6 annas per volume.

For copies bound in half calf or half morocco, R6 and 8 shillings, respectively, will be charged extra for the whole sets.

No copies will be issued to non-subscribers till the work is complete, and no single volume will be sold separately. The price to non-subscribers will be R45 in India and 3 guineas in England, exclusive of packing and postage.

PRESENT.

The Queen's Most Excellent Majesty

Lord President.

Duke of Rutland.

Lord Chamberlain.

Whereas by the Extradition Acts, 1870 and 1873, it was amongst other things enacted that, where an arrangement has been made with any foreign State with respect to the surrender to such State of any fugitive criminals, Her Majesty may, by Order in Council, direct that the said Acts shall apply in the case of such foreign State; and that Her Majesty may, by the same or any subsequent Order, limit the operation of the Order, and restrict the same to fugitive criminals who are in or suspected of being in the part of Her Majesty's dominions specified in the Order, and render the operation thereof subject to such conditions, exceptions, and qualifications as may be deemed expedient; and that if, by any law made after the passing of the Act of 1870 by the Legislature of any British possession, provision is made for carrying into effect within such possession the surrender of fugitive criminals who are in or suspected of being in such British possession, Her Majesty may, by the Order in Council applying the said Acts in the case of any foreign State, or by any subsequent Order, suspend the operation within any such British possession of the said Acts, or of any part thereof, so far as it relates to such foreign State, and so long as such law continues in force there and no longer.

And whereas by an Act of the Parliament of Canada passed in 1886, and entitled "An Act respecting the Extradition of Fugitive Criminals," provision is made for carrying into effect within the Dominion the surrender of fugitive criminals.

"ARTICLE XII.

"In the examinations which they will have to make in accordance with the foregoing stipulations, the authorities of the State applied to for said extradition shall admit as valid evidence the depositions or statements of witnesses taken in the other State, under oath or under solemn affirmation to tell the truth, according as its legislation may provide, or the copies of these depositions or statements, and likewise the warrants issued and sentences pronounced in the State which demands the extradition, the certificates of the fact of the condemnation, or the judicial documents which prove it, provided the same are authenticated as follows:

"ARTICLE XIII.

"If the individual claimed by one of the two High Contracting Parties, in pursuance of the present Treaty, should be also claimed by one or several other Powers on account of other crimes or offences committed upon their respective territories, his extradition shall be granted to that State whose demand is earliest in date.

ORGANIZATION.

NATIVE ARMY.

No. 537.—With the sanction of Her Majesty's Government, the Governor-General in Council is pleased to notify that it has been decided to localize two native battalions of the Bombay army in Baluchistan, and to change the composition of these corps by the substitution of men recruited from the border tribes inhabiting the country above the passes.

2. The two regiments selected for conversion are the 24th and 26th Bombay Infantry, which will in future be designated "The 24th (Baluchistan) Regiment of Bombay Infantry," and "The 26th (Baluchistan) Regiment of Bombay Infantry."

3. The Native officers, non-commissioned officers and men now serving in these corps will be disposed of in the manner hereinafter stated.

4. The conversion of the 24th Bombay Infantry will be proceeded with immediately, and the 26th Bombay Infantry will be similarly dealt with on a date to be fixed hereafter.

5. These corps will be enlisted for general service, but, except on emergency or when required for field service, they will only be required to serve above the passes in Baluchistan or trans-frontier country. The head-quarters station of the 24th Bombay Infantry will be Quetta; that of the 26th will be determined hereafter.

6. Both the 24th and 26th Bombay Infantry will be recruited from Pathans and other tribes within the limits and on the borders of the Baluchistan Agency.

7. The strength of each of the two regiments above-mentioned will be as follows, organized in eight companies:

- 1 Commandant.
- 2 Wing Commanders (the senior to be 2nd-in-command).
- 5 Wing Officers, of whom one will be Adjutant and one Quartermaster.
- 1 Medical Officer.
- 8 Subadars (one of whom will be Subadar-Major).
- 8 Jemadars (one of whom will be Native Adjutant).
- 40 Havildars.
- 40 Naicks.
- 16 Drummers.
- 800 Sepoys.

8. The British officers, including the Commandants, will be selected by the Commander-in-Chief of the Bombay Army. Any officers appointed to the new corps will be posted provisionally only, on the understanding that, except under very exceptional circumstances, they must pass in the language of the men composing the corps within eighteen months of joining. They will be eligible for general staff employ, and will be allowed to exchange into other corps of the Bombay army, or will be transferred at the discretion of the Commander-in-Chief, Bombay. This rule will apply to officers now serving in these regiments, if retained therein, on the re-formation taking place.

9. The pay and allowances of the British officers will be the same as those allowed for the Native Infantry of the Indian Army, and they will be eligible under paragraph 630 of Army Regulations, India, vol. I, part I, for three months' privilege leave in each year.

10. Probationers for the Indian Staff Corps may be appointed direct to these corps in succession to vacancies without first going through a course of duty with other regiments of the Bombay army.

11. The pay and allowances for the Native ranks will be the same as for the rest of the Bombay army, and they will receive in addition the money allowance now granted in lieu of free rations to Native troops serving in Baluchistan.

12. Good-conduct pay will be given as laid down in articles 85 and 86 of Army Regulations, India, vol. I, part II.

13. The conditions of service as regards enlistment, kit money, clothing, half-mounting, discharge, pensions, and free quarters will be the same as those now in force for regiments of the Bombay army. Batta and hutting money will not be given. Free carriage will be provided, and the regiments will be hutted by Government.

14. Furlough and leave will be granted according to the rules in force for the 27th, 29th, and 30th Regiments of Bombay Infantry.

15. Soldiers serving in one battalion will be liable to transfer to any battalion to which they may hereafter be linked, as the exigencies of the service may require.

16. The Native officers, non-commissioned officers and men now serving in the 24th Bombay Infantry will cease to be borne on the rolls thereof from the 30th June 1891, and will be disposed of as follows:

(a) Native officers, non-commissioned officers and men who have served for pension for 25 years and upwards will be transferred to the pension establishment on the superior rate of pension of their rank (irrespective of the period they may have served therein).

(b) Native officers, non-commissioned officers and men of 15 years' service and upwards will be transferred to the pension establishment on the ordinary pension of their rank (irrespective of the period they may have served therein).

(c) Native officers, non-commissioned officers and men of more than 10 and less than 15 years' service will be transferred to the pension establishment on two-thirds of the ordinary rate of pension of their rank (irrespective of the period they may have served therein).

(d) Non-commissioned officers and men of more than five years' and less than ten years' service will receive a gratuity of one month's pay (including good-conduct pay) for each year of service, and will be given the option of retirement, or of continuing their service by transfer either to the active reserve or to the colors of some other regiment.

(e) Non-commissioned officers and men of less than five years' service will have the option of joining the active reserve, or of being transferred to other regiments.

17. Free passes by rail to their homes will be given to all Native officers, non-commissioned officers and men discharged on pension or gratuity under these orders.

18. The certified cost involved in change of uniform and equipment will be allowed to soldiers transferred to other regiments.

19. The restriction as to the number of men (160) to be permitted to join the active reserve of any one battalion is temporarily suspended in regard to the battalions to be mustered out, and non-commissioned officers may be accepted for the active reserve of those battalions without regard to the number of privates therein.

20. Reservists of the battalions to be mustered out will be allowed the option of joining the reserves of the battalions linked to the one to which they belong.

21. The British officers now serving with these regiments, unless previously transferred to the new battalions, or to other regiments, will be eligible to draw their present allowances up to the 31st July 1891.

22. The band and other regimental institutions of the two regiments to be re-formed will pass to the new corps with the British officers.

23. The uniform of the new regiments will be the same as that now laid down for the Baluch battalions, a drab coat and pagri being substituted for those now worn.

24. The re-formed regiments will be armed with Martini-Henry rifles.

25. A band and pipers is sanctioned for each corps.

26. The Reserve Regulations will not be made applicable to these corps for the present.

27. Any subsidiary orders that may be necessary to carry into effect the arrangements set forth above will be issued by the Government of Bombay and His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief of the Bombay Army.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

REVENUE AND AGRICULTURAL DEPARTMENT.

Weather Review of India for the week ending at 8 a.m. on Saturday, May 23rd, 1891.

The principal feature in the weather of the past week has been the burst of monsoon conditions which occurred over Southern India. In Northern India conditions have been practically the same as those reported during the past two weeks. Thunderstorms giving almost daily rain have occurred over Upper Burma, Assam, and Bengal, while North-Western India has been disturbed by the passage of a small depression which appeared over Upper Sind and passed eastward or east-north-eastward across the Punjab between the 18th and 20th, and by a second depression which appeared over the Central Punjab on the 21st, and increased somewhat without much movement on the 22nd. The first of these disturbances gave only slight rain. A slight thunderstorm prevailed at Simla and Mussoorie after noon on the 17th; on the 18th rain fell at Quetta, Dera Ismail Khan, Peshawar, and Murree; and on the 19th at the hill stations. On the 21st, with the exception of duststorms in Northern Rajputana, the weather was fine throughout North-Western India, but on the 22nd, when the second disturbance deepened, a complete cyclonic circulation was established over North-Western India, and rain fell in Sind, Guzerat, Rajputana, and along the line of the hills in the Punjab. This rainfall continued on and near the hills during the 23rd. In North-Eastern India, as already remarked, the rainfall was of daily occurrence. On the 17th it was confined to Assam and Bengal proper, but was very general and rather heavy over that region. On the 18th it was confined to Assam and East Bengal, but was heavy in that region. On the 20th rain had extended to all parts of Bengal again as well as to parts of Burma, while on the 20th the rainfall area had again decreased, though the fall was heavy in North Bengal. During the 21st and 22nd the only important change was the extension of rain to Lower Burma, where rain had not been experienced for some weeks. On the 23rd rain was general throughout North-Eastern India. In Southern India the rain has been more or less connected with a small storm which apparently was formed over the extreme south of the Peninsula, and drifted slowly up the Coromandel Coast On the 17th nearly 6 inches of rain fell at Colombo, but only slight showers in Malabar. On the 18th moderate rain fell at Colombo and slight showers over the south of the Peninsula, while the depression was shown near Negapatam The chart of the 19th showed little change, but on the 20th the depression had deepened considerably, and heavy rain had fallen at Colombo and Cochin. On the 21st the storm had commenced to drift northward, and the rain was heavier on the Malabar Coast. On the 22nd and 23rd the storm continued to move northward, and rain fell over the whole of Southern India, but on the 24th the influence of the storm had ceased to be felt, and apparently the monsoon current had again retreated, as rain practically ceased.

Temperature.—Notwithstanding the generally unsettled weather which has prevailed and the large extent of the rainfall area, the general temperature throughout India has exceeded the normal, the mean excess for the whole of India and for the whole week being 1·1°. In Bengal, where the weather has been rainy throughout, the mean temperature of each day of the week has been low for the time of year, the greatest decrease being on the 20th, when it amounted to nearly 4°. In the North-West Provinces and the Punjab the last day of the week was 2½° cooler than usual; in Guzerat and Central India the 17th, in Sind and Rajputana the 17th and 22nd, and in Madras the 21st, 22nd, and 23rd were also days of deficient temperature; but Bengal was the only Province which on the mean of the week exhibited any deficiency.

A

Province	May 17th.	18th.	19th.	20th.	21st.	22nd.	23rd.	Mean variation for week.
	°	°	°	°	°	°	°	°
Burma	+5·0	+5·5	+6 7	+5 6	+5 4	+4·0	+4 2	+5·2
Bengal	—0 7	—0 1	—2·0	—3·8	—3·5	—2 1	—3·7	—2·3
North-West Provinces	+0·7	+1·6	+1 0	+2 6	+1 4	+1·3	—2 1	+0·9
Punjab	+1 7	+2 3	+4·1	+3 6	+1 4	+0 4	—2·7	+1·5
Bombay	+1·1	+1·1	+1·6	+2 2	+1·8	+1 0	+0·4	+1·3
Berar and Central Provinces	+0 2	+0 3	+1·4	+3·2	+1 6	+2 2	+2·6	+1·6
Guzerat and Central India	—0 6	+0 8	+0 3	+2·4	+1·8	+1·5	+0 4	+0·9
Sind and Rajputana	—3 6	+1 7	+2·3	+1 7	+0 9	—0 9	0	+0·3
Madras	+1 4	+1·3	+1·6	+0·8	—1 3	—2 5	—1·6	0
Mean for whole India	+0 6	+1 6	+1 9	+2 0	+1·1	+0 5	—0 3	+1·1

The above figures show that, compared with the average, Burma was the hottest part of the Indian region, the average excess of each day varying between 4° and 6°. The hottest day throughout India was the 20th, when there was a mean excess of 2°. The following are the highest temperatures recorded on each day:

On the 17th 109·3° at Jacobabad.
„ 18th 114 7° „ ditto.
„ 19th 117 6° „ ditto
„ 20th 113·7° „ ditto.
„ 21st 112 7° „ ditto
„ 22nd 112 7° „ ditto.
„ 23rd 112 8° „ Nagpur.

For the first six days of the week the hottest district in the Indian region was thus Upper Sind, but at the close of the week it was suddenly transferred to the Central Provinces. The highest maximum of the week was reported on the 19th.

Rain.—As mentioned above, the rainfall area of the present week has been very extensive. The only divisions in India where there has been absolutely no rain are Khandeish, Berar, Guzerat, Kattiawar, and the East Coast (Central); and though to these must be added the following divisions, viz, North-West Provinces (Central and West), the Punjab (South, Central, and West), the Central Provinces (West and Central), and Central India (East), where the average rainfall of the week has been less than one-tenth of an inch, the return shows that the greater part of India has received fairly good rain Bengal and Assam were the seat of the steadiest and heaviest rainfall Assam (Surma) received 9 inches, East Bengal 6 inches, Assam (Brahmaputra) and North Bengal nearly 4 inches, and Deltaic Bengal 2¾ inches. In the south of the Peninsula the rainfall was also fairly heavy. Malabar received 3¾ inches and the southern divisions of Madras and Coorg about 1½ inches. Lower Burma received rain for the first time since the 1st of March, but the fall over the whole of Burma was comparatively slight. The third column of the concluding table shows where the week's rainfall was heavier and where lighter than usual. The regions of excess comprised the whole of the Assam and Bengal divisions, except Orissa and Behar (South), the east and submontane parts of the North-West Provinces and Oudh, the hill and submontane districts of the Punjab, the south-west and south of the Peninsula, the east of the Central Provinces, and the west of Rajputana and Sind. All the other divisions had deficient rains. The greatest deficiency was in Tenasserim; the greatest excess in Assam (Surma).

The final column of the table shows the state of the rainfall from the 1st of March to date. There has been a more or less considerable excess over nearly the whole of Bengal and Northern India, over the Central Provinces, and over the south-west and extreme south of the Peninsula. Elsewhere there has been a fairly general deficiency; but, except in Burma, Khandeish, Guzerat, Kattiawar, and the East Coast, the deficiency has not been large.

The maximum falls in North-East India have again been large. The following are the most noticeable falls over India:

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

REVENUE AND AGRICULTURAL DEPARTMENT.

Weekly Report on the State of the Season and Prospects of the Crops.

Madras.—For week ending 23rd May.—Rainfall good in Tanjore, Nilgiris, and Malabar; fair in South Arcot, Trichinopoly, Madura, Coimbatore, and parts of Tinnevelly, Ganjam, and Vizagapatam; no rain in Kistna, Nellore, Cuddapah, and Anantapur; and slight rain in the remaining districts. No improvement in prospects in Chingleput and North Arcot. Prices slightly falling in Ganjam and Tanjore; rising in Godavari, Chingleput, North Arcot, Trichinopoly, and Coimbatore; and nearly stationary in other districts. Number of coolies employed on works on the last day of the week—16- in Cuddapah, 8,200 in Chingleput, about 5,200 in Wandiwash, and 1,700 in the Kalahasti zemindari, 927 in Tinnevelly, and 335 in Coimbatore. Number fed in kitchens—203, including 79 women and 72 children, in four taluks of Chingleput; 725, including 116 women and 566 children, in the Wandiwash taluk; and 458, including 85 women and 336 children, in the Kalahasti zemindari in North Arcot.

Bombay.—For week ending 27th May.—Rain in parts of the Karnatic, Satara, and Hyderabad. Jowari damaged in Shikarpur. Standing crops otherwise good. Harvesting of late crops continues in Karachi and Hyderabad. Preparations for the next season in full progress throughout the Presidency.

Bengal.—For week ending 26th May.—Rain general. Early rice and jute sowing mostly finished, and in some districts sowing of late rice in progress. In Behar cultivation for autumn crops has begun, but more rain is wanted in the south. Sugarcane, indigo, and other standing crops are in good condition. Flights of locusts over Purulia and Hazaribagh No important change in prices since last week.

North-Western Provinces and Oudh.—For week ending 27th May.—Weather cloudy and unsettled, with good falls of rain. In most districts indigo and sugarcane will benefit, but the melon crop has suffered; sawan is being cut. Markets are well supplied, and prices are generally stationary. Export continues from Meerut and Moradabad. Locusts are reported from the Ballia, Rai Bareli, Aligarh, and Bareilly districts, but apparently did no damage.

REVENUE DEPARTMENT.

A Dictionary of the Economic Products of India.

BY DR. GEO. WATT, C I E.,

Reporter on Economic Products.

Published under the authority of the Government of India in the Revenue and Agricultural Department.

The first four volumes of this work are now ready for issue, and intending subscribers are invited to register their names with the Superintendent of Government Printing, Calcutta.

The Dictionary is intended to deal with the products of India —animal, vegetable, and mineral, each product being treated after a uniform plan, the paragraphs of which give the scientific, vernacular, and European names, habitat or source history; properties and uses, both chemical and industrial, trade statistics, markets, &c. The work is arranged alphabetically according to scientific nomenclature, but commercial and important vernacular names are also given as cross references, so that little difficulty need be experienced in finding the account of a product even when its scientific name is unknown to the reader.

An important feature of the Dictionary consists in the fact that derived information is in every instance given under quotation marks, and with a reference to the original publication. Numerous contributions have, however, furnished the results of new discoveries, and confirmed the vernacular names, so that the Dictionary is not only a complete compilation of published information, but has been brought abreast of the most recent inventions and discoveries.

Volume I contains the letters A and B, and consists of 559 royal pages; Volume II embraces the letter C in 689 pages, Volume III contains the letters D, E, F, and G in 534 pages. Vol. IV, letters G to L in 643 pages The whole work will, it is expected, be completed in six volumes by 1891; but a seventh volume may also be issued consisting of an Index to all the vernacular and other names contained in the Dictionary; and this as a work of reference, it is hoped, may prove of considerable value.

The price to subscribers will be in India R30 and in England 2 guineas, payable in advance, for the complete set An extra charge for packing and postage will be made for the set—in India, at 8 annas per volume, and for England at 2 rupees 6 annas per volume.

For copies bound in half calf or half morocco, R6 and 8 shillings, respectively, will be charged extra for the whole sets

No copies will be issued to non-subscribers till the work is complete, and no single volume will be sold separately. The price to non-subscribers will be R45 in India and 3 guineas in England, exclusive of packing and postage.

Note by the Director General of Railways, No. 122 (Statistical), dated the 16th April 1891, with abstract returns of accidents to trains, &c., on the open lines of Railways in India for the nine months ending the 30th September 1890.

OBSERVATIONS.—As compared with the average of the two corresponding previous periods, the number of accidents to trains, rolling-stock, permanent-way, &c., during the nine months ending 30th September 1890 shows an increase of 808, or 11·71 per cent., with an increase of 1,429·52 miles, or 9·72 per cent. in the mean mileage open, and of 1,478,16J miles, or 8·77 per cent. in the train mileage.

2. The following table exhibits the number of accidents resulting in loss of, or injury to, life and limb, and the railways on which they occurred, during the third quarter of 1890, the figures for the first and second quarters of 1890 having already been given in Public Works Department Resolutions No. 783 R. T., dated 17th October 1890, and No. 3 R. T., dated 5th January 1891, respectively :—

3. On the Southern Marátha Railway, on the 6th September 1890, the driver of a down goods train lost control of his engine and ran through the facing points at Salpa station. Before the train could be backed into the station, an up passenger train arrived and collided, causing the derailment of two wagons of the goods train. Four passengers and the guard and driver of the passenger train were slightly injured.

4. Two passengers were slightly injured on the Southern Marátha Railway, Mysore section, on the 13th August 1890. This accident was caused by an up passenger train, which was coming into Bangalore station, colliding with a down passenger train standing at the station, and was due to the points not being properly set for the former train.

5. On the Cherra-Companyganj Railway, on the 28th September 1890, a train from Thariághat ran over an iron bolt which had been firmly inserted, by some person or persons unknown, into the joint between two rails. Eight trucks next to the engine were derailed, and a trollyman and two transport coolies were slightly injured.

6. The following summary gives the total number of accidents to trains, rolling-stock, permanent-way, &c., for the first three quarters of 1890 distributed under the classification adopted in Abstract No. 4 of the Returns; it also shows the number of persons killed and injured thereby :—

(b) Not a passenger. (d) Of these, 6 were not passengers

7. The principal variations occurred under "Passenger trains, or parts of passenger trains, leaving the rails," 42 against 65; "Goods trains, or parts of goods trains, engines, &c., leaving the rails," 205 against 284; "Trains running over cattle on the line," 1,234 against 1,053; "The bursting of tubes, &c., of engines," 92 against 57; "The failure of machinery, springs, &c., of engines," 250 against 165; "Slips in cuttings or embankments," 52 against 21; "Fire in trains," 155 against 122; and "Other accidents," 151 against 182.

8. The decrease under "Passenger trains, or parts of passenger trains, leaving the rails" was largest on the Dibru-Sadiya Railway, the number returned by it being 11 against 23.

9. Of the decrease of 79 accidents under "Goods trains, or parts of goods trains, engines, &c., leaving the rails," 10 were on the North Western Railway, 8 on the Eastern Bengal State Railway, 11 on the Madras Railway, 12 on the Bengal and North Western Railway and 23 on the Dibru-Sadiya Railway. On the East India Railway there was an increase of 7 accidents under this head.

10. The number of cattle accidents was largest on the Southern Marátha Railway, viz., 187; next to this railway comes the Eastern Bengal State Railway with 124; then the North Western with 116, the South Indian with 114 and the Rajputana-Malwa with 100. As compared with the average of the correspondiag periods of two previous years, there was an increase of 47 accidents on the Southern Marátha Railway, 44 on the Southern Marátha Railway, Mysore section, 28 on the Indian Midland Railway, and 33 on the North Western Railway; and a decrease of 34 accidents on the Rajputana-Malwa Railway, and 18 on the Eastern Bengal State Railway.

11. The increase in the number of accidents classed as "The bursting of tubes, &c., of engines" was mainly due to the number of accidents of this description having increased from 6 to 20 on the Rajputana-Malwa Railway, from 7 to 16 on the Southern Marátha Railway, and from 8 to 19 on the South Indian Railway. The largest number recorded was on the North Western Railway, viz., 25 out of a total of 92.

12. Of the 250 cases of "Failure of machinery, springs, &c., of engines," 48 occurred on the Nizam's Guaranteed State Railway, 45 on the North Western Railway, 26 on the South Indian Railway, and 23 on the Eastern Bengal State Railway. On the Nizam's Guaranteed State Railway, the number of accidents of this class increased from 12 to 48, and on the Southern Marátha Railway, Mysore section, from 1 to 12.

13. The number of "Slips in cuttings or embankments" rose from 7 to 27 on the Bengal-Nágpur Railway, and from 5 to 10 on the Great Indian Peninsula Railway.

14. Cases of "Fire in trains" were most numerous on the North Western, Great Indian Peninsula and Madras Railways, the numbers being 36, 39 and 33, respectively, out of a total of 155.

15. The decrease in the number of accidents classed as "Other accidents" was principally due to there having been 45 accidents against 71 on the Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railway.

16. The number of "Collisions between goods trains, or parts of goods trains," was very large on the North Western Railway, being 18 or about 30 per cent. of the total.

17. Axles failed in 58 instances, of which 38 failures were returned by the Rajputana-Malwa Railway alone.

18. The number of "Failures of couplings" was the largest on the Dibru-Sadiya Railway, viz., 33, though as compared with the average of the corresponding periods of two previous years, there was a decrease of 32 accidents on that line. Next was the Rajputana-Malwa Railway with 26 such cases of failure.

19. The accidents from "Fire at stations, or involving injury to bridges or viaducts" numbered 40; of this number 16 occurred on the North Western Railway, and 14 on the Eastern Bengal State Railway.

20. The casualties to passengers from causes other than accidents to trains, &c., were 33 killed and 99 injured against 27 killed and 101 injured, and those to servants in the employ of railways, or of contractors, whilst performing duties connected directly with the transit of passengers and goods, were 113 killed and 354 injured against 127 killed and 434 injured. (For details vide Abstract No. 2).

21. The total number of casualties to persons from all causes, including trespassers, suicides, &c., was 317 killed and 563 injured against 369 killed and 708 injured.

22. In addition to the above, 26 persons are reported to have been killed and 111 injured in yards, workshops, &c., and 465 persons to have died in carriages and at stations from causes unconnected with the working of trains.

RESOLUTION.—The Government of India notices that with an increase of 1429·52 miles or 9·72 per cent. in the mean mileage open, and of 1,473,169 miles or 3·77 per cent. in the train-mileage, the number of accidents to trains, rolling-stock, permanent-way, &c., on Indian Railways shows an increase of 303 or 11·71 as compared with the two corresponding previous periods.

The number of passengers injured by accidents to trains, &c., is 0·151 per million of passengers carried. There were no passengers killed.

The number of passengers killed from causes other than accidents to trains, &c., increased from 27 to 33, and the number injured decreased from 101 to 99.

The accidents to servants in the employ of railways, or of contractors whilst performing duties connected directly with the transit of passengers and goods, from causes other than accidents to trains, &c., have decreased from 12 killed and 434 injured to 113 killed and 354 injured.

The total number of persons killed and injured from all causes over the whole of the Indian Railway system as compared with the average of the two corresponding previous periods, decreased from 369 and 708 to 347 and 563, or by 5·96 and 20·48 per cent. respectively, against the increases of 9·72 and 3·77 per cent. in the open and train mileages.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

REVENUE AND AGRICULTURAL DEPARTMENT.

Memorandum on the snowfall in the mountain districts bordering Northern India and the abnormal features of the weather in India during the past five months, with a forecast of the probable character of the south-west monsoon rains of 1891.

The present memorandum is drawn up in accordance with the practice of the past eight years, and includes, first, a statement of the information received from certain district officers relating to the snowfall of the past winter or cold weather in the Afghan mountains and the Himalayan area; second, a statement of the chief peculiarities or abnormal features of the meteorology of India during the past five months; and, third, a forecast of the probable character of the approaching south-west monsoon rains based on this information.

The following remarks extracted from the report of the Famine Commission explain succinctly and clearly one of the duties of the Meteorological Department, which it is attempted to carry out in this memorandum:

"Within the last few years a very satisfactory system of meteorological observation has been established all over British India, and in our opinion it is of primary importance that it shall be maintained in complete efficiency, and shall so far be strengthened and improved as to ensure the early and punctual supply of information to the Executive Governments and to the officials in all departments concerned with the agriculture of the country or the preparations required to meet famines as to the actual progress of the periodical seasons of rain in all parts of the Provinces for which those Governments or officers are respectively responsible. So far as it may become possible with the advance of knowledge to form a forecast of the future, such aids should be made use of, though with due caution."

The present forecast is based in part on the snowfall information and on the abnormal features of the weather during the past five months, and in part on a comparison with the meteorology of the previous 25 years, so far as its history is available. The forecast has hence been drawn up carefully after a consideration of all the available information, but it should, to use the words of the Famine Commission report, "be used with due caution."

It appears to be desirable to repeat the brief preliminary statement given last year in order to explain the theory or the principles upon which the forecast is partly based.

At least five-sixths of the rainfall of India occurs during the south-west monsoon, and is brought up by humid winds in the lower atmosphere from the Arabian Sea and Bay of Bengal. The air currents advancing across these two seas into India during this period form the two branches of the monsoon lower air motion or circulation. The current from the Bay of Bengal prevails exclusively in Burma, Bengal and Assam, and the greater portion of Behar, Chutia Nagpur, and the North-Western Provinces. The current from the Arabian Sea obtains wholly in the Peninsula (i.e., the Deccan, Bombay, Madras, the Central Provinces, and the greater part of Central India and Rajputana). During nearly the whole of the south-west monsoon there is a well defined belt of country separating the two areas in which one or other of the currents prevails exclusively, which is characterized by very variable winds and by lower pressure than occurs either to the north or south. This belt is hence meteorologically a trough of low pressure, and usually stretches in a curved line from Orissa to Sind or the South-West Punjab.

It is a feature of great importance, as there is a marked tendency for any cyclonic storms that advance from the Bay in the months of June, July, August, and September to run along it and discharge cyclonic rainfall. Its position varies to some extent from year to year, and apparently depends, in part at least, upon the relative strengths of the two currents. Its probable average position during the monsoon is hence one of the factors that has to be taken into consideration in determining the probable distribution of the monsoon rains.

The south-west monsoon winds are undoubtedly the continuation of the south-east trade winds of the Indian Ocean. During the cold and hot weather months the trade winds usually extend only as far north as the neighbourhood of the Equator. Usually in the last week of May or the first week of June a rapid change occurs, due to the advance of southerly winds (with more or less of westing) from the Equator northwards, which produces an almost complete reversal of the weather conditions in India. The primary cause of this extension of the winds and air movement of the Indian Ocean northward across the Bay of Bengal and Arabian Sea and the land masses of the Indian and Burmese peninsulas is undoubtedly the rapid heating of Central and Northern India in April and May. This cause, however, acts indirectly, and not directly. The air movement does not commence over and near the hot area and extend outwards; nor does it increase gradually in intensity with the increase of temperature during the hot weather months. It is only after hot weather conditions have prevailed for a considerable period in India that the movement commences. It also begins far to the south in the Arabian Sea and Bay of Bengal as a rush of strong winds which advance more or less rapidly northward and eastward according to circumstances.

Previously to the setting in of the south-west monsoon proper very dry hot weather, with cloudless skies, usually much obscured by dust, prevails. The advent of the monsoon gives damp, cloudy weather, with much rain and a moderate and nearly constant temperature. On the West Coast the change is always more or less sudden, and frequently accompanied with very severe thunderstorms, and is usually known as the "burst or setting in of the monsoon." On the Bengal Coast the change is less marked, as the weather is always more or less showery in Bengal and Assam in May.

The motion of the south-west monsoon current is hence a horizontal movement from the Indian Ocean across the Arabian Sea and Bay of Bengal into India and Burma. This vast mass of humid air is impelled northwards by forces due to differences of pressure over the whole tropical region of Southern Asia and the Indian Ocean. It is evident that if there are differences from year to year in the strength of the south-east trades or in the pressure gradients over the sea area to the south of India and Burma due to causes in operation there, they will affect the general strength of the monsoon.

Whether there are such differences from year to year has not been proved in the absence of accurate observations over the sea area, but there are various reasons for believing that they do occur. If this be the case, they form one of the factors which determine the general strength of the monsoon currents.

Again, the conditions in India and Burma before and at the time of the advance of the monsoon differ very largely from one year to another. In one year, for example, little rain may fall in the cold weather, and the hot weather may be prolonged and intense, or may be tempered by frequent series of thunderstorms and duststorms. In other years excessive rain and snow may have fallen in Upper India and the adjacent mountains, and the cold weather may have been unusually prolonged, and the hot weather conditions necessary to initiate the monsoon may have been feebler than usual, or may have been chiefly exhibited in Burma, North-East India, or Central India. It is evident that these prevailing conditions will modify and determine to some extent at least the extension of the monsoon currents over India at the time of their advance. These conditions must give a certain set to the air currents. Also in virtue of well known laws of air motion or of fluid motion, the currents by their subsequent action and motion will tend during their existence to maintain the peculiarities set up by the conditions in existence at their commencement. The forecast in the final paragraphs is hence partly based on the important principle indicated above, viz., that the meteorological conditions prevailing in India before and at the commencement of the monsoon mainly determine the character and extension of the current, and thus impress upon it features which are more or less permanent throughout its whole period of prevalence, and are largely influential in determining the accompanying rainfall, and may therefore be used as indications of the probable distribution of that rainfall.

It is, however, necessary to point out that such a forecast is a statement of probabilities and not of certainties, and that it is liable to error from the limitation and uncertainty of part of the data on which it is based. The monsoon forecasts as at present issued necessarily leave out of consideration two important points on which the agricultural value of the monsoon rainfall largely depends, viz.:

(1) The probability of the occurrence of a prolonged break in the rains in July or August;

(2) The probability of the unusually early termination of the rains in Upper India or Bengal; and are hence imperfect in every year to that extent.

To sum up: the chief features or conditions which appear to influence and determine the extension and general strength of the south-west monsoon current are as follows:

1st.—The amount and time of occurrence of the cold weather snowfall in the mountain districts adjacent to Northern India.

2nd.—The local peculiarities of the weather in India itself immediately antecedent to the advance of the monsoon currents across the coast of India into the interior, and which it is found are generally impressed upon it during the hot weather, and are frequently more or less persistent in character. These abnormal features are on the whole best estimated by means of the variations of pressure from its normal value in different parts of India.

3rd.—Local peculiarities in the Bay of Bengal and Arabian Sea, over which the monsoon currents pass before they reach India.

The first of these conditions or factors appears to be mainly influential in determining the northern limits of the monsoon rains, heavy and prolonged snowfall in the Western Himalayan area either preventing or delaying the extension of the monsoon current over Upper India during the rainy season. Heavy and untimely snowfall in April and May appears especially to exercise a very powerful influence in this way.

The second factor appears to determine those large local district or provincial variations of rainfall during the monsoon which are evidently due to persistent local conditions or peculiarities, and not to general causes influencing the whole of India more or less. As a recent example may be given the prolonged drought in Ganjam in 1888-89.

The third and last factor is almost certainly of equal importance with the preceding two, but it is that on which information is most difficult to obtain, and is least in amount and longest in being received. In fact, hitherto information respecting the weather conditions in the Arabian Sea or Bay of Bengal has rarely been received in time to be utilized in drawing up the annual forecasts.

Snowfall information.—The whole of the information referring to the snowfall of the past cold weather (up to the end of May) in the mountain districts bordering Northern India which has been received is given in the following paragraphs:

I.—AFGHAN MOUNTAIN DISTRICTS.

(a) HILLS WEST OF DÈRA ISMAIL KHAN.

The Deputy Commissioner, in a letter dated 25th April, thus describes the weather and snowfall of the past winter in the Suleiman range bordering the Dera Ismail Khan district: "Snow began to fall in the early part of the season, i.e., about the end of November, and was unusually heavy. Towards the end of December the Nave Fizha, Sapreza, Bushta and Kaisargarh peaks of the Takht-i-Suleiman and the Pirghal range in the Mahsud country were well covered with snow, which continued to fall at intervals until the middle of March. In the lower ranges, such as Kashmir Kar, the snow disappeared in February. The total fall is said to have been between 5 and 6 feet in depth, and on some of the ranges the snow still remains unmelted. Rain fell in abundance, and the season was a severe one, with great cold. Snow fell on the sanitarium of Shekhbudin for the first time for many years, and the low Bhittani mountains of Ghabbar received some at the end of December."

(b) MOUNTAINS WEST OF KOHAT.

The Deputy Commissioner has forwarded the following information received from the Assistant Commissioner, Thall Outpost, respecting the snowfall on the Sufed Koh and neighbouring mountains:

January.—There was heavy snow in the mountains near the Kohat frontier in January.

The following gives the approximate depth of snow that fell on the 15th, 16th and 17th, on which days heavy snow was received:

	JANUARY.			Total fall.
	15th.	16th.	17th
	Ft.	Ft.	Ft.
Samana	3¼	2¼	3¼	8¾ feet.
Forghar	3	2	3	8 ,,
Hangu village	...	...	½	½ foot.

February.—There was an unusually heavy fall on the 1st and 2nd, on both of which days snow fell low down at Thall and Hangu. This fall was succeeded by rain in the plains and lower hills, which quickly melted away the snow.

The following is the approximate depth of the snowfall during the month:

Spinghar (Sufed Koh)	10 to 15 feet.
Dandoghar	2 ,, 3 ,,
Zawa mountain	3 ,, 4 ,,
Samana	2 ,, 3 ,,
Mastura	3 ,, 4 ,,

The depth of snow on the highest peaks of the Sufed Koh has not been ascertained, but is undoubtedly large.

The snowfall of the month was exceptionally heavy.

March.—Snow fell on the 10th and 17th on the Spinghar and other high mountains. The snowfall during the month is estimated as follows:

Spinghar	9 to 12 feet.
Dandoghar	½ foot.
Forghar	½ ,,

The snow melted away almost entirely by the end of the month from all except the higher peaks of the Sufed Koh, on which there was at the end of the month from 6 to 9 feet of snow still lying.

The reports for April and May have not yet been received, but it is probable no further snow has fallen.

(c) MOUNTAIN DISTRICTS WEST OF PESHAWAR.

The whole of the following information was sent by the Deputy Commissioner of Peshawar :

I.—KHYBER AND TIRAH HILLS.

January.—Heavy rain and snow fell on two occasions on these hills during the month. The first fall of snow was preceded by heavy and continuous rain, and amounted to 2¾ feet in the Shinwari hills. On the Tirah hills the first fall measured 6 feet and the second 4½ feet. Also unprecedentedly heavy snow fell on the Cherat Range and the Khyber Pass hills, and the winter up to the end of the month was very severe and trying.

February.—Snow fell in the beginning of the month. The following give the estimated amounts on different hills :

Khyber hills	1 foot.
Lakka hills	3 feet.
Porsapper	2 ,,
Tirah	3 ,,
Bazar Valley	½ to 1 foot.

The snowfall of the 4th on the higher parts of the Cherat Range was 4 feet, and lower down about 2½ feet. The greater part of this melted away during the next fortnight.

The following statement gives the snowfall for the months of January and March in the hills to the north and west of the Yusafzai division of the Peshawar District (the statement for February has not been received) :

No later accounts have been received of snowfall in these districts, and it is probable that no snow has fallen during the past two months.

II.—THE HIMALAYAS.

I.—THE PUNJAB AND KASHMIR HIMALAYAS.

(a) Ladakh—The Reverend Mr. Redslob, Superintendent of the Observatory at Leh, writing on the 3rd May, describes the weather in Ladakh during the past winter in the following terms. "The amount of snow which fell at any time during the winter was not large, never exceeding ½ foot. We had, however, far more frequent falls than usual, and the whole valley was white with snow for over a fortnight, which is a very rare thing with us. On the adjacent higher hills heavy snow has fallen. Some people tried to cross the Karakorum pass in February, but found so much snow lying (over 9 feet) that they had to return. The snow is unusually low down on the neighbouring hills, and the cold at night is still severe. The villagers in the Upper Sutlej Valley near the Chinese frontier were not able to begin ploughing until nearly the end of March, over a month after the usual time."

(b) Lahoul.—The Reverend Mr. Heyde, Superintendent of the Observatory at Kailong, sends full information of the weather in Lahoul. In his first letter, dated 14th March, he writes : " The winter set in unusually early at the end of November, and has been so far a very severe one. The chief characteristic of the present winter was the strong and almost storm-like winds which accompanied the heavier falls of snow. This was especially the case on the 25th December, 16th and 17th of January, and 1st, 2nd, 26th, and 27th of February. Clear sunny days were very rare, and hence the fallen snow has not melted away in the intervals between the storms, as is usually the case, and there is at present upwards of 4 feet of snow lying in the valley.

The letter was written on the 14th March in the hope that the passes into Kulu would open at the usual time. It was not possible to send it off until the second week of April, and Mr. Heyde adds in a postscript that 4 feet more of snow had fallen during that interval.

In his second letter of the 23rd May he states that the passes by which communication is kept open with Kulu had been twice closed after the despatch of the previous letter. They are usually open for the season from the middle of March, but this year they were passable for the first time in the second week of April. They were closed again from the 21st of April to the 8th of May in consequence of heavy snowfall, and again from the 10th to the 20th of May, on which day the second dâk of this season was sent across. Snow, however, began to fall again on the 21st, and fell steadily for over forty-eight hours. This fall has probably added at least 5 feet of snow to the past winter's accumulation on the higher mountains.

The ploughing of the fields, which was begun a fortnight later than usual, has been interrupted by this heavy fall, and it is feared the season will now be too short to permit of the ripening of the crops.

(c) Murree.—The following statement of the snowfall at Murree and on the hills adjacent to Kahuta is based on information supplied by the Deputy Commissioner of the Rawal Pindi District :

(d) Kulu.—The Assistant Commissioner, Kulu, has sent very full and interesting information of the weather during the past winter in his district. The following gives all the more important facts :

January.—The weather was very cold during the month. From the 15th to the end of the month the sky was more or less clouded. A heavy fall of snow on the 16th and 17th completely closed all the passes. They had also been previously closed by a heavy fall of snow on the 20th and 21st of December, but before the storm of the 16th and 17th some people crossed the Rotang pass, though with some difficulty.

February.—The weather was very cold and much damper than usual, and the sky was more or less clouded throughout the whole month. Snow or rain fell at frequent intervals, and the passes were closed throughout the whole month.

March.—The weather was cold, damp, and cloudy throughout the month. Frequent snow or rain fell, and in some parts of the district hailstorms occurred, but did no serious damage. The passes were closed throughout the month.

April.—The snow melted steadily throughout the month, but there were falls of snow on the higher elevations on the 7th, 8th, 11th, 12th, 15th, 22nd, and 28th. On the 28th snow fell down to 10,000 feet. The Hamta pass is still closed. The Rotang pass is practically closed, although several natives of Lahoul crossed it at the end of the month, but with much difficulty. These facts and the data given in the following table show that there was much more snow lying on the mountains at the end of April 1891 than there has ever been at the same time of year since the systematic reports of snowfall were commenced (in 1883). The winter is, according to popular opinion, the latest and most severe that has been experienced for many years.

Upper Sutlej Valley.—The Deputy Conservator of Forests, Bashahir Division, wrote on the 16th May that the valley of the Buspa was blocked by snow, and that it was not possible to launch any timber at present, and hence that a much smaller quantity of timber will be sent down this year than usual.

II.—THE NORTH-WESTERN PROVINCES HIMALAYAS.

Garhwal.—The Senior Assistant Commissioner, Garhwal, states that from the information obtained from hill men, it appears that the snowfall during the past winter in the northern parts of Garhwal is at least four times the usual amount. Painkhanda is the most northern pargana of the district, and from Painkhanda the Niti and Manâ passes lead into Thibet. These passes have been closed since the 16th September, and not a week has passed without snow falling on the higher mountains. It is not expected that these passes will be open before August next.

No snowfall reports have been received from the district officers of Kumaon in the North-Western Provinces and Darjeeling in Bengal.

III.—ASSAM HIMALAYAS.

The Assistant Political Officer, Sadiya, states that the snowfall in the neighbouring Himalayas was later than usual, but was about the same in amount as in the preceding year.

The Extra Assistant Commissioner, Darrang District, Tezpur, states that, as far as he can ascertain from the various hill tribes to the north of his district, there was less snowfall this year than in the previous year. This is further confirmed by the Chardner Bhutia Sub-Rajas, who said unusually heavy showers of rain were received, and there was in consequence a good harvest, but that there was less snow than usual.

The Subdivisional Officer of Koriapara also states that the snowfall to the north of his district was somewhat less than usual.

The Deputy Commissioner of Kamrup states that there were so few Bhutias in Durranga this year that he did not make much enquiry about the snowfall. The men whom he asked said that there had been a good deal of snow, and, so far as he could understand, above the average.

Summary of the snowfall information—The following gives the chief facts respecting the snowfall of the past winter in Central Asia and the Himalayan and Afghan mountain districts:

(a) The past winter has been unusually severe and prolonged over nearly the whole of the Temperate Zone, extending across from the United States through Central Europe into Central Asia. Statements have been published to the effect that over a large part of Central Asia at least, as well as over the greater part of England, France, Germany, Switzerland, and Central Russia, the season has been an exceptionally severe one, and the snowfall everywhere much above the average.

(b) The snowfall in the mountain regions of Baluchistan and Afghanistan was very much above the average. The winter began early in November and continued unusually late, and snow fell at frequent intervals and in large amounts during the whole of that period.

(c) The winter has been exceptionally severe and prolonged in the Western Himalayas (bordering the Punjab and North-Western Provinces). The first considerable snowfall occurred in November, and snow has since fallen more or less steadily throughout the whole season up to nearly the end of May. The amount received in the lower ranges was generally (except in the North Punjab) not much greater than usual, but on the higher interior ranges it has been very excessive, and over the greater part of the area at least heavier than the snowfall of 1885, and also than that of 1877 and of 1878. So far as it can be judged from the reports, it appears to be almost certain that an average fall of 40 feet, if not considerably more, must have occurred over all the higher ranges from Murree eastwards to Garhwal, and perhaps to Central Nepal. This is equivalent to a fall of between 40 and 50 inches of rain over an area 800 miles in length and upwards of 50 miles in breadth. It is hence evident that there must be at the present time a very great accumulation of snow in the mountain districts to the north and north-west of Upper India. In this respect the conditions of the present year differ entirely from those of the previous three years, in every one of which the snowfall was below the average, but resemble more or less closely those of the years 1885, 1878, 1877, and perhaps 1868.

(d) The snowfall in the Eastern Himalayas was over a considerable part of it certainly less than usual, and over the whole area was either normal or in defect. As the fall of last year was also below the normal in that area, it is certain the snow accumulation in the Eastern Himalayas is at present decreasing in amount, and is below the average. Hence the conditions with respect to the amount and accumulation of snow in the Eastern and Western Himalayas are this year opposite in character.

Abnormal features of the weather of the past six months.—The south-west monsoon currents of last year were unusually vigorous, and gave heavy rain over the greater part of India. The rains were especially heavy along the foot of the hills from Dhubri to Sialkot. The currents withdrew from Upper India unusually early in September.

The pressure was at that time and throughout October locally in excess in the Deccan and the Bombay Coast districts. Weather was very unsettled in the Bay in October, and three cyclonic storms formed in it during the month, one of which passed into Bengal and the other two into Madras. Although the north-east monsoon did not set in strongly or steadily, the Carnatic, Mysore, and Hyderabad received moderate rain in that month from these storms. Madras continued to receive moderate rain during the first fortnight of November, when a remarkable change occurred in the weather. Weather cleared and rain ceased in Southern India, and it became disturbed with more or less frequent rain in Baluchistan and Afghanistan and North-Western India, more especially the North and West Punjab, and unusually early and heavy snow fell on the higher elevations. The Carnatic received an average of only 5·15 inches during the month of November (its normal amount being 10 inches). The drought in Southern India continued during the whole of December. The Carnatic, for example, had an average fall during that month of only ·85 inch, its normal fall being 4·1 inches. Disturbed weather continued in North-Western India throughout December, and unusually heavy snow fell on the Western Himalayas and the Afghan mountains, and heavy rain in the Punjab. Thus the West Punjab received an average of 3·6 inches, its normal average in December being only ·3 inch. The following gives a somewhat fuller account of the most important features of the weather in India from January to May 1891 :

January.—The weather was unusually disturbed in Upper India Three disturbances appeared in or passed across North-Western India, and gave heavy rain in Northern India and much snow in the mountain districts to the north and north-west The Punjab, the North-West Provinces, and Behar received from 25 to 200 per cent in excess of the normal fall. The mean pressure of the whole of India was ·005 inch above the normal. Relatively to the general state pressure was locally in defect in Burma and North-Eastern India and in excess in North-Western India. The excess was greatest in the Indus Valley and the deficiency greatest in Assam and Burma. The mean temperature of the month was below the normal in North-Western and Central India, and above it in North-Eastern India and Burma. The contrast between the meteorological conditions of the western and eastern halves of Northern India and Burma was hence even at this stage very clearly marked.

February.—The weather in February was on the whole somewhat less disturbed than in January. Two large disturbances, the first extending over the 1st to the 5th, and the second from the 19th to the 22nd, gave heavy rain to the plains of Northern India and very heavy snow in the North-Western Himalayas. In the interval between these two disturbances there was a period of unsettled weather in Madras and Southern India, during which numerous thunderstorms occurred, which gave rain in many districts where it was urgently required after the prolonged drought of December and January.

The variations of the meteorological conditions from the normal were similar in character, but generally larger in amount, than the corresponding variations of the month of January. Thu the mean pressure of the whole of India for the month was ·022 inch in excess. Pressure was locally in excess in North-Western and Central India, and was in defect in Assam, Burma, and Southern India. The temperature of the month was below the normal over the whole of Northern and Central India. The deficiency ranged from 3° to 5° over the greater part of the North-West Provinces and the Punjab, and was absolutely greatest in the hills at Murree (6½°) and in the plains at Peshawar (5¼°). It was, on the other hand, in moderate excess in Assam, Burma, and the Peninsula to the south of Lat. 18° N. The deficiency in the temperature in Northern India was chiefly due to unusually low day temperature.

March.—The conditions were even more abnormal than in the preceding two months A depression appeared in North-West India on the 10th and gave much rain in the Punjab. It was immediately after followed by a very remarkable disturbance in Bengal, Behar, and the North-West Provinces, which gave a very unusual and general burst of rain on the 12th, 13th, and 14th. During this period an average amount of about 3 inches fell in Behar and West Bengal, in which the average rainfall of the whole month is less than half an inch.

The mean pressure of the whole of India for the month was ·015″ above the normal. Relatively to this general condition pressure was in excess in Northern India. The excess was greatest in the Indus Valley at Jacobabad, where it was ·05″. Pressure was locally in defect in Assam, Burma, and the Peninsula. The deficiency exceeded ·02″ in Burma and the Peninsula to the south of Lat. 18°. It was absolutely greatest in Lower Pegu and South India, and at several stations amounted to nearly ·04″. The month was remarkably cool over the whole of Northern and Central India. The mean temperature in Northern India was below the normal by amounts varying from 3° in East Bengal to 8½° at Lahore. It was in slight excess in Burma and Southern India.

April was a month of frequent slight disturbance. During the first three weeks of the month the weather was very dry in Burma, Bengal, and Assam, whilst frequent thunderstorms or duststorms occurred in Upper India and South Madras. From the 22nd to the end of the month rain, chiefly as thunder-showers, fell daily in Bengal and Assam The 27th and 28th were also disturbed periods in Upper India, with duststorms in the plains and rain or snow on the hills. Temperature increased somewhat more rapidly than usual, and was below the normal by smaller amounts than in the preceding month. The deficiency exceeded 2° only in the North and East Punjab, and was greatest at Lahore (4·7°). On the other hand, it was nearly 3° above the normal in East and Central Burma. The mean pressure of the month for the whole of India was ·028″ above the normal. Pressure was locally in excess over the whole of Northern and Central India. The positive anomalies were largest in the West Punjab and Baluchistan at Peshawar (+ 040″) and Quetta (+ 041″). Pressure was in relative defect in Southern India, Burma, and Assam. The deficiency was very large in Assam at Sibsagar (—·065″) and Dhubri (—·021″). A remarkable and important feature of the meteorology of the month was the predominance of north-westerly winds along the West Coast of India as far south as Cochin, and also in Rajputana, Central India, and Berar. The Punjab, Bengal, and Southern India received heavier rain than usual. Elsewhere the rainfall was very small in amount and unimportant.

May.—The weather was slightly disturbed throughout the whole month. From the 1st to the 16th frequent thunderstorms occurred in Bengal. On the 7th, 8th, 12th, and 13th duststorms and thunderstorms visited Upper India and the hill stations. Heavy rain commenced to fall at Colombo on the 16th, and shortly afterwards a depression formed in the south-west of the Bay, which drifted very slowly northwards. This depression gave moderate rain to Southern India on the 21st and 22nd, and afterwards chiefly to Burma, Assam, and Bengal. This gave a preliminary burst of the monsoon up the Bay of Bengal, but at the end of the month rain was very light at Colombo, and there were no indications of the immediate advance of the monsoon up the Malabar and Bombay Coasts.

The variation of the mean pressure of India from the normal was +·015″. Pressure was locally in excess in North-Western and Central India, the excess being greatest in the Indus Valley at Peshawar (+·052″), Mooltan (+·041″), and Jacobabad (+·046″), and at Quetta (+·049″). Pressure was relatively in defect in Assam, Burma, and Southern India. The negative anomalies were greatest at Calicut (—·040″), Madura (—·030″), and Sibsagar (—·031″). The mean temperature of the month was below the normal in Northern and Central India. The deficiency was greatest in the Punjab at the following stations:—Peshawar (—3·2°), Lahore (—3·3°), and Rawalpindi (—3·7°). It was, on the other hand, excessive in Burma and the Peninsula. The following gives the largest variations in those two areas:

Burma	Rangoon	...	+5·6° (?)
	Moulmein	...	+4·4°
	Tounghoo	...	+4·1°
Southern India	Salem	...	+3·3°
	Bangalore	...	+2·5°

The extraordinary character of the rainfall during the past seven months is shown by the following data

This return indicates that the precipitation during the past winter and spring months has been excessive over the whole of Northern India. It was most excessive in Baluchistan and the Punjab, where from two to three times the normal amount of the season fell. The excess relatively to the normal decreased eastwards, and in Assam the rainfall was very slightly in excess, and this was chiefly due to the rainfall of the months of April and May. The data for Quetta and Murree support very strongly the statement of the Assistant Commissioner of Garhwal that in the northern portion of his district four times the usual amount of snow has fallen. Considering the whole of the evidence, it is almost certain that over the Afghan mountains and the western half of the Himalayas the past winter snowfall has been very largely in excess, and probably at least from three to five times the normal amount has been received.

The preceding remarks show that the following abnormal features have been remarkably persistent from January to the end of May:

1st.—General excess of pressure over the Indian area, viz.,—

Excess in January	+·005"
" February	+·032"
" March	+·015"
" April	+·028"
" May	+·015"

The excess was hence not very large, but was a permanent feature throughout the whole period.

2nd.—Local excess of pressure relative to the general condition during the whole period in Northern India (excepting Bengal and Assam) and Central India, greatest in amount in the Indus Valley and Baluchistan, and decreasing eastwards and southwards. This excess has not only been a permanent feature, but has steadily increased in amount from the beginning of January up to the end of May. One example will suffice:

	January	February.	March	April	May.
Peshawar ...	+·024	+·016	+·038	+·040	+·052

3rd.—Local deficiency of pressure in North-Eastern India, Burma, and the Peninsula (south of Lat. 18° N.). This deficiency in April and May was greatest and most marked in Assam and Southern India, and was as persistent a feature as the excessive pressure in North-Western India.

4th.—The temperature conditions have been throughout as marked as the pressure conditions. Temperature has been steadily below the average in Northern and Central India, and above it in Burma and the Peninsula. The deficiency in Northern India increased until the month of March, in which month it was 6° in defect over the greater part of North-Western India It has decreased throughout April and May, and at the end of the latter month temperature was slightly above the average in North-Western India and increasing rapidly. The excessive temperature was most marked in Burma and increased until May, when the mean of the month was upwards of 4° above the normal over the greater part of that province.

5th.—South-easterly winds have been unusually prevalent in Bengal and Behar during the months of April and May, and north-westerly and northerly winds on the West Coast of India as far south as Cochin. The unusual prevalence of north-westerly winds on the Bombay Coast in the month of May was one of the features of the weather in 1876, 1883, and 1885, in which years the monsoon was greatly retarded on that coast.

All these abnormal features are satisfactorily explained by the heavy snowfall of the winter in the Himalayan and Afghan areas, and hence further confirm the conclusions respecting the character of the snowfall based on the snowfall reports.

Comparison with previous years.

During the past twenty-five years the snowfall in the Himalayas was most excessive in the years 1868, 1877, 1878, 1883, and 1885. The following gives a very brief summary of the chief features of the meteorology of these years for comparison with the present year :

1868.—The information for that year is very scanty. Heavy snow is stated to have fallen in the Punjab Himalayas. Pressure was throughout the pre-monsoon period locally in excess in North-Western India, and in defect in Burma, Assam, and Orissa. So far as can be judged from the rainfall data, the snowfall in the hills and the rain on the plains were excessive in the months of February, March, and April. May was on the whole a dry month. The whole pre-monsoon period was somewhat drier than usual in North-Eastern India. Bengal and Burma received very heavy rain during the monsoon. The rains were retarded on the West Coast, and were very deficient in Rajputana and the adjacent portions of the Punjab, the North-West Provinces, and Central India. The drought caused an intense famine in Rajputana in 1869.

1877.—There was heavy snowfall during the months of January, February, March, and April in the Western Himalayas. It appears to have been very excessive only in the Garhwal and Kumaon Himalayas. Pressure was steadily in excess at this period in India. It was during the pre-monsoon period locally in defect in Bombay and the Deccan, and was locally in excess in Northern and Central India, more especially the Punjab, Rajputana, and Central India. Temperature was very considerably below the normal in North-Western India from February to May, the deficiency being very large in April (when it averaged 6° in the Punjab). The monsoon rains were very late in the Peninsula, but were on the whole abundant, and brought the Madras famine of 1876-77 to a close. They were very largely deficient in the North-West Provinces, and considerably in defect in the Punjab, Rajputana, Behar, and the Central Provinces. There was, on the other hand, a large excess in Bengal and Burma.

1878.—Very heavy snow fell in the Kashmir and Punjab Himalayas in January, February, April, and May, and there was an enormous accumulation of snow in the Kashmir Himalayas at the end of May. Temperature in North-Western India was above the normal in February and March, and was slightly below it in April, and very largely below in May (4° to 7° in the Punjab). The chief feature of the cold weather was undoubtedly the excessive snowfall in Kashmir in the latter part of May, which occurred during a period of very stormy weather generally in Upper India Pressure was steadily in defect in the Peninsula, Central India, Rajputana, and Sind during the pre-monsoon period, the deficiency being greatest on the West Coast, and was considerably in excess locally in Bengal and Assam

The rains were much later than usual on the Bombay Coast. The rainfall was generally above the average in Northern India (except the southern districts of the North-West Provinces and Bundelkand) and the Peninsula, but was considerably in defect in Burma. The rains terminated slightly earlier than usual in North-Western India

1883—Very heavy snow fell in the Punjab and Kashmir in January, and again in the last week of May, but little in February, March, and April. Temperature was in excess in January, April, and May, and slightly in defect in January and March in Upper India. The pre-monsoon pressure variations were neither large nor persistent. The monsoon was considerably retarded on the West Coast, and did not set in strongly at Bombay until the 24th June.

The Peninsula received normal or abundant rain. There was a more or less general deficiency in Northern India, but the chief features in the rains were a long break in August and their early termination in Northern India in September. The North-West Provinces and Bengal were chiefly affected by this, and the autumn crops in Bengal suffered greatly from drought in October and November.

1885.—There was very heavy snow in the North-Western Himalayas in the months of January, February, April, and May. The whole cold weather season was, on the other hand, drier than usual in North-Eastern India.

Temperature was below the normal in Northern India in January, March, April, and May, the deficiency reaching its maximum in May, when it ranged from 6° to 11° in the Punjab. The pre-monsoon variations of pressure were very similar to those of the present year. Pressure was locally in excess in North-Western and Central India, the excess being greatest on the North-West Frontier, and was in defect in Assam, Burma, and the Peninsula.

The rains were greatly delayed on the Bombay Coast, and did not set in fully until the end of June. They were very deficient in North-Western India in June, July, and September, and were generally excessive in August. The rains were normal or in excess over the greater part of India, excepting the greater part of North-Western India, where, moreover, they commenced late and terminated early.

Probable character of the approaching south-west monsoon.—The combination of conditions which have obtained in India with remarkable persistency from the beginning of January to the present time are the results of prolonged— probably the heaviest and most prolonged and extensive—winter snowfall in the Western and Central Himalayan area and Afghan mountains that has occurred during the past twenty-five years at least. The snowfall commenced in November, and has continued more or less steadily from that date until nearly the end of May. It was almost certainly as excessive in the Himalayas of the North-West Provinces as in those of the Punjab and Kashmir, and also, relatively to the normal, even more excessive in the Afghan mountain districts; hence, perhaps, also in Central Asia. In several respects the meteorological conditions strongly resemble those of the pre-monsoon of 1885, and in others those of the pre-monsoon of 1868. They resemble to a less extent those of the pre-monsoon periods of 1877 and 1878. The only favourable feature of the snowfall is that it does not appear to have been very excessive in May, although probably above the normal.

The conditions are such as are almost invariably accompanied by a considerable delay in the progress of the monsoon current up the Bombay Coast, and into the interior of the North Deccan and Central India. They are also frequently accompanied by a weak Bombay current, and occasionally by the early withdrawal of that current from Upper India in the beginning of September.

The low pressure area in Assam and Burma will tend to draw the Bay of Bengal more to the eastward than usual. The relatively high pressure conditions in Upper India as well as the low pressure conditions in Bengal and Burma will tend to deflect the Bombay current in the same direction, and cause it to sweep more directly across the Peninsula than usual The Bombay current will probably supplement the action of the Bay current to some extent in the North-West Provinces, Chutia Nagpur, and perhaps South Behar. Hence the conditions are such that the Bombay current will very probably be largely diverted from North-Western India, and that Rajputana, Guzerat, and the adjacent districts to the north and east will have dry north-westerly winds to an unusual extent during the monsoon.

The chief meteorological factors of the season are so strongly marked that the minor features will probably have less influence than usual.

So far as can be judged, the trough of low pressure will occupy its normal position from Orissa through the eastern districts of the Central Provinces. Its probable position in North-Western India is very doubtful, but will probably be more easterly than usual.

There has been for some time a small area of deficient pressure in the North-West Provinces extending from Allahabad to Lucknow. It is difficult to judge how far it will influence the distribution of the rains in the present year in Upper India, but it is an unfavourable feature so far as the East Punjab is concerned.

The following is a statement of the chief inferences respecting the probable character of the monsoon rains of the present year drawn from the known antecedent conditions:

(1) Snowfall conditions on the Western Himalayas and Afghan mountains (and probably over a large portion of Central Asia) and the pressure conditions in India are very unfavourable to the establishment of a strong and early monsoon on the Bombay Coast. It is very probable that the monsoon will not be established in full strength on the Bombay Coast before the third or fourth week in June, and it is probable that it will be below its average strength, and may be withdrawn from Upper India earlier than usual in September.

(2) The snowfall conditions in the Eastern Himalayas and the pressure conditions in North-Eastern India and Burma are favourable to the advance of a moderately strong or strong monsoon in the Bay of Bengal earlier than usual, and to its establishment in Burma and Bengal before or about its normal period.

(3) Pressure and other conditions are very favourable in Burma and North-Eastern India (Bengal and Assam), and it is probable that these Provinces will obtain normal or abundant rain (more or less in excess of the normal).

(4) Conditions are slightly less favourable in Behar and the eastern districts of the North-West Provinces, but it is probable they will obtain about their normal rainfall. The local depression in the North-West Provinces may, if it intensifies (which, however, does not appear, so far as can be judged from the other conditions, to be probable), determine heavy local rain to the central and eastern districts of the North-West Provinces.

(5) Pressure and other conditions are very unfavourable for Rajputana, and also to a somewhat less extent in Guzerat, the southern districts of the Punjab, and the western districts of the North-West Provinces. It is probable the rainfall will be more or less deficient over the whole of that area, and possible that the deficiency may be large and serious. If the Bombay current be strong (in consequence of at present unknown conditions in the Arabian Sea area), these Provinces may receive moderate rain throughout the monsoon. In the East Punjab rainfall will probably be normal or slightly deficient, but may be unfavourably distributed in time, commencing late and terminating early.

(6) Conditions are partly favourable and partly unfavourable in North Bombay and Berar, and the amount of the rainfall in these areas will depend chiefly on the strength of the Bombay current as determined by conditions in the Arabian Sea. The rainfall is on the whole more likely to be slightly deficient than to be up to its normal amount.

(7) Taking into consideration the probable position of the trough of low pressure and the other known conditions, the rainfall in the Central Provinces will probably be fairly normal in character, any tendency to excess being most probable in the eastern districts.

(8) In Southern India the pressure conditions are favourable for heavy rain on the Malabar Coast. There may probably be some slight delay in the establishment of the monsoon on that coast, but the Malabar district and Southern India generally are likely to receive favourable rain during the monsoon.

It should be noted, as was the case last year, that one of the important factors, namely, the pressure conditions in the Arabian Sea, is again of unusual importance, and hence that the inferences stated above, more especially so far as they relate to North-Western India, are uncertain to that extent, and that this element of doubt should be carefully kept in view in judging the probabilities.

It will thus be seen that the conditions are most unfavourable for Rajputana and the districts adjacent to it, including Guzerat, South Punjab, the western districts of the North-West Provinces, and some portions of Central India. The chances that the rains in that area will be more or less deficient are at least 5 to 1, and the chances that they will be largely deficient, at least 2 to 1.

P.S.—The two following interesting statements were received after the previous memorandum was sent to Press. The first, giving an account of the weather in Kulu during the month of May, was sent by the Assistant Commissioner, Kulu. The second is a valuable statement of the snow accumulation in the Upper Sutlej and adjacent valleys at the end of May forwarded by the Deputy Conservator of Forests, Bushahir Division:

Kulu.—The quantity of snow on the mountains has been considerably reduced during the month of May, although the thunderstorms which characterize that month in Kulu have been of more frequent occurrence than usual, and have been attended with falls of snow down to an elevation of 10,000 feet. The Rotang pass has been open for foot traffic during the month. The Hamta pass still continues closed—the first time for many years that it has not been open before the beginning of June.

Upper Sutlej Valley.—The Deputy Conservator of Forests, Bushahir Division, writing on the 31st May from Sungri, says: "I have just returned from the Upper Sutlej Valley. None of the passes into Thibet, Spiti, Garhwal, or the Paber Valley are open yet, and there is an unusual quantity of snow in the slopes above 10,000 feet. On the north and north-east slopes the snow is 5 to 6 feet in depth at 10,000 feet, and it is said to be as much as 20 feet deep in the valleys below the Barenda, Rupin, Bakch, and Sholarung passes. In the Baspa Valley the torrent beds are full of snow, from 15 to 20 feet deep, and in the Burna Khud below the Barenda pass the snow extends down to 7,000 feet, and there is a snow bridge across the Baspa at that elevation. The villagers say that the snowfall has been the heaviest they remember. From the 3rd to the 10th of May snow fell every day as low down as 9,500 feet, and this has delayed the melting of the snow considerably."

Weather Review of India for the week ending at 8 a.m. on Saturday, May 30th, 1891.

As mentioned in last week's summary, the small storm which had brought up a preliminary burst of the monsoon to Southern India drifted northward along the Coromandel Coast, and its influence ceased to be felt in Southern India on the 24th, on which day rain practically ceased over the south of the Peninsula. On the 25th and all the subsequent days of the week showers were registered over Malabar and Ceylon, but they were never very heavy, and the monsoon current did not during the period under review reappear on the West Coast. The Bay area was affected from the 24th to the 28th by the shallow storm drifting up the East Coast. Not only did this storm give northerly to westerly winds and showers to Madras, but it occasioned a considerable increase in the steepness of the barometric gradient on the eastern side of the Bay, which was followed by a rush of monsoon winds over Burma, &c Hence strong southerly and south-easterly winds were felt all over the Indian region lying to the east of Long. 88° E., and moderately heavy rain fell over Burma, Assam, and a large part of Bengal. On the 24th rainfall was confined to Lower and Central Burma and the Assam Valley; on the 25th the fall had decreased considerably in Burma and Assam, but had become general and rather heavy in Bengal, on the 26th the rain was general throughout North-East India, and was very heavy in Bengal, on the 27th there was no change, but on the 28th both the amount and the extent of the fall had decreased considerably. On the 29th and 30th rain was confined to Burma, Assam, and North Bengal, and was generally moderate in amount. In North-Western and Central India conditions were unsettled during the first part of the week. The trough of low pressure which ordinarily lies along the Gangetic plain lay considerably to the south of this region at this time, and hence south-easterly to easterly winds from the Bay passed uninterruptedly into Northern India, and very general showers resulted. This continued during the 24th and 25th, but on the 26th the sky cleared considerably over North-Western India, and, except for one or two slight showers of rain during duststorms, the weather remained fine till the close of the week.

As mentioned above, the trough of low pressure, which is the marked feature of the pressure distribution over India at this time of the year, lay in the early part of the week across the head of the Peninsula; but as the week advanced the region of lowest pressure progressed northward, and by the close lay over the Gangetic plain and the Punjab. Between this low pressure area and the high pressure area over Southern India gradients have been rather steep, and the winds have blown strongly. Over the Bay area the winds blew from about the normal monsoon directions, but in Western India the directions were somewhat abnormal, being more northerly than is usually the case.

Temperature.—The fairly general rain which fell at the commencement of the week was accompanied by a large fall of temperature, and the mean temperature remained low for some days after the rainfall had ceased. Towards the close of the week, however, the heat began to increase considerably, and the last two days were warmer than the normal, except in North-East India.

The following table shows the variation of temperature from the normal average on each day of the week for the principal Provinces of India:

Province.	May							Mean variation for week

The concluding column of the table shows that the mean temperature of the week was 1½° above the normal in Burma and about ½° above in Bombay and Madras, but that it was below in all the other Provinces, the principal deficiency being in the North-West Provinces From the 24th to the 27th the mean temperature was from 7° to 12° below and the maximum temperatures from 15° to 25° below the average in the North-West Provinces and the Punjab.

The following are the highest temperatures recorded on each day.

On the 24th 109·8 at Nagpur.
" 25th 109 9 " Deesa.
" 26th 109 4 " do.
" 27th 111·5 " do.
" 28th 115 6 " Jacobabad.
" 29th 113 5 " Deesa.
" 30th 114 9 " Nagpur

These figures show that the region of greatest heat travelled about the Central Provinces, Guzerat, and Sind, and that on the whole the heat was less during the present than during the preceding week.

Rain has been very general throughout the Indian region during the week. The only divisions where there was absolutely no rain were Khandeish, Berar, Guzerat, Kathiawar, Sind, Rajputana (West), and Hyderabad (South). To these must be added the Punjab (North-West and West), Madras (South and Central), Mysore, the Konkan, the Central Provinces (West), Central India, Rajputana (East), and Madras (South), where the average rainfall of each division was less than one-tenth of an inch throughout the week. In all other parts of the Indian region effective rain fell. Assam (Surma) received 8½ inches; Tenasserim 7¾ inches; Arakan 6½ inches; and Bengal (North) 5 inches. These were the largest amounts recorded, and show that the heaviest rain fell in North-East India. The rainfall was excessive over Assam (Surma), all the divisions of Bengal, the North-West Provinces and Oudh, the south, central, and hill divisions of the Punjab, the central and east divisions of the Central Provinces, and the East Coast (North). In all other parts of India the rainfall was defective. The largest excess was in Central Bengal, and exceeded 3 inches.

The concluding column of the table shows that for the period March 1st to May 31st there has been a considerable or large deficiency of rain in Burma, the Konkan, Khandeish, Berar, Guzerat, Kattiawar, Central India (East), Madras (Central), and East Coast (Central and South), and a moderate or slight deficiency in Arakan, Assam, the hill districts of the Punjab, the west of the Peninsula, the west of the Central Provinces, the west of Rajputana, and Hyderabad (South). In all the other divisions the rain for the period has equalled or exceeded the normal. The greatest excess relatively to the average has been in the North-West Provinces.

The record of maximum falls shows several large amounts in North-East India. The following table shows the more important:

Weekly Report on the State of the Season and Prospects of the' Crops.

Madras.—For week ending 30th May.—Rainfall good in Ganjam and Vizagapatam; fair in parts of Godavari, Kistna, and two taluks of Salem; no rain in Anantapur, Kurnool, and Madras; slight rain elsewhere. Situation continues unfavourable in Chingleput and North Arcot. Prices rising in Godavari, Kistna, Bellary, Madras, Chingleput, North Arcot, Trichinopoly, Madura, Coimbatore, Nilgiri, South Canâra, and Malabar; nearly stationary in other districts. Coolies employed on works on last day of week—175 in the Rayachoti taluk, Cuddapah, 7,496 in Chingleput, 5,070 in the Wandiwash taluk, 804 in the Kalahasti zemindari, North Arcot, 756 in Tinnevelly, and 318 in Coimbatore. Number fed in kitchens—186, including 64 women and 71 children, in four taluks of Chingleput; 738, including 126 women and 572 children, in the Wandiwash taluk; and 558, including 152 adults, in the Kalahasti zemindari in North Arcot.

Bombay.—For week ending 3rd June.—Rain in parts of Satara and Karnatic. Cotton affected by hot winds in one taluk of Shikarpur and blightedi in one of Dharwar. Standing crops damaged by locusts in a few taluks of Sind; otherwise good. Harvesting of late crops continues in parts of Karachi and Hyderabad. Ploughing and sowing operations progressing generally.

Bengal.—For week ending 2nd June.—General rain during the week; in some parts rather excessive. Early rice and jute sowings are nearly over, and the seedlings are coming up well. Late rice is being sown in some districts in Behar; cultivation for bhadoi sowings is in progress. Sugarcane prospects are favourable. Indigo and millet crops are promising. Flights of locusts have passed over parts of Patna and Sarun, but not much damage reported. No marked fluctuations in prices since last week. Common rice generally cheaper than at this time last year.

North-Western Provinces and Oudh.—For week ending 3rd June.—Weather generally hot; rain has fallen in some districts. Kharif operations begun in a few places. Locusts passed over Ballia, Fyzabad, Jhansi, Aligarh, and Meerut districts; some damage to the sugarcane crop in Ballia reported. Markets are well supplied; prices are fairly steady; they show a tendency to rise in Partabgarh, Allahabad, and Saharanpur. Export continues from Meerut.

Punjab.—For week ending 3rd June.—Rain has fallen in all but six districts. Prices falling in five districts; rising in one; stationary elsewhere. Harvesting and threshing of rabi crops in progress; sowings of kharif crops going on. Extra rabi and standing kharif crops are said to be in good condition. Locusts are reported to have visited most districts, and are said to have done more or less damage to extra rabi and standing kharif crops, except in Umballa. Measures are being taken for their destruction. Fodder sufficient in all districts, except Hissar and Delhi.

REVENUE DEPARTMENT.

A Dictionary of the Economic Products of India.

BY DR. GEO. WATT, C.I.E.,

Reporter on Economic Products.

Published under the authority of the Government of India in the Revenue and Agricultural Department.

The first four volumes of this work are now ready for issue, and intending subscribers are invited to register their names with the Superintendent of Government Printing, Calcutta.

The Dictionary is intended to deal with the products of India —animal, vegetable, and mineral; each product being treated after a uniform plan, the paragraphs of which give the scientific, vernacular, and European names; habitat or source history; properties and uses, both chemical and industrial; trade statistics; markets, &c. The work is arranged alphabetically according to scientific nomenclature, but commercial and important vernacular names are also given as cross references, so that little difficulty need be experienced in finding the account of a product even when its scientific name is unknown to the reader.

An important feature of the Dictionary consists in the fact that derived information is in every instance given under quotation marks, and with a reference to the original publication. Numerous contributions have, however, furnished the results of new discoveries, and confirmed the vernacular names; so that the Dictionary is not only a complete compilation of published information, but has been brought abreast of the most recent inventions and discoveries.

Volume I contains the letters A and B, and consists of 559 royal pages, Volume II embraces the letter C in 683 pages; Volume III contains the letters D, E, F, and G in 534 pages. Vol. IV, letters G to L in 643 pages The whole work will, it is expected, be completed in six volumes by 1891; but a seventh volume may also be issued consisting of an Index to all the vernacular and other names contained in the Dictionary; and this as a work of reference, it is hoped, may prove of considerable value.

The price to subscribers will be in India R30 and in England 2 guineas, payable in advance, for the complete set. An extra charge for packing and postage will be made for the set—in India, at 8 annas per volume, and for England at 2 rupees 6 annas per volume.

For copies bound in half calf or half morocco, R6 and 8 shillings, respectively, will be charged extra for the whole sets.

* No copies will be issued to non-subscribers till the work is complete, and no single volume will be sold separately. The price to non-subscribers will be R45 in India and 3 guineas in England, exclusive of packing and postage.*

office hours of the same day, the message should be sent 'Deferred.' (2) When it is considered essential that the reply should be sent the same day, the message should be sent 'Ordinary.' (3) 'Urgent' messages should be used only—(a) in cases of real emergency; (b) in cases where the despatching officer knows that the line is blocked, and considers his message sufficiently important to take precedence of ordinary traffic. (4) Telegrams should, except when extreme precision is important, be expressed in as few words as are consistent with clearly conveying the intended meaning; and mere auxiliary or connective words, which can obviously be filled in by the receiver, should be omitted."

25. Payment, &c.—State telegrams must be marked State by the Sender, and as a rule paid for in cash or stamps prior to despatch. The charges are the same for State as for Private telegrams. The rule regarding prepayment will be relaxed in case of great emergency. Whenever an Urgent or Ordinary State telegram is tendered for transmission under this permission, the Sender must take the necessary steps to ascertain the charges on it, and pay them into the Telegraph Office within 24 hours. The rule cannot be relaxed in case of Deferred State telegrams.

26. At Railway Offices.—State telegrams are not accepted at Railway Offices at places where there is also a Government Office, except in cases of emergency or when the Sender's Office or residence is much closer to a Railway Office than to a Government Office.

27. Abbreviated titles.—In Inland State telegrams abbreviations of the titles of Government Officials are used. A list of the abbreviations sanctioned is published in the Telegraph Guide.

28. Clear Line Telegrams.—On emergent occasions of great importance, the public functionaries named below have power to "clear the line" within Indian limits, i e, to suspend the receipt and despatch of all telegrams until the one for which the line is cleared is passed on :

(1) The Governor General of India.
(2) The Governors of Madras and Bombay.
(3) Commanders-in-Chief, India, Madras, and Bombay.
(4) Lieutenant-Governors of Bengal and the Punjab, Lieutenant-Governor of the North-Western Provinces, and Chief Commissioner of Oudh.
(5) Secretaries to the Government of India.
(6) Secretaries to the Governments of Madras, Bombay, Bengal, the North-Western Provinces, and the Punjab.
(7) Chief Commissioners of the Central Provinces, British Burma, and Assam
(8) Agents to the Governor General, Rajputana, Central India, and Baluchistan.
(9) Commissioners of Sind and Peshawar.
(10) The Residents at Hyderabad (Deccan) and Mysore.
(11) The Maharaja of Patiala from the Patiala Office only.
(12) Director General of Telegraphs.

The telegrams so sent are, however, to be paid for as other State (Urgent) telegrams. The words Clear Line should be written before the Text.

SERVICE TELEGRAMS.

29. Service telegrams are the following.

(a) Those on the service of the Government Telegraph and Postal Departments, which are sent free to and from any Telegraph Office, except in the cases specified in Rule 79.

(b) Those sent free on the service of certain Foreign Governments, regarding which the Government of India defines special rules in each case.

COUNTING WORDS.

30. Chargeable words.—All that the Sender writes in his telegram to be transmitted is included in calculating the charge, with the exception of the Special Instructions referred to in Rule 15, the address (as defined in Rule 18), the name of the Telegraph Office of origin, and the Sender's name or designation. No other words can be transmitted unless paid for as part of the Text, and Telegraph Officials are authorised to omit from the Address any words not essential for the correct delivery of the telegram.

31. Words, numbers, and signs added by Telegraph Officials for official purposes are not charged for. The day, hour, and minute (Madras time) at which a telegram is booked, when tendered for despatch, are added by the Telegraph Office, and telegraphed free. Senders may date or time their telegrams if they desire, but in such case their dates or times will be charged for.

32. The maximum length of a word is fixed at six syllables. The excess is counted as a word.

33. Every isolated character, letter, or figure is counted as a word. The same applies to an underline.

34. The initials of persons and such abbreviations as B.S.C. or R.A. are treated as isolated letters, however written by the Sender.

35. Expressions joined by a hyphen are counted according to the number of words which serve to form them.

36. Words separated by an apostrophe are counted as so many isolated words, unless they are nouns in the possessive case, as General's, Charles', brother's.

37. Compound words.—Any compound word properly so called, which is generally recognised as such, and can on occasion be shewn in a dictionary to be written as a single word (i.e., joined up without a hyphen or apostrophe), is charged as a single word when so written (i.e., joined up without hyphen or apostrophe), provided that the whole is of six or less than six syllables. Halfpenny, twopence, threepence, &c., up to elevenpence, when written as a single word, count as one word only. The following are examples of admissible compound words:—Rapeseed, Gingellyseed, Sheepskin, Cowhide.

Combinations and alterations of words contrary to usage are not allowed. Nevertheless proper names of towns and countries, family names, names of places, streets, &c., the names of ships, and also numbers written in words, are counted according to the number of words employed by the Sender to express them. All such names and numbers may be written as a single word, and, if so written, will be counted as one word for each six or portion of six syllables—see Rules 33 and 44.

Note.—To avoid error, Senders of telegrams are invited to write numbers in words rather than in figures.

38. Examples of combinations inadmissible as single words:—

Tapestrypatterns.	Sugarrefineries.
Counteroffer.	Pigiron.
Bankaction.	Beerboxes.
Wireanswer.	Dischargingday.
Innerharbour.	Steamercargo.
Boursecredit.	Coastsailing.
Sailinsurance.	Hullsteamer.
Steamcoals.	Allright.
Tuesdaymorning.	Alright.
Wheatcargo.	Motherinlaw.

39. Figures, letters, and Trade Marks—Numbers written in figures are counted as follows:—The number of words to which a group of figures corresponds is obtained by dividing the number of figures and signs by three and adding a word for the excess, if any. The same rule is applicable to groups of letters not forming words in State telegrams and letters and figures and signs employed as Trade (or Commercial) Marks.

Note.—When Trade marks form part of the Text of a telegram, the Sender should certify them to be such at the foot of the form.

40. Stops, &c.—Signs of punctuation, hyphens, and apostrophes are not counted or signalled; but the decimal points and commas used with figures, and also the bars used in expressing fractions, are each counted as a figure, and signalled. The two brackets or signs of parenthesis, which inclose a passage, count as one word for the pair. The pair of inverted commas (double or single) which inclose a passage count also as a word.

41. Ordinal numbers.—The letters added to figures to form ordinal numbers are each counted as a figure.

Note.—It is not obligatory to put the conventional number of letters after numbers to convert them into ordinal numbers; thus, twenty-second may be expressed by 22nd, twenty-fifth, by 25th, &c.

42. Letter Cipher.—Groups of letters not forming words ("Letter Cipher") cannot be transmitted in Private telegrams.

43. Abbreviations.—Common titles, which in their full form are expressed by a single word, such as Captain, Reverend, and Esquire, may be written in their usual abbreviated forms, such as Capt., Rev., and Esq., each of which counts as one word. Similarly common abbreviations of single words, such as Rs. (for Rupees) and lbs. (for pounds), are admissible, and count each as one word. F.O.B., C.F.I., A.M., and P.M., when written as separate letters, are each counted as three and two words respectively; but these specified abbreviations when written fob, cfi, am, and pm are accepted each as one word. The abbreviations B/L, C/O, and O/O are also counted each as one word. No other abbreviations of compound words or expressions except those specified in this rule are accepted as one word.

44. Examples of counting.—The following examples show how the rules for counting the words are to be interpreted:

CHARGES.

45. Classes.—There are three classes of telegrams—Urgent, Ordinary, Deferred ; and the following are the rates of charge for State and Private telegrams between any two Offices in India:

	Urgent.		Ordinary.		Deferred.
First 8 words or groups of 3 figures.	2	0	1	0	0	8
Each additional word or group of 3 figures.	0	4	0	2	0	1

46. Urgent telegrams receive instant transmission, and have precedence over Ordinary telegrams and the right of special delivery at destination. In cases of life and death, or of extraordinary emergency, an Urgent telegram can be sent from any Office at any time.

47. Ordinary telegrams are transmitted in their turn after Urgent telegrams, and are delivered by messengers between day-break and 9 P M. (local time)

48 Deferred telegrams are transmitted when the lines are clear of Urgent and Ordinary telegrams, and are usually delivered by post.

Note—If the delivering Post Office fails to effect delivery of a deferred telegram, but has received written instructions for re addressing the letters of the Addressee, the Post Master returns the telegram to the Telegraph Office by which it was posted with the requisite information

49. Free Address, &c—The Sender's Special Instructions if in accordance with Rule 17, the Address as defined in Rule 18, the name of the Office of origin, and the Sender's name or designation are transmitted free. No other words can be transmitted free, and Telegraph Officials are authorised to omit from the Address any words not essential to correct delivery.

PAYMENT OF CHARGES.

50. Charges how paid.—With the exceptions provided for in Rules 25, 55, and 108, all charges must be prepaid as follows:

(a) At Government Telegraph Departmental Offices in Telegraph stamps.

(c) At Postal Receiving Offices in Telegraph stamps or Postage stamps or in cash at the option of the Sender.

(e) Telegrams sent by post to any Telegraph Office from a place where there is no

Telegraph Office may be paid for in Telegraph stamps or Postage stamps.

51. Telegraph stamps are double headed. The upper half is returned on the Receipt (whereby the Sender receives a guarantee that his telegram has not been suppressed for the sake of the stamps), and the lower half is affixed to the telegram as a voucher to Government that it has been prepaid. The following are the Telegraph stamps in use :—One anna, two annas, four annas, eight annas, one rupee, R2½, R5, R10, R25, R50. They can be purchased at all Treasuries and Government Telegraph Departmental Offices.

52. Affixing stamps, &c.—Telegraph stamps must be affixed on the spaces left blank for the purpose on the telegram form—the upper half on the Receipt, the lower half on the telegram—and the Sender should see that the stamps are defaced with the Office stamp which bears the name of the Office and the date. When Telegraph stamps are used only in part payment of the cost of a telegram at a Government Office, as, for instance, in the case of a telegram paid for partly by a Reply-Pass (Rule 83), or at a Post Office in the case of a telegram paid for partly in Postage stamps, the entire stamps must be affixed lengthways on the telegram and no portion on the Receipt

53. Damaged Stamps—Telegraph stamps which have been cut in two before being sent into a Telegraph Office, or are in any way defaced, discolored, or damaged, are not accepted.

The value of damaged Telegraph stamps will ordinarily be refunded on application to the Superintendent, Check Office, Government Telegraph Department, Calcutta, if such application be accompanied by a statement of the cause of damage, and if no doubt exists that the damaged stamps are genuine and that the damage was not intentional.

54. Receipts are given for telegrams at all Telegraph and Post Offices, but the upper halves of Telegraph stamps are not returned upon the receipts at Railway Offices in any case, or at other Offices in the cases named in the latter part of Rule 52

55. Telegrams from ships.—Telegrams are sent without prepayment from seaports when received for despatch by mail steamers or other vessels; but no such telegram, prepaid or not prepaid, will be transmitted until the name of the vessel from which it is received is known at the Telegraph Office. Telegrams transmitted without prepayment will not be delivered to the Addressees until they have paid the charges on them.

56. Undercharges made in error and charges and expenses not recovered from the Addressee in consequence of his refusal to pay them, or the impossibility of finding him, must be made good by the Sender.

57. Overcharges made in error are returned. No refund, however, is made of the value of stamps in excess affixed by the Sender unless he applies for it to the Superintendent of the Check Office, Telegraph Department, Calcutta, and sends with his application the Receipt granted for the telegram.

CANCELLATION.

58. If the Sender of an Inland telegram wishes to cancel it before transmission has begun, he can do so; but the charges upon it will not be returned if the stamps have been obliterated. If the telegram is in course of transmission, or has already been despatched, it can only be cancelled by a Paid Service telegram (Rule 79) to the Terminal Office. If in addition the Sender wishes to be informed by telegraph in what manner his request has been acted upon, he must deposit the cost of the return telegram, otherwise he is informed by post.

DELIVERY.

59. Free Delivery.—Telegrams are delivered free of charge within five miles of a Telegraph Office. Deferred telegrams are usually delivered through the Post Office of the place of destination. Beyond the free-delivery circle, telegrams will be sent by post without charge or (if not Deferred) by such other means as the Sender may arrange and pay for (Rule 100).

60. Readdressing.—Should the Addressee of a telegram have left the place to which it is addressed, it will, if returned unopened with definite instructions as to the new Address, be retransmitted without extra charge. Similarly it will be retransmitted immediately to any new destination, without being sent out for delivery at the first address, if the Addressee has left written instructions at the Telegraph Office, or if his new address is known. Inland telegrams are also retransmitted to Ceylon if the Addressee has left for that country, but in that case the full tariff to Ceylon is collected from the Addressee just as it would have been collected from the Sender if the telegram had been addressed to Ceylon in the first instance.

61. Reply given to messenger—Save in the case of a postman delivering a Deferred or other telegram in the ordinary course of postal delivery, the messenger who delivers a telegram may be entrusted with the Reply, provided he be not detained for this purpose more than five minutes. The fact of the Reply having been given to the messenger and the amount paid to him should be mentioned on the receipt given for the original telegram

62. Delivery to Addressee himself—A telegram taken to place of residence may be delivered either to the Addressee, to any adult member of his family, to any of his employés, lodgers, or guests, or to the porter of the hotel or house, unless the Addressee has named in writing a special person, or the Sender has requested by writing on the form * the instructions (M P) as in Rule 10 (d) that the telegram may be delivered only into the hands of the Addressee himself. In this case the Office at destination writes the request in full form upon the envelope, and gives the necessary instructions to the messenger.

63. Open Delivery.—The Sender can also request the telegram to be delivered open by writing on the form * the instructions (R O) as in Rule 10 (d). This request is reproduced on the copy handed to the Addressee, which is delivered without an envelope, simply folded up with the Address written on the back.

* In the space marked Official Instructions.

64. Undelivered Telegrams.—When an Urgent or Ordinary telegram cannot be delivered, the Office at destination sends a Service telegram to that effect, and the Sender is informed. No such Report is sent in the case of Deferred telegrams unless Reply-Paid (Rule 88).

65. When in consequence of an inexact or insufficient Address, or of the Addressee's absence or refusal, Bearing charges have not been paid at destination, the amount of these charges is mentioned in the Service telegram, and the Sender is bound to make them good.

66 If the messenger finds no one at the Address given who will consent to receive a telegram for the Addressee, a notice is left at the house, and the telegram is brought back to the Office to be delivered to the Addressee, when he claims it.

67. Telegrams to be kept till called for.—When the telegram is addressed to be kept at the Telegraph Office till called for or care of Telegraph Office, or such like, it is only delivered to the Addressee himself or to a person duly appointed by him.

68. Unclaimed telegrams.—Telegrams unclaimed under Rules 66 and 67 are not kept over six weeks.

69. Registered addresses.—Any firm or individual expecting to receive Inland or Foreign telegrams can register an Abbreviated Address at the Government Telegraph Office from which such telegrams have to be delivered. The fee for registration of each Abbreviated Address is R10 per calendar year payable in advance on the 1st January, or R50 for all time, with an additional fee of R5 for every change of the word or words selected.

70. An Abbreviated Address may be registered on any date, thus if on 1st November an Address is registered, ten rupees are charged, and a second charge of ten rupees is made if the Address is renewed on 1st January following. The additional fee of five rupees is charged for every change of the word or words selected, or transfer to another Telegraph Office, but not for change of residence within the delivery limits of the registering Office, or for change of name or title of firm or person, so long as the identity is the same, and it is not a case of transfer from one firm to another. if it is a case of transfer, a fee of ten rupees is charged.

71. Abbreviated Addresses are considered confidential.

72. No Abbreviated Address can be accepted which has already been registered locally by another firm or individual.

73. The Government Telegraph Department accepts no responsibility in respect of the delivery of any telegram having an Abbreviated Address, if such Address has not been registered, or for delay in delivering such telegram. Registration is essential in all cases of persons who frequently receive telegrams addressed to them by an abbreviated name, and Telegraph Officials can decline to deliver such telegrams if, after notice has been given, the Address has not been registered.

74. For Abbreviated Addresses only real words or names may be registered. Combinations of Christian names and surnames, combinations of parts of two names, combinations of two separate words, misspelt abbreviations of one or more words are all inadmissible.

75. The following are examples of inadmissible compounds.

Granotel for Grand Hotel,
Willsmith for William Smith,
Brooksons for Brook and Sons;
Macmeth for Macdowell, Methven & Co.;
Fitzpatric for Fitspatrick;

Persons wishing to register Abbreviated Addresses are invited to choose uncommon words, not their own names, to avoid all risk of telegrams being misdelivered to other persons of the same name.

76. Delivery by boat.—When an Inland telegram has to be delivered on board a ship which cannot be reached without a boat (i.e., when the ship is not alongside a wharf, pier, or jetty), or at a place which cannot be reached without a boat, the Sender must prepay boat-hire; otherwise the telegram will be handed to the Post Office by the Terminal Telegraph Office for delivery at the Sender's risk. The indication (Bpd) (Boat-hire paid) or (Bpdn) (Boat-hire paid double, if the Sender wants the telegram sent on board at night) should be entered before the Address.* Boat-hire cannot be prepaid on Deferred telegrams, as they are usually delivered through the post. Boat-hire prepaid, but not expended, will be refunded on application being made by the Sender to the Superintendent, Check Office, Government Telegraph Department, Calcutta.

RECTIFYING TELEGRAMS.

78. The Sender and the Receiver may within seventy-two hours of despatch or arrival, as the case may be, call for information or give instructions by telegraph regarding a telegram in the course of transmission or already transmitted. They can also, in order to make or obtain corrections, cause a telegram which they have sent or received to be repeated entirely or in part. In all these cases they have to pay the following:

(a) The cost of the telegram making the request.

(b) The cost of the telegram for the reply, if a reply by telegraph is wanted.

79. All rectifying, completing, or cancelling telegrams, and all communications relating to a telegram already transmitted or in course of transmission, exchanged between Telegraph Offices at the request of the Sender or Addressee are treated as Service telegrams, but charged for

80. The charges made for Rectifying telegrams are refunded in full on application (supported by Receipts granted) to the Superintendent of the Check Office, Telegraph Department, Calcutta, if the repetition shows that the word or words were transmitted incorrectly at first However, when some of the words have been transmitted correctly and others incorrectly, the charge is not refunded for the words, which, in the Paid Service telegram making the enquiry and in the Paid Service telegram containing the Reply, point out the words correctly transmitted in the first instance.

81. No refund is made for the telegram which has given occasion to a request for correction, nor are any refunds made for rectifying or completing telegrams exchanged direct as Private telegrams between the Sender and Addressee.

SPECIAL TELEGRAMS

(A) Replies.

82. The Sender of a Private telegram or of a State telegram addressed to a person other than a British Government official can prepay a reply, but the payment must not be less than eight annas or more than two rupees, or contain any fraction of an anna. The Sender of a Reply-paid telegram should write the instructions (R P) (see Rule 10 (d)) followed by the amount paid thus (R P ten annas) on the form * These words are not charged for.

83. At destination the Telegraph Office delivers to the Addressee an Order or Pass which entitles him to send free of charge from any Telegraph or Receiving Office in India, and within the limits of the amount prepaid, a telegram to any destination in India The telegram, if sent, must be accompanied by the Pass.

Note—A Pass issued for a Reply to an Inland telegram cannot be used to frank a Foreign Telegram, or vice versâ, nor can a Pass be used to frank a Reply paid Telegram Two or more Inland Passes may be used to frank one Inland telegram, but one Pass may not be used to frank two or more telegrams A Pass cannot be used to frank a telegram on which advice of delivery (Rule 92) is prepaid, nor can Passes be used in payment of Express or other Delivery charges, which must always be paid in cash or stamps.

84. When the charge for a telegram paid for by a Pass exceeds the value of the Pass, the difference must be paid in cash or stamps (Rule 50). If, on the other hand, the value of the Pass exceeds that of the Reply, no refund of the difference will under any circumstances be given.

85. The Pass is only available for thirty days (date of issue included), after which it lapses. When the Addressee does not use the Pass, its value will be refunded by the Superintendent of the Check Office, Telegraph Department, Calcutta, if application be made within thirty days as above.

* In the space marked Official Instructions.

86. If the Addressee refuses the Pass, the Office of destination at once sends a telegram to that effect, and the Sender is informed. This telegram takes the place of the Reply paid for.

87. Should it be impossible to effect delivery of a Reply-Paid telegram, the Terminal Office sends a telegram to that effect to the Sender, and the amount deposited will be refunded on application being made to the Superintendent, Check Office, Government Telegraph Department, Calcutta.

88. When a telegram to which a Reply is prepaid is addressed to a place where there is no Telegraph Office, the telegram and Pass are forwarded to destination from the nearest Telegraph Office by ordinary post free of charge.

89. It is not compulsory on the Addressee to send a Reply The duty of the Terminal Office consists simply in the delivery of the Pass for the amount prepaid, and the Addressee is at liberty to do what he pleases with it.

90. The Sender of a State telegram addressed to a Government official cannot prepay a reply. And in the case of a State telegram addressed to other than a Government official, any sum deposited by the Sender under Rule 82 must be intended for no other purpose than to cover the cost of a return telegram

(B) Collated (or repeated) telegrams.

91. The Sender of any telegram can require it to be "Collated," i e, repeated back by each Office engaged in its transmission to insure correctness. In this case he must write the instructions (T C) as in Rule 10 (d) on the form * The charge for this repeating is equal to one-fourth the charge for the telegram In calculating the charge, fractions of an anna are disregarded.

(C) Advice of delivery

92. The Sender of an Urgent or Ordinary (but not of a Deferred) telegram can require that a notice shall be telegraphed to him of the date and hour of its delivery He should write on the form * the instructions (C R) as in Rule 10 (d) The charge for such notice or acknowledgment is one rupee. This Advice of Delivery may be addressed to him at any place he may name.

93. If the telegram cannot be delivered, the return telegram indicates the circumstances which prevented delivery, and, if possible, gives the information necessary to enable the Sender to cause his telegram to reach its destination. The Advice has priority in transmission over Ordinary telegrams.

(D) Multiple Telegrams.

94. Addressed to one Telegraph Office.—A telegram addressed to several persons in one locality, or to the same person at several places of residence in one locality, with or without transmission by post, is charged for as a single telegram; but a copying fee of four annas per 100 words, plus four annas for the excess, is charged for each destination after the first.

95. Addressed to more than one Telegraph Office.—A telegram addressed to several persons, or to the same person in localities where delivery is to be effected by different Offices, is charged for as so many separate telegrams.

96. If the Sender wishes each copy of the telegram to bear only the Address of the person to whom it is to be delivered, he should write on the form* the word Addresses. If, on the other hand, he desires that each Addressee shall be made aware to what other persons the telegram has been addressed, he should write the words All Addresses on each copy. In the absence of such special instructions, it will be assumed that he wishes only one Address to appear on each copy. In either case these instructions are not charged for.

97. Replies cannot be prepaid on Multiple telegrams.

(E) Telegrams for places where there are no Telegraph Offices

98. Telegrams addressed to places where there are no Telegraph Offices can be sent to destination according to the Sender's request by post. Urgent and Ordinary (but not Deferred) telegrams can also be sent by such other means as the Sender may arrange and pay for.

99. The Address of telegrams to be so despatched should be written as follows:—

The name of the Terminal Telegraph Office is always entered last as in the two examples above.

100. Express Charges must be prepaid by the Sender. If the precise amount necessary is not known, the Sender must pay such sum as he thinks sufficient. If this is not found sufficient at the Terminal Office, the telegram is posted.

101. Postage.—No charge is made for postage on a telegram addressed to a place in India where there is no Telegraph Office, or to a place out of India to which Indian Inland Postal rates apply; but on a telegram to be posted to a place beyond the limits of the Indian Inland Postal Tariff, six annas must be paid as an additional charge to cover postage and registration.

102. Inland telegrams posted from Indian Ports.—Under the last rule Inland telegrams can be telegraphed to any Indian ports to be posted to places beyond Indian limits.

Example—

* In the space marked Official Instructions.

103. Telegrams as above may also be Multiple, i.e., addressed to more than one person, but in such case the Sender must pay a copying fee (Rule 94) for each additional Address, and also an additional postage and registration fee (six annas) for each. But such telegrams cannot be addressed partly to persons beyond the sea, and partly to persons at the port itself. If the Sender wants a copy delivered to a person at the port itself, he must send a separate telegram.

104. Inland telegrams posted from Negapatam, &c., for places in Ceylon.—Inland telegrams can be telegraphed to Negapatam, from which place they are despatched by post to Point Calimere, whence a daily mail boat goes to Ceylon.

In the case of Tuticorin, there is no extra charge for postage; in the case of Pondicherry, Madras, and Bombay, there is an extra charge of six annas for postage and registration.

105. Employment of post.—In case of telegrams for destinations over five miles distant from the Terminal Telegraph Office, that Office has the right to post such telegrams—

(a) In the absence of directions in the telegram as to the means of delivery to be employed.

(b) Whenever there is an unpaid claim against the Addressee for porterage on a previous telegram which he has refused to pay.

Telegrams for destinations over five miles distant from the Terminal Telegraph Office must be posted by that Office—

11. Preconcerted language.—By "telegrams in Preconcerted language" are meant those made up of words, each of which has an intrinsic sense, but which do not form phrases intelligible to the Telegraph Offices concerned. The words used in Preconcerted language must not contain more than ten characters, and they must be genuine recognised words belonging to one or more of the following languages — German, English, Spanish, French, Dutch, Italian, Portuguese, and Latin These words may be taken from Vocabularies (or "Codes") authorised for International correspondence, or from an Official Vocabulary drawn up by the International Office at Berne.

12. Proper names of every description are absolutely inadmissible in a secret sense, unless such names are contained in the Official Vocabulary referred to above. They are, however, admitted in telegrams in Preconcerted language when not used in a secret sense.

Note—In such case the Sender should explain in writing on the telegram below his signature what they represent. The explanations are not transmitted or charged for. Example —

Note—Senders of telegrams are warned against the use of Vocabularies or Code Books containing proper names or words not recognised in the eight languages named in Rule 11. Among such books are certain editions of —Linde's Latin Combination Code, Veriwlf's Code, the Nonpareil Code, the ABC Code, and the Exchange Telegraph Code, which amid admissible words, contain combinations of letters which, though they have the semblance of words, are not recognised words of the eight languages.

14. Cipher.—By "telegrams in Cipher (or Figure) language" are meant those of which the Text is wholly or partially formed of groups or series of figures having a secret meaning. The Cipher part of Private telegrams must be composed exclusively of Arabic figures.

16. Legibility and Telegram Forms.—To secure accuracy and rapidity of transmission, Senders of telegrams are advised to write them in a clear and unmistakeable hand and on the proper forms, which can be obtained free of charge at all Telegraph Offices. Telegrams written on plain paper are, however, accepted at all Offices

Note.—Books containing 100 forms for Inland or for Foreign telegrams with counterfoils can be purchased at the principal Government Telegraph Offices. (Price 4 annas each).

17. Erasures, &c.—Every interlineation, reference, erasure, or alteration must be authenticated by the Sender or by his representative.

18. Parts of a Telegram.—The different parts of which a foreign telegram is composed should be written down in the following order:

(a) Special Instructions, if any (Rule 19).
(b) The Address (Rule 22).
(c) The Sender's name (Rule 31).
(d) The Text (Rule 29).

19. Special Instructions.—The Sender should write upon the form immediately before the Address his Special Instructions, if any, regarding delivery at destination, prepayment of reply, Advice of delivery, Collation (or repetition), or regarding the telegram being one "to follow," to be delivered open, or only to the Addressee himself, &c.

20. In the case of a Multiple telegram, the Special Instructions which concern each Addressee should be written immediately before his name; however, if the Multiple telegram is also a Collated (or repeated) one, it is sufficient if the Special Instructions for Collation (Rule 98) precedes the first Address.

21. These Instructions may be written in the abbreviated forms allowed in Rule 15 In this case they must be put between signs of parenthesis, and so written they are counted each as one word only. When they are written in full, they should be in French.

Note —For further particulars regarding the Sender's Instructions, see Rules 75, 76, 90, 98, 103, &c.

22. Address.—Every Address must contain at least two words, the first indicating the Receiver, the second indicating the name of the Telegraph Office of destination. The latter should be spelt as in the Official List of Offices (Rule 44)

23. The Address should contain all the information necessary to insure the delivery of the telegram This information, with the exception of names of persons, should be written in French or in the language of the country to which the telegram is addressed

24. The address of Private telegrams should be such that delivery can be effected without search or enquiry In the case of large towns, it ought to contain the name of the street and the number of the house, or, in the absence of these particulars, to specify the profession of the Addressee or any other useful information Even for small towns, the name of the Addressee ought to be, as much as possible, accompanied by additional particulars to guide the Delivering Office in case of alteration of the proper name.

25. The country or the territorial sub-division for which the telegram is intended must be added whenever there is room for doubt as to the direction in which the telegram is to go This is especially necessary in the case of places of the same name

26. Telegraph Offices in neighbourhood of London.—In telegrams addressed to the following Telegraph Offices, all of which are in the neighbourhood of London, it is not necessary to add the word London in the Address

Blackheath	Hanwell	Tooting
Catford.	Hendon.	Walthamstow.
Chingford	Hornsey.	Whetstone.
Chiswick	Lewisham
Ealing.	Leyton.

Telegrams for places in London itself, the names of which do not appear in the Official List of Foreign Offices (Rule 44), cannot be accepted unless addressed London as the name of the Terminal Office. For instance, a telegram for Paddington in London must be addressed to London as the Terminal Office, otherwise it will be missent to Paddington in Australia, which Office is the only one of the name given in the Official List.

27. Insufficient Address.—Telegrams, the Address of which does not satisfy the conditions laid down in the preceding rules, are nevertheless accepted and transmitted at the Sender's risk. In every case the Sender has to bear the consequences of an insufficient Address.

28. Preconcerted Addresses.—The Address may be written in a Preconcerted or abbreviated form. However, in order that a telegram so addressed may be delivered, the Addressee must have registered the Preconcerted or Abbreviated Address at the Telegraph Office to which the telegram is addressed (see Rule 83).

Note —Senders of Foreign telegrams to England under Abbreviated Addresses are warned that unless such Addresses are registered, not only with the Indo European and Eastern Telegraph Companies, but also with the British Post Office, there is a risk of non delivery, especially in the event of interruptions on one Route requiring telegrams to be diverted to another Registration at the Eastern or Indo European Companies Offices is not recognised by the British Post Office or by the Submarine Telegraph Company, London Telegrams should not be sent viâ Turkey to Abbreviated Addresses in England unless such Addresses have been registered by the British Post Office Claims for refunds on telegrams are rejected by the authorities in England when Addresses have not been duly registered.

29. Text —Telegrams can be sent without Text The Sender may limit his telegram to the words given in the Address (Rule 22), i e, the telegram need not contain either Text or Sender's name

30 The Text of a Private Telegram can only be composed in Secret language, if the country to which it is addressed allows this mode of correspondence The Text of a Private telegram intended for a country which allows secret correspondence may contain passages in Plain language and passages in Secret language.

31. The Sender's name may be in an abbreviated form or be omitted

32 Signature —Every telegram must be authenticated by the signature of the Sender, which is not charged for or transmitted. The Sender of a Private telegram is bound to prove his identity when requested to do so by the Telegraph Department

STATE TELEGRAMS.

33 Definition —State (or Government) telegrams are defined in the Convention to be those which emanate from the Chief of the State, Ministers Commanders-in-Chief of Land or Sea Forces, and Diplomatic or Consular Agents of the Contracting Governments, also the replies to these same telegrams.

34 From British Officials —The only British Government Officials in India who are allowed to send Foreign State telegrams are those who have been specially authorised to do so by the Government of India. A complete list of these officials will be published in the Telegraph Guide Telegrams classed State tendered by officials, not named in that list, will be treated as Private telegrams. State Telegrams to Ceylon will, however, be accepted from all British Government Officials

35. From Diplomatic or Consular Agents.—The Diplomatic or Consular Agents in India of the States which are parties to the Convention (Rule 1) are entitled to send Foreign State telegrams, but if such persons are engaged in trade or commerce, their telegrams cannot be considered State telegrams unless they fulfil the following conditions:—(a) They must be on the business of the Agent's Government, (b) sent in his official capacity, and (c) addressed to an official personage.

36. Replies to State telegrams.—The addressee of a Foreign State telegram is allowed to send the reply as a State telegram on his shewing the telegram received.

37. Letter Cipher.—The Text of State telegrams in Secret language may be made up of figures or letters with a secret meaning, but a mixture of figures and letters is not allowed.

SERVICE TELEGRAMS.

38. Service telegrams are defined in the Convention to be those which emanate from the Telegraph Administrations of the Contracting States, and which relate either to the service of the International telegraphs or to objects of public interest agreed upon between the said Administrations. They are divided into Service telegrams properly so called and Service Advices. They are transmitted free, except in the cases specified in Rule 87.

COUNTING WORDS.

39. What is counted.—All that the Sender writes in his telegram to be transmitted is included in calculating the charge, with the exception of instructions as to Route (Rule 63), signs of punctuation, apostrophes, and hyphens (Rule 15)

40. Preamble—The words, numbers, or signs forming the Preamble and added by the Telegraph Office for official purposes are not charged for. The name of the Office of origin, the day of the month, the hour and the minute the telegram was booked, which form this Preamble, are transmitted free, and entered on the copy delivered to the Addressee. In India all telegrams are booked by Madras time. The Sender may insert these particulars in the Text of his telegram. They then are counted among the words charged for.

41. Original counting decisive.—The counting of the words by the Office of origin is decisive. Nevertheless the Office at destination, when the telegram is composed in its language, and contains combinations of words contrary to the usage of that language, is empowered to recover from the Addressee the amount undercharged. In this case the telegram is only delivered to the Addressee after payment of the undercharge. In case of non-payment by the Addressee, the Office of origin, duly advised by a Service Advice, informs the Sender that the refusal of payment has prevented the telegram being delivered.

Note.—In applying this rule in India, the language of the country is considered to be English. It applies also to the Vernaculars in case of telegrams from Ceylon (Rules 10 and 11).

42. Maximum length of a word.—In Plain language the maximum length of a word is fixed at ten letters; every ten letters or fraction of ten letters in excess is also counted as one word.

II. In Preconcerted language the maximum length of a word is fixed at ten letters, and words exceeding this limit are absolutely inadmissible.

43. Mixed telegrams.—Words in Plain language inserted in the Text of a mixed telegram, composed of words in Plain language and words in Preconcerted language, are counted as in Rule 42 I. The same Rule applies to proper names used without secret meaning in the Text of telegrams in Preconcerted language. If the mixed telegram contains in addition a portion in Cipher, the Cipher passages are counted according to Rule 49 If it is composed partly of Plain language and partly of Cipher language, the parts in Plain language are counted as in Rule 42 I, and the parts in Cipher language as in Rule 49.

44. In all languages the following are each counted as only one word

(a) The name of the Telegraph Office of destination, the name of the country, and the name of the territorial sub-division of destination, but only in the Address, whatever be the number of words and characters employed to express them, on condition that these words are spelt as given in the official list of Telegraph Offices issued by the International Office at Berne (Nomenclature des Bureaux télégraphiques).

(b) every isolated character, letter, or figure,

(c) each underline,

(d) the two signs of parenthesis at the beginning and end of a passage,

(e) the pair of double or single inverted commas at the beginning and end of a single passage.

45. Hyphens and apostrophes—Expressions joined by a hyphen are counted according to the number of words which serve to form them Words separated by an apostrophe are counted as so many separate words.

46. Compound words—Nevertheless, any compound word, properly so called, which is admitted as such in English and French, and can on occasion be shewn to be so admitted by reference to a dictionary, may be written as a single word, and so written the stipulations of Rule 42 apply to it.

47. Inadmissible combinations.—Combinations and alterations of words contrary to the usage of a language are not allowed. Fictitious and wrongly spelt words are inadmissible.

48. Proper names, &c.—Nevertheless, proper names of towns and countries, family names, names of places, boulevards, streets, &c., the names of ships, and also numbers written in words, are counted according to the number of words employed by the Sender to express them

49. Numbers written in figures are counted as follows:—The number of words to which a group of figures corresponds is obtained by dividing the number of figures by 3, and adding a word for the excess, if any. The same rule is applicable to groups of letters in State telegrams and figures and letters employed as Trade (or Commercial) marks or in Semaphoric telegrams (Rule 129).

Note.—When Trade Marks form part of the Text of a telegram, the Sender should certify them to be such at the foot of the form.

50. Signs used with figures.—The decimal points and commas used with figures, and also the bars used in expressing fractions, are each counted as a figure. The letters added to figures to form ordinal numbers are each counted as a figure.

51. Inadmissible groups or words accidentally included.—When contrary to Rules 10, 11, or 14 a Private telegram accidentally contains an unauthorised group of letters or a word not belonging to any of the languages admitted in Foreign telegrams, this group of letters or this word is counted according to Rule 49, i.e., at the rate of three characters per word. When telegrams containing such groups or words have been inadvertently accepted, the Sender is bound to pay the difference of charge whenever the undercharge is subsequently detected.

52. Examples of counting.—The following examples shew how the rules for counting the words are to be interpreted.

TARIFFS.

53. Changes in Tariffs.—The Tariffs for Foreign telegrams are made up of the shares of the different Administrations concerned, which may alter them from time to time. The Tariffs vary also according to the Route employed (Rules 63 to 65). The franc is the monetary unit employed in Foreign Tariffs; and as all accounts with Foreign Administrations have to be settled in gold, the charges in India are subject to alteration in accordance with changes in the rate of exchange.

54. Charge by the word.—The charge for a Foreign telegram is by the word or group of figures, and the minimum charge is for a telegram of two words (Rules 22 and 29).

Note.—Tables showing the rates per word to Foreign countries will be published in the Telegraph Guide.

55. Tariff areas.—For Tariff purposes India is divided into two areas, namely, India proper and Burma. When in the course of transmission a telegram has to traverse both of these areas, the charge per word is always two annas higher than when it has to traverse only one.

56. Frontier Offices.—The Frontier Offices, or Offices which directly exchange telegrams with Foreign Administrations, are as follows:

(a) Bombay, Karachi, and Madras in the Indian area, which exchange telegrams with the Eastern Telegraph Company, the Indo-European Telegraph Department, and the Eastern Extension, Australasia and China Telegraph Company respectively. Madras is also ordinarily the Frontier Office for Ceylon.

(b) Moulmein in the Burma area, which exchanges telegrams with the Siamese Administration.

All Foreign telegrams originating in India or Burma have to pass through one or other of these Frontier Offices.

PAYMENT OF CHARGES.

57. All charges must be prepaid, with the exception of the supplementary charge for Telegrams "to follow" (Rule 108), Express charges (Rule 119), and the charge for telegrams originating at Semaphore stations (Rule 132), all of which are collected by the Terminal Office. In every case where charges have to be collected on arrival, the telegram is only delivered to the Addressee upon payment of the amount due.

58. Receipts.—The Sender of a Foreign telegram can claim a receipt shewing the amount paid.

59. State telegrams.—The rule about prepayment is relaxed in case of telegrams of great emergency from British Government Officials who have been duly authorised (Rule 34) to send Foreign State telegrams. Whenever a telegram is sent without prepayment under this rule, the Sender must take the necessary steps to ascertain the charges on it, and pay them into the Telegraph Office within twenty-four hours.

60. Cash or Stamps.—At Offices authorised to receive Foreign telegrams (Rule 2), the charges must be paid in cash or Telegraph stamps. As regards the use of Telegraph stamps, see the Rules for Inland telegrams, Nos. 51 to 53.

61. Undercharges made in error, and charges and expenses not recovered from the Addressee in consequence of his refusal to pay them or the impossibility of finding him, must be made good by the Sender.

62. Overcharges made in error are returned. No refund, however, is made of the value of the stamps in excess affixed by the Sender unless he applies for it to the Superintendent, Check Office, Telegraph Department, Calcutta, and sends with his application the Receipt granted for the telegram.

ROUTE.

63. The different Routes to be given to telegrams are indicated in the Tariff Tables published in the Telegraph Guide. The Sender who wishes to prescribe the Route should write it himself on the telegram. He may specify the actual Route to be followed or mark the telegram Best Route or Cheapest Route. Instructions as to Route are transmitted free.

64. When the Sender has prescribed the Route to be followed, the Telegraph Offices concerned are bound to carry out his wishes, unless the Route named be interrupted, or transmission by it seems likely to involve serious delay, in which cases the Sender cannot raise any objection to the change.

65. If the Sender specifies no Route, the telegram is sent by the least expensive one, but, if all the Routes are equal as to cost, the Offices where Routes diverge will decide by which to send it.

66. When the Sender has requested his telegram to be transmitted by telegraph as far as the Office which he names, and thence by post to destination, the Offices must carry out his instructions.

INTERRUPTION OF TELEGRAPH COMMUNICATION.

67. When in the course of transmission of a telegram an interruption takes place in the regular telegraph communications, the Office beyond which the interruption has taken place at once sends the telegram by post (registered) or by some more rapid means, such as, for instance, by an alternative telegraph Route. As soon as communication is re-established, the telegram is again transmitted by telegraph, unless its receipt has been previously acknowledged, or unless, on account of an exceptional accumulation of traffic, this retransmission would be clearly injurious to the total traffic. Telegrams cannot, however, be diverted to a more expensive Route until the Sender has paid the additional cost.

CANCELLATION OF TELEGRAMS BY SENDER.

68. Before transmission.—The Sender of a telegram, by proving his identity, can stop its transmission if in time. When he withdraws or stops it before transmission has begun, the charges are returned, less a fee of four annas. If the stamps have already been defaced, the refund can only be made by the Superintendent of the Check Office, Telegraph Department, Calcutta, to whom the Receipt should be sent with an application.

69. After transmission.—If the telegram has already been transmitted, he can only cancel it by a Paid Service Advice in accordance with Rule 86. As far as possible, this Service Advice is transmitted to the Offices (one after another) to which the telegram in question has been transmitted until it has caught it up. The Sender must also pay for a reply if he wishes to be informed by telegraph that his request has been carried out, and the Office which cancels the telegram replies to that effect by telegraph to the Office of origin. If no reply has been paid for, it sends this advice as an unpaid letter.

70. Refunds of the cost of the first telegram and of the Paid Service Advice cancelling it can be obtained from the Check Office for the portions of the Route not traversed, less the expense of postage, if incurred.

DELIVERY AT DESTINATION.

71. According to address and order.—Telegrams are delivered, according to their address, either at residence or Poste restante (to be kept at the Post Office till called for) or Télégraphe restant (to be kept at the Telegraph Office till called for). They are in all cases delivered at or sent to their destinations in the order of their receipt and of their priority.

72. Free delivery limits.—Telegrams addressed to the place of residence in the locality served by the Telegraph Office are at once taken to their address. In India they are delivered free of charge within 5 miles of a Telegraph Office. Beyond the free-delivery limit telegrams received in India are sent by post (registered) without charge.

73. Reply given to messenger.—In India the Telegraph messenger who delivers a Foreign telegram may be entrusted with the Reply, provided he be not detained for this purpose more than five minutes. The fact of the Reply having been given to the messenger, and the amount paid to him, should be mentioned on the Receipt given for the telegram.

74. Delivery by post.—Telegrams addressed Poste restante are posted immediately by the Terminal Telegraph Office. If the telegrams are marked Poste or (PP), they are posted as paid letters without any charge for postage to Sender or Addressee. If they are marked Poste recommandée or (PR), they are posted as registered letters, and the Sender must pay a fee of four annas for registration.

Note.—In India all Foreign telegrams which have to be posted to destination are posted as registered letters (see also Rule 123).

75. Persons to whom telegrams are delivered.—A telegram taken to place of residence may be delivered either to the Addressee, to any adult member of his family, to any of his employés, lodgers, or guests, or to the porter of the hotel or house, unless the Addressee has named in writing a special person, or the Sender has requested by writing before the Address the instructions (Rule 15) A remettre en main propre or (MP) that the telegram may be delivered only into the hands of the Addressee himself. In this case the Delivery Office writes the request upon the envelope, and also gives the necessary orders to the messenger.

76. Open delivery.—The Sender can also request the telegram to be delivered open by writing before the Address the instructions (Rule 15) A remettre ouvert or (RO). This request is reproduced in the copy delivered. In India such telegrams are delivered without an envelope.

77. Telegrams to Offices not authorised to do Foreign business.—Telegrams arriving in India and addressed to places served by Postal, Combined, or Railway Offices which are not authorised to accept Foreign telegrams (Rule 2) are posted to destination as registered letters from the nearest Office so authorised. This restriction does not apply to telegrams from Ceylon.

78. Undelivered telegrams.—As soon as it has been ascertained that a telegram cannot be delivered, the Office of destination sends a Service Advice to the Office of origin, announcing the cause of non-delivery, and repeating the Address exactly as received. The Office of origin immediately verifies the correctness of the Address as repeated back; and if it has been altered in transmission, it rectifies it at once by a Service Advice. If the Address has not been altered, the Office of origin communicates the Advice as soon as possible to the Sender. The Sender is not allowed to complete, alter, or confirm the Address except by a paid telegram in the shape of a Paid Service Advice (Rule 86.) If the telegram happens to be delivered after transmission of the Non-delivery Advice, the Office at destination is bound to send a second Service Advice announcing the fact.

79. When, in consequence of an inexact or insufficient address, or of the Addressee's absence or refusal, Express charges have not been paid at destination, the amount of these charges is mentioned in the Service Advice, and the Sender is bound to make them good.

80. If the messenger finds no one at the address given who will consent to receive the telegram for the Addressee, a notice is left at the house, and the telegram is brought back to the Office to be delivered to the Addressee, when he claims it.

81. Poste restante : Télégraphe restant.—When the telegram is addressed Poste restante (to be kept at the Post Office) or Télégraphe restant (to be kept at the Telegraph Office), it is only delivered to the Addressee himself or to a person duly appointed by him.

82. Unclaimed Telegrams.—Telegrams unclaimed under Rules 80 and 81 are not kept over six weeks.

83. Registered Addresses.—Any firm or person expecting to receive telegrams can register a Preconcerted or Abbreviated Address at the Government Telegraph Office in India from which such telegrams have to be delivered. For further details, see the Rules for Inland telegrams, Nos. 69 to 75. Preconcerted Addresses used in Foreign telegrams must be real names or genuine words of the eight languages specified in Rule 11.

84. Delivery on ships.—When a Foreign telegram in India has to be delivered on board a ship which cannot be reached without a boat (i.e., when not alongside a wharf, pier, or jetty), the cost of boat hire must be paid by the Addressee.

Note.—On telegrams to Ceylon addressed to persons on board ships in Ceylon ports, the Sender must prepay twelve annas for boat hire. He should write the abbreviation XP (which is counted and charged as one word) before the Address to indicate that boat hire has been prepaid.

85. Directions about delivery.—All directions which persons leave at Telegraph Offices regarding the delivery or retransmission of their telegrams should be renewed at intervals of at most six months.

RECTIFYING TELEGRAMS.

86. The Sender and the Addressee may within seventy-two hours of despatch or arrival, as the case may be, call for information or give instructions by telegraph regarding a telegram in the course of transmission or already transmitted. They can also, in order to make or obtain corrections, cause a telegram which they have sent or received to be repeated entirely or in part by the Office at destination or by the Office of origin or any intermediate Office. In all such cases they have to pay the following:

(a) The cost of the telegram making the request.

(b) The cost of a telegram for the reply, if a reply by telegraph is wanted.

87. All rectifying, completing, or cancelling telegrams, and all communications relating to a telegram already transmitted or in course of transmission, exchanged between Telegraph Offices at the request of the Sender or Addressee are treated as Service Advices (Rule 38), but charged for.

88. The charges made for rectifying telegrams are refunded in full on application (supported by Receipts granted) to the Superintendent, Check Office, Government Telegraph Department, Calcutta, if the repetition shews that the word or words repeated were transmitted incorrectly at first However, when some of the words have been transmitted correctly and others incorrectly the charge is not refunded for the words which, in the Service Advice making the enquiry and in the Service Advice containing the Reply, point out the words correctly transmitted in the first instance.

89. No refund is made for the telegram which has given occasion to a request for correction, nor are any refunds made for rectifying or completing telegrams exchanged direct as Private telegrams between the Sender and Addressee.

SPECIAL TELEGRAMS.

90. The Sender of a telegram can prepay a reply; but the payment must not exceed the cost of a telegram of 30 words by the same Route, unless it be to obtain the repetition of a telegram previously transmitted, in accordance with Rule 86.

91. If the Sender writes before the Address and pays for the Instructions Réponse payée or (RP) (Rule 15), it is assumed that a reply of ten words is desired. Should the number of words for which a Reply is prepaid be greater or less than ten, the Sender must add the actual number, thus Réponse payée 15 or (RP 15). A reply of less than two words (Rule 29) cannot be prepaid.

92. At destination the Office delivers to the Addressee an order or Pass which entitles him to send free of charge, and within the limits of the amount prepaid, a telegram to any destination whatever.

Note.—A pass issued for a Reply to an Inland telegram cannot be used to frank a Foreign telegram and vice versa. Two or more Foreign Passes may be used to frank one Foreign telegram, but one Pass may not be used to frank more than one telegram.

93. When the charge for a telegram paid for by a Pass exceeds the amount of the value of this Pass, the difference must be paid in cash or stamps (see Rule 60). If, on the other hand, the value of the Pass exceeds that of the Reply, the difference is refunded by the Superintendent of the Check Office, Telegraph Department, Calcutta, to whom the Sender of the Reply should apply, supporting his claim by the Receipt granted for the telegram.

94. The Pass is only available for six weeks from date of issue, after which period it is considered null and void.

95. When the Addressee does not use the Pass, the amount paid for the Reply can be refunded to the Sender. In case of a Pass delivered in India, the Addressee should, before the expiration of three months from the date of issue, send the Pass to the Check Office as above, accompanied by a claim for refund in favour of the Sender.

96. If the Addressee refuses the Pass, the Office of destination at once informs the Sender by a Service Advice, which takes the place of the Reply, and is transmitted as a Private telegram.

97. When a Reply-paid telegram cannot be delivered, a Non-delivery Report is sent as a Service Advice as prescribed by Rule 78. If the Address is not rectified, and if the enquiries made to find the Addressee remain fruitless, a second Non-delivery Report is sent at the end of eight days or even sooner as a Private telegram, and this takes the place of the Reply paid for.

(B) Collated (or Repeated) Telegrams.

98. The Sender of any telegram can require it to be "collated," i.e., repeated back by each Office engaged in its transmission to insure correctness In this case, he writes before the Address the word Collationnement or (TC), which indications are charged for respectively as two words or one word (Rule 21).

99. The additional charge for this repeating is equal to one-fourth of the normal charge In calculating the charge, fractions of an anna are disregarded.

100. State telegrams in Secret language or in figures or in letters are thus repeated in every case, and without additional charge.

(C) Advice of Delivery.

101. The Sender of a telegram can require that a notice shall be telegraphed to him of the date and hour of its delivery immediately after such delivery. He should write before the Address the words Accusé de réception or (CR), which are charged for as in Rule 21. The charge for an Advice of Delivery is equal to the cost of a telegram of ten words by the same Route. The Advice of Delivery has precedence over Private telegrams

102. In case of non-delivery, a free Service Advice is sent as in Rule 78. The Advice of Delivery paid for is transmitted afterwards, either after the delivery of the telegram, if it has become possible, or after twenty-four hours, if delivery has not taken place, and the cause of non-delivery is stated in it.

103. The Sender can require by writing before the Address the words Faire Suivre or (FS), the Office of destination to cause his telegram to follow the Addressee to different addresses, if necessary, within the limits of the countries working under the European régime.

Note—The International Telegraphs are divided into two régimes or systems—namely, the European régime and the extra-European régime. The former includes all Europe, also the Canary Islands, Algeria, Senegal, Tunis, Tripoli, and Egypt.

104. The Sender of a telegram "to follow" cannot in any case prepay a reply.

105. When a telegram simply bears the words Faire Suivre or (FS) without any further instructions, the Office of destination, after having presented it at the address given, retransmits it immediately, if need be, to the new address given at the residence of the Addressee. This new address is inserted in the telegram after the first one. If no new address is furnished, the Office keeps the telegram, and reports non-delivery as in Rule 78. The Sender has to make good Express charges, if any, not recovered from the Addressee. If the telegram is retransmitted and the second Office does not find the Addressee at the new address, the telegram is kept by that Office.

106. If the remark Faire Suivre or (FS) is accompanied by successive addresses, the telegram is transmitted to each of the destinations mentioned until the last, if need be, and if the last Office does not find the Addressee, it keeps the telegram and reports non-delivery as above.

107. The original contents of a telegram "to follow" are transmitted in full to the successive Offices of destination, and reproduced in the copy delivered to the Addressee

108. The charge to be paid by the Sender for a telegram "to follow" is simply the charge up to the first destination, all the Addresses being counted in the number of words charged for. The charges for readdressing from the first destination are collected from the Addressee.

109. In case of telegrams addressed to places included in the European régime (Rule 103), the Addressee, by explaining the necessity, can arrange for telegrams which may arrive at a Telegraph Office, and are intended for delivery to him within the delivery limits of that Office, to follow him to a new address or new addresses, as in Rule 103. His requests to this effect must be made in writing.

110. Telegrams readdressed in India.—The rules for telegrams "to follow" do not apply to telegrams received for delivery in India. Should, however, the Addressee of a Foreign telegram received in India have left the place to which it is addressed, it will, if returned unopened with definite instructions as to the new Address, be retransmitted within Indian limits. It will also (subject to the conditions laid down in Rule 77) be transmitted immediately to any new Address without being sent out for delivery at the first Address, if the Addressee has left written instructions at the Office, or if his new Address is known. The charge for such readdressing is the Ordinary rate for Inland telegrams (i.e., one rupee for the first eight words and two annas for each additional word; Address and Sender's name free), and it must be paid by the Addressee before the telegram is delivered.

111. Telegrams readdressed to Ceylon.—Foreign telegrams arriving in India can also be readdressed to Ceylon if the Addressee has left for that country. In such case the readdressing charge recovered from the Addressee is the usual charge between India and Ceylon.

Note.—No Foreign telegram arriving in India can be readdressed to any Foreign country except Ceylon.

(E) Multiple Telegrams.

112. Foreign telegrams may be Multiple, i.e., addressed to several persons in one and the same locality or in different localities, but served by one and the same Telegraph Office, or to one and the same person at several residences in the same locality with or without retransmission by post or by express.

113. The Address of a Multiple telegram, if it includes Special Instructions, must be drawn up in conformity with Rule 20.

114. A Multiple telegram is charged for as a single telegram; but a copying fee of four annas per telegram not exceeding one hundred words is charged for all the Addresses, less one. Above one hundred words, an additional fee of four annas is charged for each series or fraction of a series of one hundred words. In calculating this fee, the total number of words in the Text, Sender's Name, and Address are counted, the charge for each copy being reckoned separately.

115. In transmitting a Multiple telegram, the number of the Addresses is mentioned in the Preamble, and transmitted free.

116. In the first case specified in Rule 112, each copy of the telegram will only bear its own particular Address when delivered, unless the Sender has requested the contrary. The latter request must be included in the number of words charged for and entered before the Address as follows:—Communiquer toutes adresses.

(F) Telegrams for places where there are no Telegraph Offices.

117. Post or Express.—Telegrams addressed to places where there are no Telegraph Offices can be sent to destination, according to the Sender's request, by post. They can also be sent by Express when addressed to Offices in countries where a more rapid mode of delivery than the post has been organised for telegrams.

118. The Address of telegrams to be sent beyond the telegraph lines should be written as follows:—Poste (or Exprès) M. Muller, Johannisthal, Berlin, the name of the Terminal Telegraph Office being entered last.

119. Express charges as a rule are recovered from the Addressee, but in the case of offices belonging to Administrations working under the extra-European system (Rule 103), which have fixed and notified the charges for delivery by express, such charges must be prepaid by the Sender, and the word Exprès payé charged at two words, or the abbreviation (XP) charged as one word, should be written before the address.

II. The following is a list (subject to future alterations) of the charges which have been fixed and notified as above:

Place.	Country.	From what Telegraph Office.	Nature of Express.	Express charge per telegram.
				R.
Bassadore .	Persia .	Jask . .	Special boat .	30

Ditto . .	Do. .	Gwadur .	Ditto .	80

120. Employment of post.—The Terminal Telegraph Office has the right to send a telegram addressed to a place where there is no Telegraph Office to its destination by post:

(a) In the absence of directions in the telegram as to the means of delivery to be employed.

(b) When the means indicated differ from the mode adopted and notified by the Terminal Administration (Rule 119).

(c) Whenever there is an unpaid claim against the Addressee for porterage on a previous telegram which he has refused to pay. In this last case, the telegram can be posted as an unpaid letter.

121. Telegrams for places where there is no Telegraph Office must be posted by the Terminal Office:

(a) When such has been the request expressly made by the Sender (Rule 117) or by the Addressee.

(b) When the Terminal Office has no more rapid means at disposal.

122. Telegrams of all kinds which have to be transmitted to destination by post are posted by the Terminal Office without expense to the Sender or Receiver, except in the cases provided for in Rules 120 (c), 122, 125, and 127.

123. Post Registered.—On telegrams which have to be posted in a Foreign country as Registered letters, the Sender must pay a fee of four annas. The Special Instuctions Poste recommandée or (PR), charged respectively as three words and one word, must be written before the Address (Rule 21).

Note.—All Foreign telegrams which have to be posted to destination in India are sent by post registered (Rule 74).

Note.—Foreign telegrams delivered by His Highness the Nizam's State are delivered in duplicate. The first copy is posted unregistered by the Terminal Telegraph Office, and then that office telegraphs the second copy marked Duplicate to Hyderabad (Deccan), where it is posted registered through the British Post Office.

124. Telegrams too late to be posted registered.—When a telegram intended to be forwarded as a registered letter cannot be immediately registered without losing a post, it is posted first as an ordinary letter, and a duplicate is sent as a registered letter as soon as possible.

Note.—This applies to all Foreign telegrams posted in India. The second copy will always be marked Duplicate.

125. Telegrams to be posted by Sea post.—On telegrams which have to be posted in a Foreign country for transmission by Sea post, the Sender must pay a fee of one rupee for postage and four annas more if he wants the telegram sent as a registered letter. The special instructions Poste or (PP) or Poste recommandée or (PR), as the case may be, must be written before the Address, and are charged for (Rule 21).

126. Examples of telegrams to be posted to destination by Sea post from a port in a foreign country:

From—Bombay.

Special Instructions—PP.

Address—John Doe, Yokohama, Japan, Colombo.

Text.—Start first steamer.

This telegram contains eleven chargeable words, and the cost is that of eleven words to Ceylon, plus one rupee for postage.

(b) A telegram from India to Mauritius to be posted at Durban (in Natal) as a registered letter:

Text.—Start first steamer.

This telegram contains ten chargeable words, and the cost is that of ten words to Natal viâ Bombay-Aden, plus one rupee for postage and four annas more for registration.

127. Telegrams to be posted from Offices near a Frontier.—Telegrams transmitted to a Telgraph Office situated near a frontier, in order to be sent by post for delivery in the neighbouring territory, are posted as unpaid letters, and the postage is payable by the Addressee.

(G) Semaphoric Telegram.

128. Semaphoric Telegrams are telegrams exchanged with ships at sea by means of Semaphores.

Note—For list of Semaphore Offices in India, see the Rules for Inland Telegrams, No. 107

129. Language.—They should be written in the language of the country in which the Semaphore station which has to signal them is situated, or in signals of the Universal Commercial Code. In the latter case they are considered as Cipher telegrams.

130. Address.—When they are for ships at sea, the Address should contain, in addition to the ordinary direction, the name or official number of the vessel and its nationality.

131. Preamble.—In every Semaphoric telegram the word Sémaphorique is signalled free in the Preamble.

132. The charge for telegrams exchanged with ships at sea by Semaphores is fixed at eight annas per telegram. This charge is added to the cost of its transmission by the electric telegraph, calculated according to the ordinary rules. The total is collected from the Sender for telegrams addressed to ships at sea and from the Addressee for telegrams signalled from ships at sea (Rule 57).

133. Transmission.—Telegrams from a ship at sea are transmitted to their destination in signals of the Commercial Code when the ship requests it. When the ship does not request it, they are translated into ordinary language by the Chief of the Semaphore station and transmitted to destination.

134. Non-delivery—Telegrams which it has been impossible to signal from Semaphore stations to the ships to which they are addressed within 30 days of their orignal date (original date not included) are considered as dead letters. In case the ship to which a Semaphoric telegram is addressed does not arrive within twenty-eight days, the Semaphore station forwards a Service Advice to the Sender on the morning of the 29th day. The Sender has the power, on paying the ordinary cost of a telegram of 10 words, to request the retention of his telegram for another 30 days, and so on. If this request is not made, the telegram is treated as a dead letter on the 30th day.

COMBINATION OF SPECIAL TELEGRAMS.

135. In applying Rules 90 to 134, the facilities given to the public for Prepaid replies, Collated telegrams, Advice of delivery, Telegrams "to follow," Multiple telegrams, and Telegrams to places where there are no Telegraph Offices can be combined, the instructions in Rules 19 to 21 being duly observed.

Exception.—A reply cannot be prepaid in case of a telegram "to follow."

FOREIGN PRESS TELEGRAMS AT REDUCED RATES.

136. United Kingdom.—Telegrams in plain English containing news or intelligence for publication in newspapers are transmitted vid Teheran or vid Suez from the United Kingdom to India and Burma, and from Government Telegraph Offices in India and Burma to the United Kingdom at approximately one-third of the rate per word for private telegrams, subject to the following conditions:

I.—The newspapers, their correspondents or agents, are required to address their telegrams to a registered newspaper, and such newspaper is prohibited from selling, distributing, or communicating such telegrams to clubs, exchanges, or newsrooms, or disposing of them for any purpose whatsoever, either directly or indirectly other than for publication in registered newspapers.

II.—Telegrams at the reduced rate shall not be allowed to interfere with the transmission of telegrams at full rates, and, in order to ensure this, the transmission of such News telegrams may be deferred or suspended or interrupted until any State telegram or any Private or Press telegram at full rates, which may be on hand, shall have been transmitted and completed. On the lines of the Indian Telegraph Department such telegrams will take precedence with Ordinary Inland telegrams.

III.—No telegrams shall be transmitted at the reduced rate except for publication in a newspaper, and they must be written in plain English so as to be intelligible to the transmitting Offices. Telegrams containing news or information not for publication, or containing Code words or words of concealed meaning, or groups of figures or ciphers, shall be paid for at the full tariff rates.

IV.—The news transmitted in such telegrams at the reduced rate must be duly published in the newspapers to which they may be addressed or satisfactory reasons be given for non-publication, in the absence of which full tariff rates will be chargeable.

V.—All Press telegrams at the reduced rate must be prepaid, except under special arrangements made by an authorised newspaper for a specially nominated correspondent.

VI.—The reduced rate for Foreign Press telegrams applies only when all the above conditions have been satisfied, and any subsequent claim made for the difference between the reduced and full rates must be satisfied immediately on demand.

137. Other places—On exactly the same conditions Press telegrams can be sent to or from—

(a) Aden vid Bombay.

(b) Penang and Singapore vid Madras.

139. How marked, &c—Foreign Press telegrams must be marked Press by the Senders, and the benefit of Press rates must be claimed by them at the time the telegrams are tendered for despatch.

140. Except as provided in the four preceding Rules, Foreign Press telegrams to and from the above named places at reduced rates come under the general rules for Private Foreign telegrams.

141. Press Telegrams for Ceylon are accepted at reduced rates under the same general rules and conditions as Inland Press telegrams (see the Rules for Inland telegrams, Nos. 110 and 111). The reduced rates are as follows.

From Offices in	First 32 words or groups of three figures.	Every four additional words or groups of three figures.
	R. a. p.	R. a. p.
India . . .	1 8 0	0 3 0

In other respects Press telegrams for Ceylon come under the general rules for Private Foreign telegrams.

RECORDS.

142. Time kept.—The originals and copies of telegrams are kept for three days only in Government Telegraph Offices, after which time they are sent to the Check Office, Government Telegraph Department, Calcutta, where they are preserved for twelve months, and then destroyed.

Sender and Addressee on proof of identity, or to a person properly authorised by one of the two.

144. Copies.—The Sender and Addressee of a telegram or their authorised representatives can be given certified copies of the telegram or of the copy delivered if they apply to the Telegraph Office within three days or to the Superintendent of the Check Office at Calcutta within twelve months. For every such copy, a copying fee of four annas per 100 words or fraction of 100 words must be paid in advance. Copies cannot be given unless the date and description of the telegram are given.

145. Preservation.—Application may be made by an interested party to the Government Telegraph Check Office for the preservation of specified telegrams exchanged between other persons on the ground of pending or contemplated judicial proceedings. Such application must be made within twelve months of the dates of the telegrams, and such telegrams will then be preserved for a further period of four months, at the expiration of which time they will, in default of a renewed application, be destroyed. It must be understood that the duty of the Telegraph Department in the matter is confined to making the search and preserving the telegrams, if found. No information as to the result of the search will be furnished, and any telegrams answering the description given, which may be found, will only be produced on the order of a competent court of law or other competent authority.

146. Fees for searching for telegrams.—Should the particulars furnished be insufficient to enable the Check Office to at once trace the telegrams applied for under either Rule 144 or Rule 145, the cost of searching for them must be deposited by the applicant. A fee of one rupee is charged for searching through the telegrams of any Telegraph Office for one day. thus, if it be required to examine the telegrams of two Telegraph Offices over a period of five days, the searching fee will be ten rupees.

REFUNDS.

147 The Sender can claim a refund of—

(a) The full cost of every telegram which has suffered serious delay or failed to reach its destination through the fault of the Telegraph service.

(b) The full cost of every Collated (or Repeated) telegram which in consequence of errors in transmission has clearly failed to effect its object.

Note.—No refund is given for errors made in the transmission or uncollated telegrams.

(c) The charge for every word omitted in transmission through fault of the Telegraph service This rule, however, is not applicable when the Addressee has discovered the omission, and had it rectified under Rule 86.

148. In case of interruption of a sub-marine line, the Sender of a telegram can claim a refund of the portion of the charge belonging to the distance not traversed, deduction being made of the expenses incurred, if any, in sending the telegram by any other mode of transport.

149. These refund rules do not apply to telegrams transmitted by the lines of States which are not parties to the Convention, or of Telegraph Administrations which do not observe its regulations.

150. The refund rules only apply to the cost of the actual telegrams lost, delayed, or mutilated, including any supplementary charges collected, and to the charges for rectifying telegrams (Rule 88), but not to telegrams necessitated or rendered useless by the loss, delay, or mutilation.

151. Every claim for refund should be made under penalty of rejection within six months of the date of the telegram.

152. Every claim should be addressed by the Sender to the Telegraph Administration under which the telegram originated (in India, to the Superintendent of the Check Office, Telegraph Department), accompanied by documentary evidence, namely, in case of non-delivery by a written statement from the Terminal Office or the Addressee, and in case of delay or error by the copy of the telegram delivered to him In case of telegrams sent from India, the claim should be accompanied by the Receipt (Rule 58). In case of telegrams received in India, the Addressee may send the claim to the Superintendent of the Check Office, who will decide whether the necessary action should be taken by the Check Office or by the Sender.

153. When a claim is admitted to be well founded by the Administrations interested, the refund is made to the Sender by the Telegraph Administration under which the telegram originated (in India by the Check Office). No refunds are made to the Addressee in any case

154. If the Sender does not reside in the country where he deposited his telegram for transmission, he can have his claim forwarded to the original Telegraph Administration through the medium of another administration. In this case, the latter is deputed to make the refund, if need be.

155 No claim is admitted when a telegram is in question which, not being in accordance with the conditions prescribed for observance by the public with regard to composition, language, legible writing, address, instructions for transport beyond the lines, &c., has been accepted for transmission at the Sender's risk.

156 In case of delay, the claim for refund is absolute if the telegram did not reach its destination sooner than it would have done by post, or when the delay exceeds 144 hours.

157 When a telegram is stopped under Rule 3 or 4, the charge is returned to the Sender, if he claims it.

REVENUE AND AGRICULTURAL DEPARTMENT.

Weather Review of India for the week ending at 8 a.m. on Saturday, June 6th, 1891.

A very steady distribution of pressure has been experienced during the present week. Readings have been steadily highest in the extreme south, while two well-marked depressions have been shown, one lying over the western desert; the other over a region which comprised West and South-West Bengal, the North Circars, the east of the Central Provinces, and the south-east of the North-Western Provinces. Between these two depressions there ran a trough of relatively low pressure. Hence the general distribution of pressure was briefly as follows:

Readings were highest in the extreme south and relatively high along the line of the hills; readings were low within a trough running north-west and south-east between the Circars and the Punjab, and lowest within two depressions which occupied the ends of this trough. Over Guzerat, Central India, and Rajputana pressure was relatively to places lying to the east and west high, and hence a shoulder or prominence of high readings was shown over this region. This shoulder is of importance, as in years of deficient rainfall it has been noticed that the falling off in the rainfall of North-Western India has been accompanied with the development of this shoulder.

The wind directions have over the greater part of the country been as steady as the distribution of pressure. North-westerly and westerly winds have prevailed over the central parts of India and the west and centre of the Peninsula, south-westerly to southerly winds over the Bay area and Burma, and easterly winds up the Gangetic plain. Over nearly the whole of the Indian region the force has been fresh to strong, and at the central stations strong gales have prevailed. On the West Coast, though the force has been fresh, it has on no occasion quite equalled the normal average strength of the month. Generally it may be said that the monsoon current has been felt throughout the week over the extreme south of the Peninsula, over the whole of the Bay area, and to a limited extent up the Gangetic plain; but that an abnormal north-westerly wind has blown over the northern part of the West Coast and the adjacent inland districts. More or less heavy rain has fallen on each day of the week in the south of the Peninsula, in Burma, and in Bengal and Assam, while showers were reported from some central stations on the 1st and 2nd, from the Gangetic plain on the 4th, and from some central stations again on the 5th and 6th.

Temperature.—In Bengal and Assam and the North-Western Provinces, where the rainfall has been unusually heavy for the time of year, the mean temperature of the week has been below the normal average, but in all other Provinces, the rainfall having been more or less slight, the temperature has been excessive.

A

The following table shows the variation of temperature from the normal average on each day of the week for the principal Provinces of India:

PROVINCE.	MAY	JUNE						Mean variation for week.
	31st.	1st.	2nd.	3rd.	4th.	5th.	6th.

Mean for whole India	+1·5	+2·2	+2·4	+2·7	+0·7	−0·7	−0·7	+1·2

The above table shows that the general temperature of the Indian region was above the normal on 31st May; that this excess increased up to the 3rd June, when it amounted to nearly 3°; that it fell quickly on the 4th, and was below the average on the 5th and 6th. The concluding column of figures shows that, with the exception of Bengal, Assam, and the North-Western Provinces, all the Provinces had a higher temperature than usual, the greatest excess being in the Central Provinces, Sind, and Rajputana, where it amounted to nearly 4°. In the North-Western Provinces, to which region rain extended during the latter half of the week, the mean temperatures of the 5th and 6th were very largely below the normal.

The following is the record of the highest temperature recorded on each day throughout the week:

On the 31st May	Jacobabad	reported	119·0°
1st June	ditto	„	117·1°
2nd „	ditto	„	119·5°
3rd „	ditto	„	122·0°
4th „	ditto	„	122·0°
5th „	Multan	„	118·3°
6th „	Jacobabad	„	120·5°

These figures show that the hottest region throughout has been the extreme north-west of India, and that the heat there has been excessive.

Rain has fallen in all parts of India, except some of the north-western divisions, where the weather has been fine throughout. The divisions in which there has been absolutely no rain are the Punjab (South, Central, Hill, and North-Western Divisions), Khandeish, Guzerat, Kathiawar, Sind, and Rajputana. In addition to these divisions, the following had less than one-tenth of an inch as the total rainfall for the week:—The North-Western Provinces (Central and West), the Punjab (West), Berar, Central India (East), and Hyderabad (South). The region over which there was either no rain or no effective rain thus comprised the greater part of North-Western India, and ran southward across Khandeish and Berar into the Konkan and the Deccan. In all other parts of India effective rain fell, but it was only at a few divisions in North-East India that the amount received considerably exceeded the normal average. The third column of the concluding table shows that thirteen of the divisions into which India is divided for rainfall purposes have had more than the normal amount of rain during the week, and that the remaining thirty-six divisions have had less. In the case of Behar, where the normal rainfall of the week is only 0·63", the excess is very large, the actual rain received being 3·95", and in the case of the North-Western Provinces (Submontane), where the normal rainfall is 0·43" and the actual is 1·92", the excess is considerable; but in the remaining divisions the excess is generally moderate or small. The greatest deficiency of rainfall is reported from the Konkan, and is as much as 5½". This deficiency is due to the non-advance of the monsoon current beyond Malabar. The other divisions in which considerable deficiencies exist are Arakan, Assam (Brahmaputra), North Bengal, Malabar, and Coorg. As with the existing table a new rainfall season is commenced, the figures in the three last columns of the table are only a reproduction of the information shown in the first three columns, but the percentage values given in the final column show clearly the very large excess of rain which has fallen in parts of North-East India and the large deficiency on the West Coast.

REVENUE DEPARTMENT.

A Dictionary of the Economic Products of India.

BY DR. GEO. WATT, C.I.E.,

Reporter on Economic Products.

Published under the authority of the Government of India in the Revenue and Agricultural Department.

The first four volumes of this work are now ready for issue, and intending subscribers are invited to register their names with the Superintendent of Government Printing, Calcutta.

The Dictionary is intended to deal with the products of India —animal, vegetable, and mineral; each product being treated after a uniform plan, the paragraphs of which give the scientific, vernacular, and European names; habitat or source history; properties and uses, both chemical and industrial; trade statistics; markets, &c. The work is arranged alphabetically according to scientific nomenclature, but commercial and important vernacular names are also given as cross references, so that little difficulty need be experienced in finding the account of a product even when its scientific name is unknown to the reader.

An important feature of the Dictionary consists in the fact that derived information is in every instance given under quotation marks, and with a reference to the original publication. Numerous contributions have, however, furnished the results of new discoveries, and confirmed the vernacular names; so that the Dictionary is not only a complete compilation of published information, but has been brought abreast of the most recent inventions and discoveries.

Volume I contains the letters A and B, and consists of 559 royal pages; Volume II embraces the letter C in 683 pages; Volume III contains the letters D, E, F, and G in 534 pages. Vol. IV, letters G to L in 643 pages The whole work will, it is expected, be completed in six volumes by 1891; but a seventh volume may also be issued consisting of an Index to all the vernacular and other names contained in the Dictionary; and this as a work of reference, it is hoped, may prove of considerable value.

The price to subscribers will be in India R30 and in England 2 guineas, payable in advance, for the complete set. An extra charge for packing and postage will be made for the set—in India, at 8 annas per volume, and for England at 2 rupees 6 annas per volume.

For copies bound in half calf or half morocco, R6 and 8 shillings, respectively, will be charged extra for the whole sets.

 No copies will be issued to non-subscribers till the work is complete, and no single volume will be sold separately. The price to non-subscribers will be R45 in India and 3 guineas in England, exclusive of packing and postage.

FIELD OPERATIONS.

MANIPUR.

No. 585.—His Excellency the Viceroy and Governor-General in Council is pleased to direct the publication of the subjoined letter from the Adjutant-General in India, submitting, under the orders of the Commander-in-Chief in India, despatches from Major-General H. Collett, C.B., commanding the Manipur Field Force, and from Major-General T. Graham, C.B., and Lieutenant-Colonel R. H. F. Rennick, commanding respectively the Tamu and Silchar Columns of the force. These despatches report the particulars of the simultaneous advance on Manipur of the three columns from Kohima, Tamu, and Silchar, which were sent to restore order in Manipur and to exact retribution for the murder of the Chief Commissioner of Assam and other British officers in March last.

2. The Governor-General in Council cordially endorses the approval expressed by the Commander-in-Chief in India of the indomitable energy displayed by the troops in overcoming the difficulties and hardships of an advance without tents through a mountainous and unhealthy country, exposed as they were to much suffering from intense heat and heavy rain. The association with the regular troops of the volunteer soldiers of the Calcutta Rifle Corps and Surma Valley Light Horse in this expedition is a matter of especial gratification to His Excellency in Council, who also notices with much satisfaction the services of the Assam Military Police with the Kohima and Silchar Columns. The Governor-General also wishes to record his appreciation of the good work done by the Commissariat-Transport Department.

3. The services of Major H. St. P. Maxwell, Deputy Commissioner, Kachar, Mr. A. W. Davis, C.S., Deputy Commissioner, Kohima, and Mr. C. A. Soppitt, Political Officer with General Graham, have been especially valuable, while Mr. Dalrymple-Clark has done good work in connection with the transport on the Ngriting-Nichuguard road.

4. His Excellency in Council desires to convey to Major-General Collett, the Officers Commanding the Tamu and Silchar Columns, and to all the officers and troops the acknowledgments of the Government of India for the excellent manner in which the expedition was carried out.

No. 375-M—"Field Operations -Manipur,"—dated Simla, 11th June 1891.

From—MAJOR-GENERAL W. GALBRAITH, C.B., Adjutant-General in India,

To—MAJOR-GENERAL E. H. H. COLLEN, C.I.E., Secretary to the Government of India, Military Department.

I have the honor, by direction of the Commander-in-Chief, to submit for the information of the Government of India, despatches from Major-General H. Collett, C.B., commanding the Manipur Field Force, and Major-General T. Graham, C.B., and Lieutenant-Colonel R. H. F. Rennick, commanding respectively the Tamu and Silchar Columns.

2. On receipt of authentic intelligence of the seizure by the Durbar of the Chief Commissioner of Assam, orders were issued on the 29th and 30th March for the formation of three columns at Kohima, Tamu, and Silchar, and for their simultaneous advance on Manipur.

3. Considerable difficulty was experienced in the concentration and advance of the force, the troops for the Tamu and Silchar Columns being furnished from Burma and India, whilst the movements of the Kohima Column were seriously retarded by the difficulty of obtaining cooly transport

4. The columns moved from their respective bases at Silchar, Kohima, and Tamu on the 5th, 20th, and 23rd April. The advance of the Tamu force was preceded by a gallant attempt on the part of Lieutenant C J W Grant of the 12th Regiment (2nd Burma Battalion) of Madras Infantry to rescue the captives, a detailed report of which has already been submitted for the information of Government

On the 13th April Captain Presgrave, 12th Madras Infantry routed 300 of the enemy near Palel, Lieutenant Grant having his charger shot under him while leading the mounted infantry in pursuit.

On the 25th April an advanced reconnoitring party from the Tamu Column encountered a considerable number of Manipuris strongly posted near the village of Bapam On the arrival of a reinforcement of 200 rifles and two mountain guns under Captain F M. Rundall, 4th Gurkha Rifles, the position was stormed and carried after an obstinate hand-to-hand combat with a loss of one Native officer and one sepoy killed, and four British officers *two Native officers, two non-commissioned officers, and five sepoys wounded A report by Captain Rundall of this brilliant affair is attached for the information of Government.†

* Captain F M Drury, Captain P M Carnegy } 2nd Battalion, 4th Gurkha Regiment
Lieutenant C. J W. Grant, Lieutenant F W H Cox } 12th Madras Infantry

The other two columns met with no serious opposition from the enemy, and the whole force arrived before Manipur on the 27th April the date appointed for the concentration

5. His Excellency heartily endorses the high opinion expressed by Major-General Collett and the commanders of the Tamu und Silchar Columns of the indomitable energy and cheerfulness displayed by the troops in overcoming the difficulties and discomforts of an advance through unhealthy country without tents, and exposed to much suffering from intense heat and heavy rain.

6. Sir Frederick Roberts desires to bring to the notice of the Government of India the services of Major-General Collett, C B, commanding the Field Force, Major-General Graham, C.B., commanding the Tamu Column, Lieutenant-Colonel Rennick, commanding the Silchar Column, and the officers mentioned by them, especially Major H. St. P. Maxwell, Deputy Commissioner, Cachar, and Mr A. W. Davis, C.S., Deputy Commissioner, Kohima, whose hearty co-operation and personal influence were invaluable in procuring transport for the Silchar and Kohima Columns, and facilitating their advance.

7. A list of officers recommended for special rewards will be submitted separately.

No 59, dated the Palace, Manipur, the 2nd May 1891.

From—MAJOR-GENERAL H. COLLETT, C.B, Commanding the Manipur Field Force,

To—The Adjutant-General in India

I have the honor to report, for the information of His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief, that the Kohima Column of the Manipur Field Force, strength as detailed in the margin, marched from Kohima under my command on the 20th April.

3 guns, No 8 (Bengal) Mountain Battery, under Captain A H C Birch, R A
100 rifles, 13th Bengal Infantry, under Lieutenant A [illegible]
200 rifles, 42nd Gurkha Rifles, under Captain H W Priestley 4[illegible]th Gurkha Rifles 400 rifles, 43rd Gurkha Rifles, under Colonel H. M Evans.
300 rifles, 44th Gurkha Rifles, under Major R K Ridgeway, V C
200 rifles, Assam Military Police, Naga Hills Battalion, under Captain D C F Macintyre

2. The column arrived at Manipur at ten o'clock on the 27th April, having experienced no opposition on the way except a few shots, which were fired at the advanced guard on the 24th April

3 The only stockade which the Manipuris had erected on the road was at Kaithimabi, and this was found deserted

4 We arrived at Sengmai, a small village at the northern end of the Manipur Valley, and eleven miles from the capital, on the 26th April, and I endeavoured to get into communication with the Burma and Silchar Columns, then supposed to be at Thobal and Bishenpur, but owing to unfavourable weather was unsuccessful I also sent letters by messengers (both of which reached their destination) to the commanders of these columns informing them that I would take up a position about 9 A M the next morning on the Ching Maikong Ridge, about 2,000 yards north of and commanding the palace enclosure, and requesting them to halt at a suitable distance from the palace walls, and get into communication with me with a view to concerting any further operation that might appear necessary.

5 During the night of the 26th information was received that the Regent with the three princes, his brothers, had fled from Manipur that evening

6. The three columns of attack, viz., the Burma Column under the command of Brigadier-General T. Graham, C.B., the Silchar Column under Lieutenant-Colonel R. H F. Rennick, and the Kohima Column, arrived at Manipur by 11 A.M. on the 27th April, the date which had been previously fixed for the concentration.

7. The villages in the immediate neighbourhood of the capital, the city itself, and the palace enclosure were deserted.

8. The sixty-two British subjects (natives) who had been held in captivity by the Regent were found safe and well.

9. Ample accommodation for the troops of the three columns was found in the palace and the adjacent buildings. This was very acceptable, as it had been raining heavily since the early morning.

10. The spirit and behaviour of the troops have been throughout excellent. Much rain fell during the march, and as we had no tents the men suffered considerable discomfort in bivouac, but it was cheerfully borne as became good soldiers. The only complaint I ever heard was that the enemy did not stay to fight.

11. The transport of the Kohima Column consisted of Naga coolies, and it is entirely owing to the unremitting exertions of Mr. A. W. Davis, C.S., Deputy Commissioner of Kohima, and to the personal influence which he exercises over these wild people, that the column was enabled to concentrate at Kohima and march to Manipur.

I venture to hope that His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief may be pleased to bring the very valuable services rendered to us by this officer to the special notice of the Government of India.

12. I enclose a despatch, dated Manipur, 29th April, from Brigadier-General T. Graham, C B., commanding the Burma Column, detailing the events which occurred on his march from Tamu; and I beg most cordially to endorse the terms of praise in which he writes of the officers and troops engaged in the brilliant action of the 25th April near Palel. I also enclose a report by Captain F. M. Rundall, 2-4th Gurkha Regiment, describing that action.*

13. Brigadier-General Graham has throughout this short campaign handled his command in a thoroughly satisfactory manner, and I recommend this distinguished officer, and the officers and troops he has named in his despatch, to the particular notice of His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief.

14. Lieutenant-Colonel Rennick brought up his column from Silchar to Manipur, in spite of the serious sickness and great natural difficulties he had to overcome, with admirable energy and promptitude.

15. The following guns, ammunition, &c., were captured in the palace arsenal:

Four 7-pounder rifled muzzle-loading guns, presented to the Maharaja by the British Government.

Eight 3-pounder smooth-bore bronze guns.

Four 2-pounder „ iron guns.

One 4½" mortar.

A large number of jinjals.

1,290 fire-arms of various patterns, chiefly smooth-bore.

940,000† rounds smooth-bore balled musket ammunition, in boxes.

† 250,000 rounds of Government manufacture; remainder local manufacture.

972,000 percussion caps for smooth-bore muskets in box.

Elephant gear for the four seven-pounder mountain guns.

16. Fire-arms are still in course of collection. I have issued a proclamation disarming the population of the Manipur Valley and of the neighbouring hill tracts formerly subject to the Manipur Durbar, the penalty for the possession of arms without a license being death or transportation. There are a very large number of fire-arms in this district, and I hope that after a few weeks the greater proportion of them will have been got in.

17. We have also obtained possession of 26 elephants, the property of the Durbar, which have been made over to the Transport Department, and about fifty ponies.

18. I beg to bring the services of the following officers to the favorable consideration of His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief:

Deputy Surgeon-General C. P. Costello.—Has done good administrative work in organising the medical service on the Silchar line. His advice and assistance are always valuable.

Major F. S. Gwatkin, Assistant Adjutant-General.—His given me much valuable assistance and advice. Has great field experience Particularly recommended for favorable consideration.

Captain G. C. Kitson, The King's Royal Rifle Corps, Deputy Assistant Adjutant-General.—An able staff officer. Has been of great use to me.

Captain C. M. Fitzgerald, Chief Commissariat Officer.—A thoroughly competent and experienced officer. Has managed his departmental business to my entire satisfaction.

Captain R. F Allen, Royal Engineers, Field Engineer.—Has made an excellent report on the Kohima-Manipur road, and is now engaged in arranging for the accommodation of the troops at Manipur. A very capable officer.

Captain J. Willcocks, D.S.O., Leinster Regiment, Chief Transport Officer.—A very energetic and intelligent officer; of good tact His former experience in transport work in these hills has been most valuable.

Lieutenant L. G. N. Eales, East Kent Regiment, Signalling Officer.—The circumstances of the march from Kohima and the unfavorable weather have not allowed much scope for signalling. Lieutenant Eales is zealous and energetic.

Mr. J. H. W. Dalrymple-Clark, Assam Police Department.—Was placed at my disposal by the Assam Government to organise and work the cart train on the Nigriting-Nichuguard road. In this work he has been indefatigable, and has succeeded admirably. A very intelligent and zealous officer.

Surgeon H. C. Banerji, Indian Medical Service, Civil Surgeon of Sibsagar.—Was temporarily placed at my disposal by the Assam Government to organise the medical arrangements from the river base to Nichuguard. His services have been most useful.

Surgeon-Major C. H. Beatson, Indian Medical Service.—Took over charge from Surgeon Banerji on the 19th April, and is now doing good service as Principal Medical Officer on the Kohima line.

* Not published.

Surgeon H. C. Hudson, Indian Medical Service.—Was senior medical officer with the Kohima Column on the march to Manipur. An able officer, with considerable field experience and power of organisation.

The following officers commanded their respective battalions and detachments with great credit to themselves and to my entire satisfaction in every respect.

Colonel H. M. Evans, 43rd Gurkha Rifles.

Major R. K. Ridgeway, V.C., 44th Gurkha Rifles.

Captain H. W. Priestley, 44th Gurkha Rifles, temporarily commanding the 42nd Gurkha Rifles.

Captain A. H. C. Buch, No. 8 (Bengal) Mountain Battery.

Captain D. C. F. Macintyre, Assam Military Police.

Lieutenant A. Giles, 13th Bengal Infantry

The advice and assistance I received from Colonel Evans and Major Ridgeway in particular were most useful.

19. I leave to Brigadier-General Graham, C.B., and Lieutenant-Colonel Rennick the duty of bringing to His Excellency's notice the services rendered by the officers and others in their respective columns.

20. It is a subject of much regret to me that, owing to the pressure on supplies and transport, I was unable to bring up the 36th (Sikh) Regiment of Bengal Infantry under the command of Colonel J Cook in time to march from Kohima with the column of advance.

21. For the same reason, I was unable to take more than 100 rifles of the 13th Bengal Infantry with the column. The remainder of the regiment under the command of Major Bingham did very useful work at Kohima and at Nichuguard. Both regiments were eager to be taken, and both were in every respect thoroughly fit for field service.

No 181-M, dated Camp Manipur, the 29th April 1891

From—BRIGADIER-GENERAL T GRAHAM, C.B., Commanding the Tamu Column, Manipur Field Force,

To—The Assistant Adjutant-General, Manipur Field Force.

I have the honor to submit the following report of the operations of the Tamu Column for the information of the Major-General Commanding the Manipur Field Force

2. A report was received from Tamu on the 25th March that the telegraph wire had been cut 25 miles from Tamu, and that the Manipuris were rising. On the 27th March a detachment of the 43rd Gurkha Rifles arrived at Tamu from Manipur, and stated that a revolt had taken place in Manipur, and that the Chief Commissioner of Assam and many other officers were prisoners in the hands of the Manipuri Durbar.

3. Lieutenant Grant, 12th (Burma) Madras Infantry, who was commanding at Tamu, communicated this information by telegraph, and requested permission to take 50 rifles of his own regiment and the detachment of the 43rd Gurkha Rifles (35 rifles), and proceed at once towards Manipur to endeavour to render assistance to the prisoners. His proposal having been sanctioned, he left Tamu on the 28th March. On arriving near Thobal, he found about 800 Manipuris in position there to arrest his advance. Lieutenant Grant immediately attacked the enemy and drove them out, killing about 50 of them. He then established himself in a defensible position, where he was attacked by 2,000 of the enemy with two guns, whom he defeated, inflicting heavy loss, and held his position until ordered to retire from it on the 9th April.

4. In the meantime Captain Presgrave, 12th (Burma) Madras Infantry, with 100 rifles, had been pushed up from Auktaung to Tamu, and was sent out to enable Lieutenant Grant to withdraw his small force. Captain Presgrave having relieved Lieutenant Grant, the whole party started for Tamu; but Major Sir C. H. Leslie, Bart, 2-4th Gurkha Regiment, having arrived at Tamu with his regiment, was ordered to push on, and also to direct Captain Presgrave to go back and occupy Palel, and to hurry up to that place himself. During Captain Presgrave's second advance on Palel he came across the enemy, who were evidently following up Lieutenant Grant's detachment. He attacked and defeated the enemy with heavy loss. In the pursuit which followed, Lieutenant Grant's charger was shot under him. Captain Presgrave then occupied Palel, where he was joined subsequently by Major Sir Charles Leslie with the 2-4th Gurkha Regiment, and this place was held as the advanced position till the arrival of the remainder of the Tamu Column on the 25th April 1891.

5 Orders had been received on the 31st March for a force from the Myingyan District, Upper Burma, to proceed to Manipur to co-operate with columns from Silchar and Kohima. The constitution of the Tamu Column was as follows

Four guns, No 2 Mountain Battery, Royal Artillery.

Head-quarters and wing, 4th Battalion, King's Royal Rifles

2-4th Gurkha Regiment.

12th (Burma) Madras Infantry

With the 32nd (Burma) Madras Infantry in reserve at Tamu

The main body of the column concentrated at Tamu on the 21st April, and advanced on the 23rd April, it having been arranged that the columns from Kohima, Silchar, and Tamu should concentrate on Manipur on the 27th April 1891.

6 The column advanced without opposition to Palel On the 24th April, while the main body was at Tinghaphul, information was received from Palel that the enemy had entrenched themselves in a position about six miles north of Palel, and orders were issued for a reconnaissance to be made on the 25th April to ascertain their strength, &c. On the arrival of the head-quarters of the column at Palel on the 25th April, information was received from Captain Drury, 2-4th Gurkha Regiment, who was commanding the reconnaissance party, that he had hemmed in a large number of the enemy in their entrenchment about six miles north of Palel, so that they could not escape, and asking permission to turn them out. As Captain Drury had only 100 rifles of the 2-4th Gurkha Regiment, 50 rifles of the 12th (Burma) Madras Infantry, and 44 mounted infantry of the 12th (Burma) Madras Infantry with him, and as I did not think this force strong enough for the purpose, I ordered two guns of No. 2 Mountain Battery and 200 rifles of the 2-4th Gurkha Regiment, the whole under the command of Captain Rundall, 2-4th Gurkha Regiment, to reinforce Captain Drury. Captain Rundall, on arrival at the scene of action, placed his guns on a hill about 1,000 yards from the entrenchment, and commenced to shell it In the meantime Captain Drury with his detachment of the 2-4th Gurkha Regiment and Lieutenant Grant with the 12th (Burma) Madras Infantry gradually approached the entrenchment from the north, while Captain Carnegy with his Gurkhas approached it from the south The guns ceased firing as the infantry approached, and finally both Captain Drury's and Captain Carnegy's parties, the former accompanied by the detachment of the 12th (Burma) Madras Infantry under Lieutenant Grant, rushed the entrenchment A regular hand-to hand fight ensued, when most of the enemy in the work were killed. The mounted infantry of the 12th (Burma) Madras Infantry under Lieutenant Cox cut off the retreat of those who tried to escape, and killed many of them.

Our losses were as follow

Jemadar Kiruram Gurúng, 2-4th Gurkha Regiment, killed

No 939, Sepoy Dalia Thapa, 2-4th Gurkha Regiment, killed.

Captain Drury and Captain Carnegy, 2-4th Gurkha Regiment, severely wounded

Lieutenant Grant and Lieutenant Cox, 12th (Burma) Madras Infantry, severely wounded

Subadar-Major Kalpatti Gurung, 2-4th Gurkhas, severely wounded

Jemadar Birbal Nagarkoti, 43rd Gurkhas, severely wounded.

No. 112, Havildar Jitman Rai, 2-4th Gurkhas, severely wounded.

No. 523, Naik Pirthidhan Rai, 2-4th Gurkhas, severely wounded.

No. 656, Sepoy Mahadal Limbu, 2-4th Gurkhas, severely wounded.

No 575, Sepoy Dan Singh Chand, 2-4th Gurkhas, severely wounded

No 290, Sepoy Dhan Singh Khattri, 2-4th Gurkhas, severely wounded

No. 637, Sepoy Dayál Singh, 12th (Burma) Madras Infantry, severely wounded

No 271, Sepoy Bhola Singh, 12th (Burma) Madras Infantry, severely wounded.

Of the enemy, 76 dead bodies were found in the entrenchment and 52 outside, while the mounted infantry killed many more. Amongst the killed were two Minzawraws, named Meah and Senna Mypa (a prince), who are stated by the Manipuris of all the adjacent villages to have been among the actual murderers of the late Mr. Quinton.

The force remained for the night in huts close to the scene of the fight.

The enemy on this occasion made a most stubborn resistance, which may be accounted for by the fact that they had no loophole for escape left them.

The behaviour of the troops was magnificent

7. On the 26th April the head-quarters of the column marched to Thobal, picking up Captain Rundall's column en route No opposition was met with on the way, and the force was all in quarters in the Thobal village by about 12 noon The bridge made by Lieutenant Grant over the Arong stream had to be made stronger to allow the battery and transport animals to cross, and this delayed the column for about an hour. Heavy rain fell during the afternoon and night.

8 The column started for Manipur at 4-30 A M on the 27th April, and, meeting with no opposition on the way, arrived at the pát at 11 A M, having been delayed by the very bad state of the roads and bridges. Heavy rain fell throughout the march, which made the road very slippery

The villagers along the route seemed friendly, and in no way seemed to object to the passage of the column.

9 The behaviour of the troops has on all occasions been all that could be desired, severe marches and intense heat have been endured in a most cheerful manner, and all ranks appeared to be only too anxious to get a chance of showing their metal

10 In conclusion, I would beg to mention the following officers

Lieutenant-Colonel A G B Ternan, my Assistant Adjutant-General, whose knowledge of all details, promptness in meeting all difficulties, and great experience have been of the most invaluable assistance to me

Lieutenant C J Sackville-West, King's Royal Rifles, my Orderly Officer, has shewn himself to be a most useful and intelligent officer.

Lieutenant G Rippon, Staff Corps, officiating Deputy Assistant Adjutant-General, took up his work at Kendat, and by his hard work and the quick way in which he has acquired a knowledge of his duties has proved himself most useful

Lieutenant F. H. S Thomas, Staff Corps, Chief Commissariat Officer, has had very heavy and trying work in arranging for and getting up supplies for the column, and has earned my thanks

Major H. E C Kitchener, Duke of Cornwall's Light Infantry, Chief Transport Officer, has had very hard work, and by his tact and judgment, especially in the management of the Panthay mule-drivers, has proved himself very useful

To Mr C A Soppitt, Political Officer with my column, my warmest thanks are due for the great assistance he rendered me all through the march from Kendat to Manipur in obtaining guides and interpreters, and inducing the villagers of deserted villages to come in, thus reassuring the inhabitants of the country passed through.

Major D S. Smyth, D S O., commanded No. 2 Mountain Battery, Royal Artillery, and throughout the trying march from Kendat to Manipur showed himself able to overcome all difficulties. Two guns of his battery were engaged in the affair of the 25th April north of Palel, and made excellent shooting.

Lieutenant-Colonel R. Chalmer, commanding the 4th Battalion, King's Royal Rifles, has by his disregard of all difficulties and excellent example of cheerfulness to his men been of the greatest assistance to me. The march to Manipur has been a very trying one; the heat between Kendat and Tamu was intense, and the men under his command suffered much from it, but there was no diminution in the eagerness of the men to get to the front, and I am very sorry this well disciplined and keen regiment had no opportunity of showing the enemy what the British soldier can do.

Major Sir Charles H. Leslie, Bart., commanding the 2-4th Gurkha Regiment, was in command of the advanced post at Palel for some days before the head-quarters of the column arrived there, and by his tact in the treatment of the villagers and promptness in dispersing all gatherings of the enemy in the vicinity of the post showed great judgment.

Captain F. M. Rundall, 2-4th Gurkha Regiment, commanded the troops operating north of Palel on the 25th April, and (as he has done in many previous instances in the Chin Hills) proved himself a most excellent officer and fit for any command.

Captain P. M. Carnegy, 2-4th Gurkha Regiment, led the attack of his men on the 25th April with great gallantry, and was severely wounded.

Captain F. M. Drury, 2-4th Gurkha Regiment, led the attack of his men on the 25th April with great pluck, and was badly wounded in a hand-to-hand fight with the enemy inside their entrenchment.

Subadar-Major Kalpatti Gurúng, 2-4th Gurkha Regiment, a very fine old soldier of upwards of forty years' service, ably seconded his officers in the attack on the 25th April, and was severely wounded.

Jamadar Birbal Nagarkoti, 43rd Gurkha Rifles, took part in the attack on the 25th April, and was badly wounded

Major A. Howlett, commanding the 12th (Burma) Madras Infantry, under great difficulties pushed on his men from the Kubo Valley, and by his promptness enabled me to reinforce Captain Presgrave and Lieutenant Grant on the frontier and hold our advanced posts. The discipline and good tone of this new regiment reflect great credit on him.

Lieutenant C. J. W. Grant, 12th (Burma) Madras Infantry.—This officer has already been reported upon for the excellent service done by him on and after the 28th March, when he held his own at Thobal against 2,000 of the enemy and two guns, although his detachment numbered only about 80 men, having previously turned 800 of them out of the entrenchment he afterwards held. Again at Palel he had his pony shot under him whilst pursuing the enemy on the 13th April, and he also led his men to the attack on the 25th April, when he was badly wounded.

Lieutenant F. W. H. Cox, 12th (Burma) Madras Infantry, was in command of the mounted infantry of his regiment on the 25th April, and in his pursuit of the enemy did excellent service, killing many of them, being badly wounded by one of the fugitives.

Surgeon R. O. Cusack, Medical Staff, has been senior medical officer with the column, and has carried out all his duties very satisfactorily.

Dated Nongba, the 3rd May 1891.

From—LIEUTENANT-COLONEL R. H. F. RENNICK, Commanding the Silchar Column, Manipur Field Force,

To—The Assistant Adjutant-General, Manipur Field Force.

I have the honor to submit, for the information of the General Officer Commanding the Manipur Field Force, a brief report on the Silchar Column from the 6th April to the 27th April 1891. Its composition and strength is given in the margin.

2. On arrival at Silchar on the 6th April, I found the 18th Bengal Infantry holding the frontier posts of Jirighat, Baladhan, and the Barak bridge.

From that time until the 15th April, in conjunction with Major Maxwell, Deputy Commissioner of Kachar, who afforded me most cordial and invaluable assistance, I was engaged in collecting carriage, storing rations, repairing bridges, and other subsidiary arrangements.

3. On the 8th April, as the 3rd Bengal Infantry, who were approaching Silchar, were suffering badly from cholera, I considered it prudent to push forward the detachments of 42nd, 43rd, and 44th Gurkha Rifles, as well as the Surma Valley Military Police, as a pioneer force to open up the road, construct shelters, &c.

4. The guns of the mountain battery arrived at Silchar on the afternoon of the 12th April, and left the following morning. The 1-2nd Gurkha Regiment and half the Pioneer Company of the Calcutta Volunteers arrived at Silchar on the 13th April, halted the 14th April, and marched out with me on the 15th April. My advanced party under Captain Cowley, 43rd Gurkha Rifles, had on the previous day surprised a party of Kukis engaged in cutting down the suspension bridge over the Irang river.

After exchanging a few shots, the bridge was seized. The floating bridge had already been cut adrift.

5. On the 20th April I occupied a position two miles and a half east of the Kaopam valley with—

2 guns, No. 8 Mountain Battery.
100 rifles, 18th Bengal Infantry.
100 „ 42nd Gurkha Rifles.
283 „ 43rd Gurkha Rifles.
180 „ Surma Valley Military Police.

I held the Irang bridge with 100 rifles of the 18th Bengal Infantry and 100 rifles of the 44th.

6. On the 21st April, having reconnoitred towards the Kaopam ridge, I decided to occupy the Laimatak and the Kaopam valleys respectively with the above-mentioned details, while the 1-2nd Gurkha Regiment held the Irang bridge.

7. On the 23rd April, being anxious to visit the 1-2nd Gurkha Rifles at Kaopam, who were directed to halt as they were suffering very severely from cholera, I entrusted to Captain Boileau the task of forcing the Laimatak defile with the afore-mentioned details, 100 rifles of the 18th Bengal Infantry being told off to escort the commissariat convoy and reserve ammunition. Starting at 6 A.M., this operation was successfully carried out by 3 P M, three stockades as well as several positions being successfully turned without loss to ourselves The enemy lost ten men their commander, who was wounded, being taken prisoner. The same evening I occupied Naraingaon, a village four miles from Bishenpur.

8. On the 25th April from Bishenpur the Foyging river and adjacent villages were reconnoitred.

9 On the 26th April the troops were served out with rations for the 27th, and in the afternoon the column moved on Foyging Having failed to communicate with either General Collett or General Graham, I determined to advance on Manipur at 3 A M the following morning.

10 On the 25th April, the 1-2nd Gurkhas, who had halted for a couple of days to shake off their attack of cholera, having come up, I advanced against Manipur. I occupied the gateways of the pát, secured the temple and magazine from being exploded, and drove the Manipuri incendiaries from the enclosure I then received the copy of a letter in French addressed by General Collett to the General Officer Commanding the Tamu Column. I thereupon sent Lieutenant-Colonel Michell towards Kohima to communicate with him

11. The Pioneer Company of the Calcutta Volunteers having left half their strength footsore at Silchar, and having been attacked with cholera, nevertheless did most useful work on the line of communications. The Surma Valley Light Horse did excellent service in carrying despatches, escorting officers, mails, &c

12. The line of communications from Godamghat to Irang bridge was held by detachments of the 18th Bengal Infantry, and from the Irang bridge to Bishenpur by detachments of the Surma Valley Military Police, under Lieutenant-Colonel Browne. Signalling stations were opened at Silchar, Namota, Jirighat, Kalanaga, Nongba, and Laimatak ridge by Captain Thomson. A base hospital was established at Silchar, with cholera and rest hospitals at Dilkush, Godamghat, Kalanaga, and Nongba

13. In conclusion, I wish to place on record my appreciation of the splendid behaviour of both officers and men of the Silchar Column under the most trying circumstances. Exposed throughout the march to the inclemencies of the season, to hardship, sickness, and privation, all answered cheerfully to the call of duty, and worked with a zeal and energy rarely surpassed

Where the conduct of all was admirable, it is difficult to single out any particular officers or men with a view to bring forward their names for the favorable notice of His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief I would, however, beg leave to mention specially the following in connection with the advance.

Major H St. P. Maxwell	Chief Political Officer
Captain F. W Dun, D S O	Assistant Quartermaster-General (Intelligence).
Captain St G. L. Steele, 2nd Bengal Lancers	Brigade-Major
Lieutenant H. W. Iles, Royal Artillery	Commanding division of guns of No 8 (Bengal) Mountain Battery
Captain J W Cowley	Commanding the 43rd Gurkha Rifles
Lieutenant H W G Cole	Commanding the Surma Valley Military Police.
Captain A J. M MacLaughlin.	Commanding the detachment of the Surma Valley Light Horse
Mr D J Clancey, C E.	Executive Engineer, Silchar

No. 597 of this date republishing the London Gazette of the 26th May 1891, in which it is notified that the Queen has been graciously pleased to signify Her intention to confer the decoration of the Victoria Cross upon that officer for his conduct on the same occasion, His Excellency in Council is pleased to direct the publication of the subjoined letter from the Adjutant-General in India, with which is submitted a report from Lieutenant Grant describing the operations of the detachment under his command from the 28th of March to the 10th April 1891.

From—MAJOR-GENERAL W. GALBRAITH, C.B., Adjutant-General in India,

2. The Commander-in-Chief has already noted in this office letter No. 236-M, dated 24th April 1891, his high opinion of Lieutenant Grant's conspicuous personal daring and unfailing resource, and of the endurance and heroism displayed by all ranks under his leading, and this estimate is fully borne out by the enclosed report, which, in His Excellency's opinion, may be published as an example of what it is possible for one British officer with a handful of devoted Native soldiers to accomplish by prompt initiative, resolute courage, and soldier-like skill.

3. Sir Frederick Roberts trusts that the rewards already recommended for the Native officers, rank and file, and followers in this office letter above quoted may, as a special case, be granted, and notified at an early date.

To—The Adjutant-General in India.

In forwarding Lieutenant Grant's report of his operations, as called for in your telegram No. 303-M of the 11th instant, I beg to enclose copy of letter No. 2079-W, dated the 7th April last, to the Secretary to Government, Military Department, and to say that I cordially agree with the remarks of the Brigadier-General Commanding the Tamu Field Force and of the General Officer Commanding the Burma District recorded on the report.

2. I consider that the admirable conduct of the expedition by Lieutenant Grant marks that young officer out as a soldier of rare military acquirements, and I strongly recommend him for the rewards specified in my letter to the Government of Madras referred to above.

3. I trust, moreover, that the promotions and rewards recommended by Lieutenant Grant for all the Native officers and non commissioned officers mentioned in his despatch may be approved, and that every man of the small force under his command who fought so splendidly may be given some signal reward.

Dated Palel, the 13th April 1891.

From—Lieutenant C. J. W. Grant, 12th (Burma) Regiment of Madras Infantry, Commanding Advanced Party, Manipur.

To—The Adjutant, 12th Madras Infantry.

I have the honor to submit this my report of operations from 28th March 1891 to 10th April 1891.

In consequence of my telegrams of 27th March 1891, I received orders from the Assistant Adjutant-General, Myingyan, at 10-30, 27th March 1891, to march on Manipur with all speed.

At 5-30 A.M., 28th March 1891, I marched from Tamu, strength as per margin. About four miles a small party of Chins tried to ambush us, but my advanced guard flanked them, and their shots did no harm. They escaped in jungle. Arrived at Lockchau river at 5 P.M., the elephants unable to carry their 600 lbs. faster than 1 mile an hour.

43rd Gurkha Rifles.
1 jemadar, 30 rifles,—60 rounds per man.
12th (Burma) Madras Infantry.
1 subadar, 50 rifles,—160 rounds per man

29th March 1891.—Marched at 2 A.M., arriving at Kogaung; signal shots were fired by enemy, who retired over ridge near Tunglebun. About 20 shots were fired at us by Manipuri picket. Arrived at water at 2 P.M, 12 hours' march. Found camp burnt and prepared for defence, but not held. Elephant useless in these hills with over 300 lbs. load.

Marched at 11 P M, moon rise. Order of march,—Gurkha Light Infantry 10; 12th Burma 30; fighting party,—Gurkha Light Infantry 20; 12th Burma 20; baggage guard and reserve. Found wire cut and twisted across road all along, causing great delay; 8 or 10 shots fired from hills at 12 midnight. Found road blocked by number of trees felled across; impassable for elephants and ponies. The 10 Gurkhas cut away with kukris, while 20 of 12th Burma scrambled over and through for covering party; suddenly heavy fire broke out above, but we were too close under to be hurt, covering party going to right front took enemy on their left flank, and after few shots we rushed them. But the Manipuri sepoys were too quick for us, and they bolted into thick jungle, and we couldn't find them in the moonlight Found ourselves in a shelter trench 90 yards long commanding the road below. While in trench were fired on from above, rushing up found two small trenches empty. Hunted about, finding three guns, lots of ammunition, and eight or nine rough pharwas, which we took along. Heard what we supposed to be wounded moving in thick jungle below, but it was pitch dark, and found nothing. Found traces of a considerable camp. Enemy must have been all asleep and surprised. Marched on at 1 A M

30th March 1891.—Passed deserted Naga village Aimool down to Manipur plain, arriving in sight Palel 6 A.M. Extended fighting party of 40 as company, and advanced over open plain, with high grass here and there But the Manipuri sepoys retreated after emptying their guns, and we did them little damage, though we pursued for three miles, we couldn't catch them up; only found one sepoy in long grass and a man who stated he was cook to the "Apprai Minga" or 'Maja," the member of the Durbar who ranks next to the princes, and who has charge of the country from Manipur to Tamu. He states:—Maja got letter from capital stating 5 British officers and 30 sepoys killed and 2 sahibs and 10 sepoys prisoners of Maharaja; that Mrs. Grimwood had escaped for the present, and that all the British army had fled to Assam: could not say whether or not they had made a stand anywhere; that his Maja had been sent with 6 officers, 35 havildars, and 150 men to stop us coming from Tamu, and these men were in the trenches above Tunglebun (or Tignoban). Marched from Palel at 11 P.M., and made fair pace in moonlight for 4 or 5 miles at foot of hills, and then on to an embankment road across swampy field till 12-30 A.M. on the—31st March 1891,—when we came to a bridge over a bit of jhil, where an elephant trying to cross got bogged, and we had to go into the water up to our breasts to unload him. Hearing of a track 2 miles back along the foot of hills to east, I sent the elephant back and round by it with 30 men, while we waited till they rejoined us again on the road half a mile beyond the bridge. At 5-30 A.M. came to some villages of the usual Manipur sort, i.e., a good wattle-and-daub thatched house about 30 × 20', with 4 or 5 straw huts near surrounded by a wall, ditch, and hedge, about 200 yards by 100 yards or smaller. Sometimes compounds like this stretch for miles 2 or 3 deep along a stream. We met with slight resistance from behind these walls, but soon flanked and passed through. Beyond these compounds an open plain on each side of road 1,000 yards wide. Beyond we saw a bridge burning and a line of hedges stretching away from the bridge to the south-west, the road now running north-west, and country to right of road quite open. We advanced across the plain with two sections, 10 men each, firing line, two sections, 10 rifles each, on flanks in support remainder (40 rifles) 600 yards behind with baggage. We advanced rapidly to save the bridge, and were met by a heavy fire from the opposite bank of the stream when within 300 yards. Halting and lying down, we opened section volleys, and advanced by alternate rushes to within 100 yards, losing one man. Then the supports reinforced to the flanks, and we all rushed to the bank of the river and poured in a heavy fire on the enemy, who were perfectly concealed on their right behind loopholes and on their left in deep trenches. Then the old firing line dashed into the water, covered by the fire of the support, and to my utter astonishment the enemy began to give way. Some of us went in over our heads in the water and weeds, but others found places with water only up to their chests, and were across and into the enemy's trenches with a splendid dash twenty minutes after their first shot. Our left hunted them from wall to wall, covered by flanking fire from our right, till we crossed five lines of walls and hedges, the enemy making very little stand. On arrival at the further line of walls we rallied, and saw a line of the Manipur sepoys in white jackets and black turbans and dhotis mostly—some in red jackets and white turbans—in full retreat to the hills and villages 1,000 and 800 yards away. The enemy's line was 1½ miles long, and I estimated them at from 800 to 1,000 in number. I did not follow up my advantage, as all my baggage and half my men were on the other side of the river, and 200 or so of the enemy in the villages 800 yard to my right rear; but from what I now know of the enemy I might have put aside all caution, and taken the hills 1,000 yards in front with little further expenditure of ammunition. Leaving the 40 men at the line of walls, I went back and put the rear party into the compound at the east corner of the village, carrying the baggage over on the men's heads.

The enemy's loss was 8 shot through the head in the trenches during our advance, 6 bayonetted in the trenches on their left, and 6 shot during their retreat. Our loss—No. 399 Muhammad Hayat shot through the head with a snider bullet; none wounded; I only grazed by bullet, which gave me no trouble. Expenditure of ammunition 1,200 rounds up to date. Spent evening preparing "12th Burma Fort" for defence and clearing field of fire, making abattis, and collected over a ton of dhan and five or six chattis of gür, and put men on half ata and dal; told off stations, &c., &c. Night passed quietly; pickets did not fire a shot

The men's conduct was simply splendid; they required no leading at any time, and paid the closest attention to orders under the hottest fire.

1st April 1891, 6 A.M.—Enemy advancing in force. Sent out 30 men to meet them in front at the line of walls to the picket there. We only fired three shots at a group on the road and dropped two. They bolted behind hill and walls. Measured ranges up to 600 yards in front of fort; found blood all about from yesterday's action. Some countrymen from south came and we called to them, but they only shouted not to burn their houses, and we could get no information. Yesterday I had written a letter to Tamu for reinforcements, but put nothing in it which could help the enemy in event of their capturing it. I sent it by the Apprai Maja's cook, swearing him on a sword, promising him Rs 20, and telling him that if he did not deliver it, I would kill the other prisoners. They gave him minute directions as to roads. They were released on my return to Palel. I sent him off at dark, and he delivered the letter faithfully, but was captured on return and taken to the Maharaj (Regent), who sent him on to me with the orders to retire on Presgrave, which I got on 9th.

At 3 P.M. on 1st, patrols reporting enemy advancing, we occupied the line of walls 400 yards in front of fort. The enemy opened a hot fire from Martinis, Sniders, and Enfield rifles from a line over a mile long. We reserved our fire till they came to 600 yards, and drove them back with a few volleys at their densest parts. Then from the low hill, 1,000 yards from the line of walls, two guns opened fire,—at first with five common shell, time and percussion fuze, and then with 20 or 25 shrapnel. At first their practice was very good, the first bursting overhead, and the third on striking the wall. Then we got the range by "sound," and concentrated our fire on the guns (muzzle-loading 9 lbs rifled guns), and in 30 minutes both guns retired; only one turned up again on the further hill, 1,500 yards from the line of walls, and made wilder practice, only running the gun up to the crest to fire and wasting no time over laying, as the Martinis reached them there. All this time the enemy kept up a hot fire, but were always driven off on reaching 600 yards. At dark they were working round to our left flank, and when nearly quite dark I closed in on our fort, the men being sent back one by one, 50 yards between each, not one doubling. The behaviour of the men, all but ten of mine eight months' recruits, and the Gurkhas, also very young soldiers, was simply magnificent. I cannot express my admiration of them.

The scream and bursting report of the shells was most unpleasant to me, who knew the small loss they could inflict, but the men, who must have had a greatly exaggerated idea of their powers, paid most careful attention to their aim, and obeyed all directions as to sighting and wind when firing on the guns.

We spent the night behind our walls in the main fort, the enemy keeping up a long range fire till 2 A.M., which was not replied to. We tied white rags to our foresights, but the enemy did not close.

2nd April 1891.—At 3 A.M. in moonlight we commenced work, strengthening position with large dhan baskets of earth, ration-sack and pillow-case sand-bags, and making abattis, and continued hard at work making cover for transport till evening. At 3 P.M. I went with the patrol to the line of walls. Enemy all in position. Saw a man signalling with white flag. Went to meet him with white flag. Turned out to be a Gurkha of the 44th Gurkha Light Infantry with letter from babu prisoners imploring me to retire or they would all be killed. If I retired prisoners would be released and sent to Cachar. Answered that if all the prisoners who wished to go with me were given to me, I would retire to Tamu. Asked for letter from Maharaj. Returned saying Maharaj would send letter. Said till I got letter I would not attack.

3rd, 4th, and 5th.—Negociated for prisoners, I demanding at least all Gurkha prisoners, saying as all babus and civilians wouldn't come to Burma, they could go to Cachar and Gurkhas must come with me, and I would never retire empty-handed. Then they said all the prisoners had started for Assam, and I must retire. Refused to retire without a Maja (or one of the four wazirs) as hostage for prisoners. They offered me a subadar as hostage. Refused, demanding Apprai Maja (whose flag we captured at Thobal), who is in charge of country from Manipur to Tamu. Two babus of Manipur came to meet me. Said 500 lbs of ata and 50 lb. of dal and ghi were ready for me to take. Refused to take without the hostage. Said I had lots to eat. Babus said Samoan Juba, Regent's fourth brother, had commanded Thobal when I took it, and third brother, Senapati, Commander-in-Chief, commanded attack on 1st. That 800 men had held Thobal on 31st and 2,000 attacked on 1st, and I had killed four of their gunners.

6th April 1891.—On 6th the enemy attacked at dawn, and I closed in on my fort, which by now was greatly strengthened. At 8 A.M. their shell fire ceased, and enemy had gained the hedges and walls from 1 to 200 yards on my front and left. Crept out with ten Gurkhas, and attacked the enemy on my left on their right flank and drove them off with loss, killing six or seven, and bolted back to fort without loss. At 11 A.M. crept out to front under my right wall and up to enemy with one havildar and six Gurkhas, and, after driving enemy from one hedge, found a party of about 60 in a corner behind a wall 20 yards off. After a very hot two minutes we got to wall, and drove them out of their corner, leaving ten or eleven dead. A double-barrelled gun with buck-shot most effective on their heads as they showed up to fire. Then we bolted in again, but the 43rd Gurkha Light Infantry havildar, Ganbir Rai, had his hand shot through; no other loss to us.

I now found we had only 50 rounds per man left and the Gurkhas only 30, and we had to submit to a purely passive defence. The men lay down behind walls, one in every six keeping a watch. I gave orders that not a man was to fire till the enemy were half way across our field of fire, but they preferred to remain behind hedges, where they kept up their fire till dark; but it was very wild, and they dare not show themselves to aim after one or two crack shots had hit their heads. At dark they retired, and we had a quiet night in the trenches.

I think it was after 12 noon on this day that the men really showed the best soldier's qualities, lying down to be fired at (and the few men on two sides were exposed to reverse fire), and one of each six taking his half hour's watch more or less exposed.

7th April 1891.—Enemy all retired behind hill, but large parties seen going to our right rear busy strengthening defences.

Our loss on 6th—Havildar Ganbir Rai, 43rd Gurkha Light Infantry, wounded by rifle; Private Mirán-bakhsh, 12th Burma Regiment, wounded by shell (slightly), 1 driver by bullet slightly; 1 pony killed, 2 wounded, and 2 elephants wounded (one severely and one slightly).

On 7th with patrol found in "11 A.M. counter-attack corner" 20 Martini cartridges and one ·500 express cartridge and lot of blood, but no bodies.

9th April 1891.—At 12 noon the enemy brought out a white flag, and, putting a letter on a stick on road, retired. Brought it in, and found orders to retire on Presgrave forwarded by the Maharaj. Started at 7 P.M., bringing away 20 enemies' guns and rifles, but we drowned about 1,000 rounds of their ammunition, all of Government make. An awful night, dark except for lightning, pouring with rain, but perfect for retreat. At 2 P.M. met Presgrave with 75 men and nine boxes ammunition coming to Thobal without kits or rations. We returned to Palel, not reaching there till 6 A.M., about one mile an hour, but unmolested, and having brought off everything.

I recommend every man of the party for the Order of Merit. I think they have all well earned it, not only in attack and defence, but also by their cheerfulness in the fort for 13 days on 6 days' rations and every man on guard every night. I never heard a complaint or doubt; they only asked to be allowed to take those guns, and they would have done it with another 100 rounds a man, all to make a "name" for regiment.

I recommend Subadar Shaik Mahtáb Din in addition for the title of Sirdar Bahadur.

I recommend Havildar Chaughatta in addition for early promotion. He was first across the river, and his experience in five former compaigns, beginning with the Afghan, and his example to the men, were most valuable.

I recommend Naik Taliamand for early promotion. He suffered from fever most of the time, but would not go sick, and many other men suffering severely from Chin fever followed his example.

I recommend Lance-Naik Fazl Ahmad for early advancement. He has all the best qualities of the Pathan.

I recommend Hospital-Assistant Govindu Swamy Pillai to the notice of the Surgeon-General. He attended to Private Muhammad Hayát as soon as he was hit on the 31st under a hot fire from the enemy, who were under cover, and he was always cheerful and active. His conduct was most gallant.

I recommend Jemadar Birbal Nagarkoti, "H" Company, 43rd Gurkha Light Infantry, to the notice of his commanding officer. His conduct of the retreat from Langthobal and in subsequent operations was perfect.

Havildar Gunbir Rai was wounded in a most valuable counter-attack, but stuck to his rifle with his broken hand. I think all the men deserve reward

A great reason of our success was the fact of the enemy wearing white coats Every movement could be seen from afar and anticipated Their musketry is, of course, contemptible.

I attach rough sketches herewith.

Forwarded. I consider that Lieutenant Grant and the men under his command have done such excellent service as will, I trust, be recognised by the Government of India I would specially bring to notice Lieutenant Grant's own services, which show that he is an officer far above the average and deserving of reward.

I trust that the Major-General will also be able to submit the names of some of the men mentioned for Order of Merit for the favorable consideration of His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief.

I have called upon Lieutenant Grant to submit the names of such men as in his opinion particularly distinguished themselves

I most cordially endorse every word General Graham has said in praise of Lieutenant Grant and his detachment.

I think his resolution to advance against all opposition to what he then considered was the relief or the assistance of the prisoners, his gallantry in action, and his fortitude in holding on to his position is only equalled by the modesty with which he relates his story. I think him worthy of the Victoria Cross, or of any reward the Government chose to give him.

I trust some mark of the approbation of Government may be given to every man who was with Lieutenant Grant

Weather Review of India for the week ending at 8 a.m. on Saturday, June 13th, 1891.

With one important exception, the general conditions over India have been fairly similar to those reported last week. Pressure has been highest in the extreme south and lowest over Northern India, and the intervening gradients have been fairly steep. The difference in the pressure distribution of the two weeks has laid in the difference of the position of the trough of lowest pressure. During last week this trough stretched south-east and north-west between the Circars and the south of the Punjab. In consequence moist winds from the Bay passed freely round the eastern end of the trough, and penetrated to a considerable distance north-westward into the Gangetic plain. Quite at the commencement of the week under review this trough began a northerly movement, and by the close of the week the chart showed it pressed closely against the foot of the hills. In consequence, during a large part of the week, there were no gradients for easterly winds up the Gangetic plain, and dry westerly winds from the Western desert and the dry regions beyond blew across Northern India, and the weather was dry and very hot. Between the 7th and the 9th the barometer fell rather briskly over North-West India, and a small depression was formed over the south of the Punjab. This depression gave duststorms and thunderstorms to North-West India, but the amounts were not large. In Malabar very variable winds were experienced, and the rain was heavy on most days. In other parts of the Peninsula and over the central parts of the country a very strong westerly wind prevailed, while over the Bay area and Burma a strong steady monsoon has blown. In Northern India the directions were variable at first, but, as the trough of lowest pressure approached the hills, strong westerly winds set in down the Gangetic plain.

The daily distribution of rain was as follows :—On the 7th rain was falling in the west and south of the Peninsula, in Burma, Bengal, and North-West India, and one or two showers were reported from the Central Provinces. On the 8th the rain had practically ceased in North-West India, but the area of fall was little changed elsewhere. On the 9th the only alteration was the increased heaviness of the rainfall in parts of Burma and Bengal. On the 10th rain had again extended into North-West India, and continued in the other regions mentioned above. The fall was very heavy in Lower Burma and moderately heavy in Malabar. On the 11th there was no change, but on the 12th rain had ceased in North-West and Central India and the greater part of Bengal, and was practically confined to Malabar, Burma, and Assam. Similar conditions prevailed on the 13th.

Temperature has for the whole of India been slightly lower than usual for the first four days of the week. On the 11th the mean temperature exactly equalled the normal, and on the final two days was between 1° and 2° above. An area of exceptionally high temperature was shown over the Peninsula on the 7th, the greatest excess of temperature being 6° at Secunderabad. This area gradually extended northward until it embraced really the whole of the Indian region. By the 12th the maximum excess was 9½° at Nagpur, and on the 13th was 11½° at the same station.

The following table shows the variation of temperature from the normal average on each day of the week for the principal Provinces of India:

Province	June 7th.	8th	9th	10th.	11th.	12th.	13th.	Mean variation for week.
	°	°	°	°	°	°	°	°
Burma	+0·7	—0·7	—1 7	—2 8	—3·2	—3 7	—1 6	—1·9
Bengal and Assam	—1 7	—2 4	—1 8	—1·6	—1·8	+ 0·1	+ 1·6	—1·1
North-Western Provinces	—8 4	—6·8	—3 5	—3 7	—3 6	—0·8	+ 1 6	—3·6
Punjab	—0 3	—0 8	+0 6	—0 4	—0 9	—3 3	—0·4	—0·8
Bombay	+3 3	+3·3	+3 0	+2 1	+2 9	+3 1	+4·0	+3·1
Berar and Central Provinces	+0 6	+0 8	+ 1·5	+2 6	+3 0	+6 6	+6·8	+3·1
Guzerat and Central India	—1 4	—0 7	—2 8	—1·3	—0·6	+2 7	+2 2	—0 3
Sind and Rajputana	—0 9	+0 5	+0·4	+1 7	+2 0	+3 0	+0·1	+ 1·0
Madras	+1 5	+2·0	+2 7	+1·9	+1 9	+2 3	+2·8	+2·2
Mean for whole India	—0 7	—0·5	—0·2	—0 2	0	+1 1	+1 9	+0·2

The above figures show that Burma, Bengal, Assam, the North-Western Provinces, the Punjab, and Central India had a lower temperature than usual, the greatest deficiency being 3½° in the North-Western Provinces On the other hand, Bombay and the Central Provinces (from which region the normal rainfall held off) had a mean temperature of 3° and Madras a mean temperature of 2° above the average

The absolute maximum temperatures on each day were as follows ·

7th	June	Jacobabad	120 5°
8th	,,	ditto	120 0°
9th	,,	ditto	120 0°
10th	,,	ditto	119 0°
11th	,,	ditto	120·0°
12th	,,	ditto	119·5°
13th	,,	ditto	114·2°

The absolutely hottest region has hence been Sind throughout the week, but relatively to the normal the maxima reported from parts of the Peninsula and the central parts of the country have been higher than those reported from North-West India.

Rain.—The concluding table of the present summary shows that during the week under review rain has fallen in all the divisions of India, except Khandeish, Berar, Kattiawar, Sind, and Rajputana (West). In addition to the divisions where there has been absolutely no rain must be included the following divisions, which received less than one-tenth of an inch—viz., the Punjab (West), Mysore, the Bombay Deccan, the Central Provinces (West), Guzerat, the East Coast (North and Central), Hyderabad (South), and Madras (Central). Combining these two lists, it appears that the extreme north-west of India, the west of the central parts of the country, and the greater part of the Peninsula, except the West Coast, had either absolutely or practically no rain. In all other parts of India effective rain fell. The largest amounts were received by Tenasserim and Lower Burma, which recorded an average fall for the district of over 16 inches. These were followed by 10 inches in Arakan, 9 inches in Assam (Surma), and 8¾ inches in Malabar. Except that Tenasserim and Lower Burma had more and Arakan less than usual, the distribution of rainfall with respect to its ordinary distribution throughout the different divisions of India was fairly normal. The third column of the table shows that the total rainfall of the week has been considerably less than usual, the only divisions exhibiting any excess being Tenasserim, Lower and Central Burma, Behar (North), the Punjab (Central and Submontane), and Madras (South Central). Of these seven divisions, it was only the two first that had any important excess, the rainfall in the other five being only very slightly more than the normal. The greatest actual excess was in Lower Burma, where more than three times the average fell. The most marked cases of deficiency were North Bengal, where only half the normal was received, and the Konkan, where only one-fourth was received. In several other divisions the deficiency relatively to the normal was as great, or even greater; but the ordinary rainfall in these divisions was lighter, and hence the deficiency was less marked, and was probably less important In the eastern half of the Peninsula the normal average rainfall for all divisions for the past week is about half an inch and the actual average was only one-tenth inch, so that only about one-fifth of the usual fall was received

The final column of the table shows that throughout nearly the whole of the Indian region the rains so far have been very deficient, or have not commenced at all. Southern Burma, Behar, the submontane districts of North-West India, and parts of South Madras are the only divisions in which there has been any excess. In nearly all other places there is considerable deficiency.

It is only in North-East India and the south-west of the Peninsula that falls of any magnitude are reported this week The following are the more important:

Bombay.—For week ending 17th June.—Rain in eleven districts, but very slight and insufficient for sowing purposes Standing crops injured by blight, locusts, or other insects in parts of Sind, otherwise good Preparation for the season progressing in most districts, but retarded in parts for want of rain

Bengal.—For week ending 16th June.—Rain less as week advanced, and has now ceased generally Weather hot and oppressive. A break in the rains has facilitated cultivation and improved the young rice, jute, and sugarcane plants, which have suffered from the late excessive rain. Sowings are in rapid progress, and in some districts transplanting of winter rice seedlings has begun. Indigo is doing well, and the cheena and mung crops are being harvested. Flights of locusts passed over Birbhum, Murshidabad, Dinajpur, and Lohardugga, doing but little damage to the crops Prices of common rice continue stationary.

North-Western Provinces and Oudh.—For week ending 17th June.—Weather hot and cloudy, with storms and slight rain in most districts In Ballia, Gorakhpur, Farukhabad, and Saharanpur only has the fall been over 1 inch Preparations for kharif going on. Supplies ample and prices generally steady, but show a tendency to rise in Benares, Gorakhpur, Fyzabad, and Kumaon. Export continues from Meerut. Flights of locusts reported from ten districts; in Kumaon only was a little injury done to young millets.

Punjab.—For week ending 17th June.—Rain has fallen in all districts, except Dera Ismail Khan and Peshawar. Prices rising in Delhi; falling in Shahpur and Peshawar; stationary elsewhere. Harvesting and threshing of rabi crops nearly over; ploughings for and sowings of kharif in progress; more rain wanted in Hissar. Condition of extra rabi crops is reported good from certain districts. Locusts in most districts, they are disappearing from Rawalpindi. Fodder sufficient in all districts, except Hissar and Delhi, where it is scarce.

Central Provinces.—For week ending 17th June.—Weather generally cloudy and hot, with showers in places. Land being prepared for monsoon sowings. Rice is being sown in some districts. Water-supply deficient in Raipur and Nimar. Prices steady.

Burma—For week ending 13th June.—In Lower Burma ploughing for the wet-weather crop has commenced in some districts, but not as yet generally. In Upper Burma ploughing for cotton and sesamum is in progress. The price of paddy has risen in six and fallen in five districts.

Assam.—For week ending 17th June.—Weather seasonable. Sowing of early rice over; ploughing for and sowing of late rice progressing. Planting of sugarcane continues. Prospects good.

Mysore and Coorg.—For week ending 17th June.—Rainfall general; good in the Malnad taluk. Standing crops in good condition. More rain still wanted in parts Ploughing operations in progress and outturn of harvests fair. Prices risen slightly in Bangalore.

Rainfall good in Coorg Ploughing of rice fields continues. Prospects good. Prices stationary.

Berar and Hyderabad—For week ending 17th June.—Weather hot in Berar. No rain. Land under preparation for next kharif crops. Fodder insufficient in three taluks and in the Wun and Akola districts. Water deficient in the Murtazapur taluk and the Wun district Prices slightly risen in the Amraoti and Kelapur taluks.

No rain in Hyderabad during the week. Reaping of tabi crops concluded Prices stationary.

Central India.—For week ending 17th June.—Slight rain, except in Bundelkhand and Baghelkhand. Rain much wanted in Bhopal and Bhopawar Pasturage scarce in Barwani Rajputana.—For week ending 17th June—Slight rain in three States; moderate rain in Ulwar and Bikanir. Agricultural operations progressing in five States. Locusts passed over Ajmere district from north to south. Cattle dying in Todgarh district for want of fodder, and in poor condition at Bikanir, Kishengarh, and Kherwara; elsewhere in fair condition. Pasturage or fodder scarce in four States and at Deoli, Kherwara, and Ajmere-Merwara. 44,518 acres affected by scarcity in Ajmere-Merwara; about 5,979 persons on relief works. Gratuitous relief given to 90 persons who are unable to work. Prices of food-grains steady generally.

Nepal.—For week ending 11th June.—Weather cloudy, but less showery than last week. Sun wanted for paddy and Indian-corn. Prices very high, inferior rice and wheat flour selling at 7 seers per rupee.

REVENUE DEPARTMENT.

A Dictionary of the Economic Products of India.

BY DR. GEO. WATT, C I E.,

Reporter on Economic Products.

Published under the authority of the Government of India in the Revenue and Agricultural Department.

The first four volumes of this work are now ready for issue, and intending subscribers are invited to register their names with the Superintendent of Government Printing, Calcutta

The Dictionary is intended to deal with the products of India —animal, vegetable, and mineral; each product being treated after a uniform plan, the paragraphs of which give the scientific, vernacular, and European names, habitat or source history; properties and uses, both chemical and industrial, trade statistics; markets, &c The work is arranged alphabetically according to scientific nomenclature, but commercial and important vernacular names are also given as cross references, so that little difficulty need be experienced in finding the account of a product even when its scientific name is unknown to the reader.

An important feature of the Dictionary consists in the fact that derived information is in every instance given under quotation marks, and with a reference to the original publication Numerous contributions have, however, furnished the results of new discoveries, and confirmed the vernacular names; so that the Dictionary is not only a complete compilation of published information, but has been brought abreast of the most recent inventions and discoveries

Volume I contains the letters A and B, and consists of 559 royal pages, Volume II embraces the letter C in 689 pages, Vol ume III contains the letters D, E, F, and G in 534 pages. Vol. IV, letters G to I in 643 pages The whole work will, it is expected, be completed in six volumes by 1891, but a seventh volume may also be issued consisting of an Index to all the vernacular and other names contained in the Dictionary, and this as a work of reference, it is hoped, may prove of considerable value.

The price to subscribers will be in India R30 and in England 2 guineas, payable in advance, for the complete set An extra charge for packing and postage will be made for the set—in India, at 8 annas per volume, and for England at 2 rupees 6 annas per volume.

For copies bound in half calf or half morocco, R6 and 8 shillings, respectively, will be charged extra for the whole sets

No copies will be issued to non-subscribers till the work is complete, and no single volume will be sold separately. The price to non-subscribers will be R45 in India and 3 guineas in England, exclusive of packing and postage*

1. No newspaper or other printed work, whether periodical or other, containing public news or comments upon public news, shall, without the written permission for the time being in force of the Political Agent, be edited, printed, or published after the 1st day of August 1891 in any local area administered by the Governor-General in Council, but not forming part of British India.

2. If after the day aforesaid any person shall, without such permission as aforesaid, edit, print, or publish any such newspaper or other work as aforesaid in any such local area as aforesaid, the Political Agent may, by order in writing,—

(a) require him to leave such local area within seven days from the date of such order, and

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

REVENUE AND AGRICULTURAL DEPARTMENT.

Weather Review of India for the week ending at 8 a.m. on Saturday, June 20th, 1891.

The charts of the past week show no important change in the distribution of pressure or the winds. The chart of the 14th showed a high pressure area over Malabar, Ceylon, and the south of the Bay, and a narrow trough of low pressure pressed closely against the foot of the hills in the north. Between these two regions the gradients were moderate. There was a very large excess of pressure as compared with the normal over the Bombay Presidency—more particularly over Guzerat and the North Konkan. Hence abnormal gradients for north-westerly winds were shown over the central parts of the country and the Peninsula. The wind was variable on the West Coast and north-westerly and westerly over other parts of the Indian region, except the Bay area, where the direction was south. These conditions continued during the 15th, but on the 16th a slight modification was introduced by a rapid barometric fall taking place in the north-west, and the production of a slight depression over the south of the Punjab. On the 17th the chart exhibited no change of importance, but on the 18th a barometric rise set in, which was felt all over the country, but was most brisk in the north. Hence both the depression in the South Punjab and that lying along the foot of the hills commenced a move southward, and a high pressure area was established in the north-west of the Punjab. At the same time the wind became more northerly than before. These conditions lasted during the 19th and 20th.

Owing to the distribution of pressure above described, conditions have been most unfavourable for the proper advance of the monsoon current In Northern India, owing to the position of the trough of low pressure, there have been no gradients for south-easterly winds, and dry westerly winds have blown right across Northern India up to the hills. On the other hand, all over Central and Southern India the distribution of pressure has favoured north-westerly instead of the normal south-westerly winds, and there has hardly been any sign of the monsoon over the Indian Peninsula. In the Bay conditions have been more favourable. Southerly winds have prevailed at the head of the Bay and south-westerly winds over Burma. The former appear to have been a continuation of the westerly current crossing India, so that the only moisture they carried was the small amount collected during their passage over the head of the Bay, and the rainfall was consequently small. Burma seems to have been the only place where anything approaching real monsoon weather was experienced, and there the rain was general and fairly heavy.

Temperature.—Owing to the continued absence of rain, the temperature of the week has been higher than usual. The amount of this excess has varied according to the liability of the different divisions to have heavy rain during the present week. Thus the Central Provinces, Central India, and the West Coast, where under ordinary conditions heavy rain would have been experienced, the excess has been large; while, on the contrary, in the Punjab, Sind, and Rajputana, where under ordinary conditions comparatively little rain would have fallen, and where a cool northerly wind has been experienced instead of an excess, there has been a deficiency.

The following table shows the variation of temperature from the normal average on each day for the principal Provinces of India:

Province	June 14th	15th	16th	17th	18th	19th	20th.	Mean variation for week.
	°	°	°	°	°	°	°	°
Burma	+1 4	—1·6	+1 3	+1 0	+2 2	+1·7	— 0 3	+0·8
Bengal and Assam	+1 8	+2 5	+2 2	+3·1	+2 8	+3 3	+ 4 1	+2 8
North-Western Provinces	+2 8	+2 2	+0 3	+0 3	+2 0	+2 0	+ 3 3	+1·8
Punjab	—0 6	—3 1	—3 9	—4 6	—3 0	—3 2	— 0 3	—2·7
Central Provinces	+7 0	+6 1	+6·2	+5 8	+7 3	+4 3	+10·8	+6 8
Guzerat and Central India	+2 6	+1 7	+1 8	+2 2	+2·7	+3 9	+ 4 2	+2·7
Sind and Rajputana	—0 8	—2 2	—1 3	—0 3	—1 5	—0 9	+ 1·9	—0 7
Madras	+4 0	+3·4	+3 7	+3·7	+1 5	+2 6	+ 1·9	+3 0
Mean for whole India	+2 4	+1 4	+1 6	+1 7	+2 1	+2 1	+ 3·4	+2·1

The above figures show that on the mean of the week there was a deficiency of 2½° in the Punjab and of ½° in Sind and Rajputana In all the other Provinces there was an excess, which ranged from nearly 1° in Burma to nearly 7° in the Central Provinces. For the whole of India there was an average excess of 2°. The warmest day was the 20th, when the excess for the whole of India amounted to 3½°. The excess in the maximum values in the Central Provinces on this day was very remarkable, as the following figures show

	Max	Excess		Max	Excess.
Akola	111 6	+14 7	Nagpur	111 8	+15·5

The absolute maximum temperatures on each day were .

The varying regions from which these absolute maxima were reported show the uniformity of the heat throughout the Indian region.

Rain.—The rainfall of the past week has been lighter and less extensive than during the week before. Combining the divisions in which there has been absolutely no rain with those in which the total average rainfall of the week has been less than one-tenth of an inch, it appears that the whole of the Gangetic plain and its neighbourhood from Orissa, Chota Nagpur, and Behar, north-westward through the North-Western Provinces to the north-west of the Punjab, the whole of the Central Provinces, Guzerat, Kattiawar, Sind, Central India, Rajputana, Khandeish, and the Circars had no effective rain. On the other hand, North-Eastern India (including Burma, Assam, and Lower Bengal), the west of the Peninsula, and a large part of Madras received effective rain. The heaviest rainfall received was 17 inches in Tenasserim : this was followed by 7½ inches in Assam (Surma), by 5 inches in Lower Burma, and by 4½ inches in Arakan and Malabar. In the other divisions the amounts were smaller. The third column of the concluding table shows the general deficiency of the rainfall during the week. In only seven divisions did the average actual rainfall exceed the normal average. These divisions were Tenasserim, Lower Burma, Madras (South-Central, South and Central), Mysore, and Sind. In Tenasserim the excess was large, in Mysore considerable, and in the remainder moderate or small. The most marked deficiencies were 5¾ inches in the Konkan and 5⅓ inches in North Bengal, but many other divisions have relatively to the average quite as deficient an amount. The final column of the table displays the same general characteristics as did the figures of last week, viz., a large seasonal deficiency over by far the greater part of the country. The figures refer to the period from May 31st to June 20th. During that period there has been more rain than usual in Tenasserim, Lower Burma, and Arakan, in Behar, in the Submontane division of the North-West Provinces, in Madras (South-Central and South), and in Mysore. In all the other divisions the fall has been short. In many divisions only two or three per cent. of the normal amount has fallen, and in nearly all the amount of defect is large.

The following is the record of the heaviest falls registered, which are nearly all reported from North-Eastern India or the south-west of the Peninsula :

RESOLUTION.

1. In paragraph 28 of Resolution No. 185, dated 10th January 1883, the policy of the Government of India in regard to the purchase in India of articles of local manufacture required for the public service was expressed in the following terms:

Para. 28.—The orders of the Secretary of State make it incumbent on all Officers of Government requiring stores of European manufacture to obtain them by indenting on the Secretary of State, and permit of the purchase in the local market of articles made in Europe or America only under the special circumstances mentioned in paragraph 3 of this Resolution. The Governor General in Council therefore desires again to invite the special attention of Local Governments to the expediency of supplying the wants of Government by the purchase in the local market of articles of bonâ fide local manufacture. The Government of India is desirous to give the utmost encouragement to every effort to substitute for articles now obtained from Europe articles of bonâ fide local manufacture or of indigenous origin; and where articles of European and of Indian manufacture do not differ materially in price and quality, the Government would always be disposed to give the preference to the latter; and the Governor General in Council desires to remind all Officers of Government that there is no reason why articles manufactured in India should not be obtained locally even although the raw material necessary to their manufacture may have been originally imported from Europe. It is most desirable to bear in mind the distinction between articles of European manufacture and articles produced or worked up in India from imported material; the former should not, save in exceptional cases, be purchased in the local market while the latter should by preference be purchased locally whenever the quality is sufficiently good, and the price not higher than the cost of laying down the imported article There are many articles which may not be immediately obtained in the local market, but which can be made in the event of Government encouraging the manufacture.

The special circumstances mentioned in paragraph 3 of the same Resolution (as amended by Financial Resolution No 2586, dated the 23rd May 1890), in which the purchase in the local market of articles made in Europe or America is held to be permissible, are as follows.

1st, when for any special reason it may be more economical to do so;

2nd, when stores indented for from England have not arrived, or when a sudden emergency has arisen, and in either case only if serious inconvenience to the public service would be caused by waiting for the stores from England;

3rd, when the articles are perishable.

2. Some misconception appears to have arisen regarding the application of paragraph 28 of Resolution No. 185, dated 10th January 1883 to manufactured articles of iron and steel. The term "raw material" used therein, the import of which from Europe for the purpose of being worked up into finished articles was declared to be unobjectionable, was held in some quarters to apply to the bars and plates of iron and steel which are made up into bridges, roofs, and other finished engineering structures. This, however, was not the intention of the Resolution It was considered by the Government of India in regard to manufactured articles of iron and steel that they were classes of stores to which the objections to local purchase applied in the highest degree mainly on the grounds (1) that much of the material imported into India was of inferior quality; (2) that the delays that unavoidably occur even in England on account of the rejection of material would be aggravated in India with consequences ruinous to the contractor and most injurious to Government; (3) of the absence in India of the necessary mechanical and chemical appliances required for testing iron and steel; and (4) of the loss of the economical advantage secured by free competition, which could not be obtained in India owing to the limited number of capable firms.

On these grounds the purchase in India for the public service of manufactured articles of iron and steel was prohibited, except under the special circumstances mentioned above.

3. Having regard, however, to the representations contained in the memorial read above, and with the view of encouraging local industries and the development of technical education, His Excellency the Governor General in Council has now resolved to modify, as a tentative measure, the existing orders prohibiting the local purchase of manufactured articles of iron and steel made up from imported materials. In so doing the Governor General in Council desires it to be clearly understood that this relaxation of existing rules is sanctioned solely in the hope of thereby effecting economy in the public administration, both by actual saving in the cost of articles purchased locally, and by avoiding the delays that are sometimes inevitable when the articles have to be procured by indent on England. It is not intended to sanction thereby a procedure in any degree of a protective nature, and firms that may obtain orders under this Resolution must be distinctly warned that no claim for compensation of any sort will be admitted in the event of its being found necessary to discontinue the practice of inviting tenders in India.

4. In the annexure to this Resolution is a list of articles, tenders for which may, in the opinion of the Governor General in Council, be invited in future from local firms. It is not necessary that there should be an absolutely rigid adherence to the items specified. Tenders for any articles of the nature indicated in the list may be invited, but it should be understood that articles on which very little labour in India is required can be best procured through the Secretary of State. It is also intended that the relaxation of the rules regarding local manufacture shall be limited to the less important supplies: e.g., bridges and roofs of small span required for the Buildings and Roads and Irrigation Branches of the Public Works Department, and for Municipalities and District Boards. In the case of railways under construction, the whole of the necessary supplies, as far as can be foreseen, will continue as heretofore to be procured by indent on the Secretary of State. The relaxation of the rules will refer only to articles the certain want of which could not be anticipated, and delay in the supply of which would involve loss in some respect.

5. The following restrictions must also be rigidly enforced in all cases in order to ensure—

(1) that the articles locally supplied are not imported into India in a finished or partly finished state;

(2) that the price is not in excess of that at which similar articles could be obtained by indent on the Secretary of State; and

(3) that the quality is not inferior to that of English supplies.

I.—Firms that may be permitted to tender.—It is evident that a most careful selection must be made of the firms allowed to tender, and only firms of recognised standing, and whose shops are fitted with the necessary plant, will be considered eligible. Local Governments and Administrations are therefore directed to furnish the Government of India with a list of the firms within their jurisdiction that they consider should be entitled to the privilege of tendering. The lists should state the principal machines in the shops of each firm, and the means possessed for testing both the raw material and the finished product.

II.—Checks to ensure that the articles are manufactured in India from the raw material.—Raw material may be understood to mean wrought-iron and steel in the form of plates and bars, cast-iron in the shape of pig, and steel forgings in the shape of bars and ingots. Local manufacture from raw material imported in these shapes may be permitted, but the contracts for all local supplies of articles of iron and steel should contain a clause insisting that the articles, with the exception of the raw material thus defined, must be made wholly in India. A certificate from the firms to which orders may be given should also accompany the delivery of each order to the effect that this clause of the contract has been complied with. With this object in view Local Governments and Administrations should also arrange for periodical or other inspections of the Government orders under execution by the selected firms.

III.—Check as regards the relative prices of English and Indian supplies.—The best check will be furnished by a comparison of the tenders received from Indian firms with the quarterly rate-lists issued by the Director General of Railways. In cases of doubt Local Governments and Administrations might ask the Director General of Stores at the India Office by telegram* for approximate rates, including the prevailing rates of freight.

* Either direct or through the Government of India according to the rules regulating the despatch of Foreign State messages.

IV.—Testing of the raw material employed and, when necessary, of the finished product.—With the system of careful selection that is prescribed, the Government of India is convinced that the selected firms would be careful to employ material of none but the best quality. To ensure this, however, the contracts should also provide for the employment of steel in the majority of cases in preference to wrought-iron, and it should be insisted that Siemens, Martin or Bessemer steel of English make should be used, and the use of Basic steel and of foreign steel or iron in any form should be prohibited. In the case of articles of any importance, it will be necessary, however, to test the raw material employed. It is believed that some of the engineering firms interested in local manufacture either possess or are prepared to erect the necessary testing plant. This should be insisted upon so far as possible. Another means of testing the raw material will be by sending samples for the purpose to the Railway workshops which exist in all the large centres, and which are generally provided with some testing plant. Enquiry will be made by the Government of India in what railway shops the necessary tests could be carried out, and the scale of fees that would be charged. Such fees would be payable by the manufacturing firms in all cases. The tests will invariably be carried out in the presence of a competent officer of the Public Works Department, and all specifications for articles to be locally supplied will specify the tests which the material employed is to undergo. To assist Local Governments and Administrations in preparing such specifications and in the carrying out of the tests, they will be furnished with copies of Professor Unwin's handbook on "The Testing of Materials of Construction." Should it subsequently be found necessary, Government will be prepared to arrange for the erection of adequate testing machinery at selected centres.

In cases where structures, such as roofs and bridges of small span, are locally manufactured, the contract should in all cases provide for the efficient testing of the finished structure before delivery, either in the shops of the manufacturer, or else in those of the nearest Railway Company.

ORDER.—Ordered, that this Resolution be communicated to the Local Governments and Administrations noted on the margin for information and guidance.

The Governments of Madras, Bombay, Bengal, the North-Western Provinces and Oudh, and the Punjab.
The Chief Commissioners of the Central Provinces, Burma, Assam, Mysore, and Coorg.

REVENUE DEPARTMENT.

A Dictionary of the Economic Products of India.

BY DR. GEO. WATT, C.I.E.,

Reporter on Economic Products.

Published under the authority of the Government of India in the Revenue and Agricultural Department.

The first four volumes of this work are now ready for issue, and intending subscribers are invited to register their names with the Superintendent of Government Printing, Calcutta.

The Dictionary is intended to deal with the products of India—animal, vegetable, and mineral; each product being treated after a uniform plan, the paragraphs of which give the scientific, vernacular, and European names; habitat or source history; properties and uses, both chemical and industrial; trade statistics; markets, &c. The work is arranged alphabetically according to scientific nomenclature, but commercial and important vernacular names are also given as cross references, so that little difficulty need be experienced in finding the account of a product even when its scientific name is unknown to the reader.

An important feature of the Dictionary consists in the fact that derived information is in every instance given under quotation marks, and with a reference to the original publication. Numerous contributions have, however, furnished the results of new discoveries, and confirmed the vernacular names; so that the Dictionary is not only a complete compilation of published information, but has been brought abreast of the most recent inventions and discoveries.

Volume I contains the letters A and B, and consists of 559 royal pages; Volume II embraces the letter C in 682 pages; Volume III contains the letters D, E, F, and G in 534 pages. Vol. IV, letters G to L, in 643 pages The whole work will, it is expected, be completed in six volumes by 1891; but a seventh volume may also be issued consisting of an Index to all the vernacular and other names contained in the Dictionary; and this as a work of reference, it is hoped, may prove of considerable value.

The price to subscribers will be in India R30 and in England 2 guineas, payable in advance, for the complete set. An extra charge for packing and postage will be made for the set—in India, at 8 annas per volume, and for England at 2 rupees 6 annas per volume.

For copies bound in half calf or half morocco, R6 and 8 shillings, respectively, will be charged extra for the whole sets.

No copies will be issued to non-subscribers till the work is complete, and no single volume will be sold separately. The price to non-subscribers will be R45 in India and 3 guineas in England, exclusive of packing and postage.
